MOORE, LORD MOORE.

[Marquis of Drogheda, in Ireland.]

THIS noble family is of French extraction, from which kingdom they came very early after the Conquest into England; and acquiring a good estate in the county of Kent, made the manor of Moore-Court their residence, until they removed to Moore-Place, in Benenden, in the said county, which they held for many generations.

Mr. John Philipot, Somerset Herald, who drew the pedigree of this family in 1612, tells us, that their surname was assumed from the lands which they originally possessed at More-Place, in Rolvinden and Benenden, in Kent. But he should have said More-Court, in Iviechurch,<sup>a</sup> in the same county.

He begins with THOMAS DE LA MORE, Esq. who held the manor of More-Place, whence the name was variously written De More, De la More, Atte-More, until the general relinquishing of such prepositions before names was practised, when it determined also in this family, which was about the time of Henry VI.

<sup>a</sup> They were seated here as early as King Henry II's reign; and John de More de Iviechurch, was possessed of it in King Edward I's reign, as appears by a fine levied in the 9th year of it, between John, the son of Thomas de Iden, and the abovementioned John de More, by which the said John passes away land to John de More, of Rolvenden. Hasted's Kent, III. 498.

This Thomas was living in the reign of Henry II. as is proved by a deed, wherein his grandson is styled John, the son of Henry, son of Thomas de More, whereby he purchased from John, the son of Thomas de Iden, a certain croft abutting upon his own lands; and this deed bears date at More-Place, on St. Vincent's day, 1280, 9 Edward I.

HENRY DE MORE, his son afore-mentioned, as is proved by several deeds, had four sons; viz.

First, John, his heir.

Second, Thomas (who sold his lands to Henry Fitz-Geffery Coote; from him descended Matthew More, who held certain lands within the hundred of Blackburne, next to Rolvinden, by knight's service, and paid his aid for them 20 King Edward III. when the Black Prince was made a Knight, as appears by the records of the aid enrolled in the Exchequer.)<sup>b</sup>

Third, Stephen (who disposed of his estate at Maplesden, in Kent, to his brother, Thomas.)

Fourth, Charles.

JOHN de More, of More-Place, the eldest son (in some deeds written Atte-More), died about 7 King Edward II. having purchased divers lands from Ralph Ramsden, with others in Benenden, from his brother, Stephen, and married Matilda, daughter of William Falkinden,<sup>c</sup> by whom he had two sons;

First, Thomas.

Second, Scoland, who had lands confirmed to him by his uncle Charles.

THOMAS, who succeeded, by Joan his wife (who survived him, and purchased lands 10 Edward III.) had

JOHN, his heir, who lived in the time of Edward III. and died seised of his paternal inheritance, leaving two sons;

First, Thomas. And,

Second, John, who by deed, dated on St. Mark's day, 46 Edward III. were appointed feoffees in trust for the lands of Stephen Collett, lying in Sandhurst, next Benenden.

THOMAS de More, the elder son, marrying Catharine, the co-heiress of the family of Benenden, of Benenden (whereof John de Benenden held a Knight's fee there 20 Edward III. and bore for his coat armour, Azure, a lobster, Or, which is now quartered by the Marquis of Drogheda): his family, on that match, transplanted themselves to Benenden, where they built a house called Moore-Place, and possessed a fair estate, until John Moore, Esq. sold it to Mr. William Watts, in the first year of Queen Mary's reign. By her, who outlived him, he had two sons;

First, William.

Second, John.

WILLIAM, the elder, married Catherine, daughter and heir to Anthony Aucher, Esq. (branched from the ancient family of Aucher, of Losenham, in Newenden, not far from Rolvinden, where Sir Thomas Aucher, in the time of Henry III. founded a monastery for Carmelite friars; and these Auchers of Kent, were descended from the family at Copt-Hall, near Waltham Abbey, in Essex, where they had continued from the conquest of England),<sup>d</sup> and had issue, First, Thomas, his heir. And, Second, John.

THOMAS married Agnes, daughter and heir of Robert Austen, and was father of WILLIAM Moore, of Moore-Place, Esq. who married Margaret, daughter and coheir to John Brenchley, Esq. Lord of the manor of Benenden, by his wife, Margaret, daughter and heir to Richard Golding, 21 Henry VI. (of which family was Sir William Brenchley,<sup>e</sup> Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and died in 1446, as she died in 1453, without issue), and with her he got the inheritance of Moat-Lands and Bettenham, in Kent. He lies buried in the church of Benenden, in Kent, with his father-in-law; as appears by this inscription in the chancel window on the north side:

*Orate pro animabus Johannis Brenchley et Willielmi

WALTER Moore, of Benenden, Esq. was his son, and recovered certain lands in Smallhide and Tenterden, which had been entailed upon the issue of his grandfather, Thomas, by Agnes

Austen his wife, niece to Robert Jane, in case her said uncle should die childless, and proved that, contrary to his intail, the said Robert had given those lands to his bastard son, which of right belonged to him, who was the son of William, son and heir to Thomas More and Agnes Austen, cousin and heir to the said Robert Jane. This Walter's will is recorded in the office of wills at Canterbury, and shews that he died in 1504, 19 Henry VII. leaving by Alice his wife (who brought into the family lands in the parishes of Brokeland, Fayerfield, Brensett, and Snave, in Kent), two sons;

First, Thomas, of Benenden, his heir.

Second, William, who married Elizabeth, one of the three daughters and coheirs of William Betenham, Esq. with whom he had the ancient seat of Betenham, in the parish of Cranebrooke, where he resided, and was father of Nicholas Moore, of Wingmore, in Elham, who married Clara, daughter of John Toke, of Goddington and Great-Chart, in Kent, by Cicely, daughter of Sir Thomas Kempe, Knt. and dying in 1556,<sup>f</sup> at Wingmore (4 Queen Mary), without issue, gave all his lands by will to the sons of his cousin, John Moore, of Pluckley.

THOMAS Moore, of Benenden, Esq. eldest son of Walter, made his will in 1519, 11 Henry VIII. which is recorded in the prerogative court of Canterbury, and proves that he had three sons;

First, John. Second, Edward. And,

Third, Thomas, whose posterity settled in Norfolk.

JOHN, the eldest son, alienated More-Court to John Watts, 1st of Queen Mary.<sup>g</sup> He married Margaret,<sup>h</sup> daughter, and at length heir to John Brent, Esq. widow of John Dering, of Surrenden, in Pluckley, by whom he had one daughter, Anne, first wife of Sir Henry Duke, of Castle-Jordan, in the county of Kildare, Knt.

And six sons; viz. First, Owen, who went to Ireland, and died without issue.

Second, Sir Edward, ancestor to the Marquis of Drogheda.

<sup>f</sup> There is a memorial for him in Elham church, by which, according to Hasted, it appears that he died at Wingmore, May 8th, 1577, aged fifty-nine. Hasted, III. 343.

<sup>i</sup> Sir THOMAS Moore came into Ireland early in the reign of Queen Elizabeth; who, by the advice of her commissioners for setting her lands in Ireland, according to the tenor of certain instructions, signed by her Majesty at Litchfield, 2d August, 1575, granted and confirmed unto him (by the name of Thomas Moore, of Croghan, Gentleman), by indenture, dated 5th December, 1577, the castle of Castletown, with all the messuages, orchards, gardens, and 758 acres of land in Castletown, Kilcorboighe, the castle of Tougher, &c. in the King's County, with all other the castles, lands, advowsons, patronages of churches, and hereditaments, which ever were reputed as parcel of the said premises; to hold the same for ever of the crown, as of the castle of Philipstown, in capite, by the twentieth part of a Knight's fee, and subject to the conditions of plantation; which were, that he and his heirs, whenever summoned so to do, should attend with the greater part of their domestics and tenants, armed in a warlike manner, with victuals for three days, upon the chief governor, or such as should be appointed by him, for the defence of the King's County, or to go upon any bordering Irishmen of the said county; to answer all Hostings, after the rate and value of his lands according to the law and custom of the realm; to maintain constantly upon the premises, five able horsemen of English birth, surname, and blood, for the better inhabiting and preserving the same, furnished with good and sufficient horses and arms, as well offensive as defensive; to pay the crown rent of 9l. 9s. 6d. Irish, with a customary day, called a plough-day, for every plough employed upon the lands, or to perform such work, at such time and place within the said county, as the constable of the castle of Philipstown should appoint, or in lieu thereof, 3s. for every customary day, at the election of him and his heirs. For whom he further covenanted, that the chief governor might, from time to time, cut and carry away, at pleasure, all kinds of wood growing upon the premises, for such buildings as they should appoint to be erected for the use of the Crown in that county; that they should not make use of the Breawne or Brehon Law, in any cause whatsoever, against any subject responsible to the laws of Ireland; and that his sons, and able servants, should use, for the major part, the English tongue, habit, and government; and yearly repair before the constable of the castle of Philipstown, or in his absence, before the sheriff of the King's County, at the said castle, on the first day of September, and bring all the men under their government, from the age of 16 to 60, to be mustered, and answer for their respective actions within the county for that year, &c.

Sir Henry Sidney, in his instructions from Denbigh, 17th September, 1580, to his successor the L. D. Grey, how to proceed in his government, thus writes: "My Lord, I had forgotten three kinsmen of mine, Sir Edward More, Owen More, and Thomas More; one of them was my man, and now the Queen's; the other my Lord of Warwick's, and now a Knight; the third, my man still: I pray your Lordship let them know, that I forget them not." * He was afterwards knighted for his service against the Irish, by whom he was at length murdered in his castle of Castletown, and was succeeded there by his son, Fifth, Nicholas, who married Dorothy, daughter of Sir Robert Southwell, Knt. And,

Sir JOHN Moore, Knt. who, in 1599, held his castle of Croghan for the Queen; after which he was knighted, and made considerable additions to his estate; namely the town of Clonfert, by purchase from Anthony Marche; the town of Crutmulloghrosse, with 186 acres; the castle of Rattrummon, with 155 acres; and by virtue of the commission for the plantation and disposition of lands in the county of Leitrim, and the territory of Ely O Carrol, King James I. 23d April, 1622, granted to him and his heirs, the castle, town, and lands of Tullamoore, Killcruttin, and divers others, containing 1147 acres, glebe lands excepted, in the King's County, to hold in common socage as of the castle of Dublin; with a Tuesday market, and a fair on St. Pete.'s day at Tullamoore. He married Dorothy,* fifth daughter to Dr. Adam Loftus, Archbishop of Dublin, and Lord Chancellor of Ireland; and making his will 10th April, 1633, orders his body to be buried in the parish church of Croghan, in the sepulchre of his father, provided for his wife and children; and then leaves his blessing to his son Thomas, and his posterity; whom he enjoins, and charges upon the blessing of a loving father, and as he should answer to the contrary before the Majesty of God at the day of judgment, that he should not trouble, vex, or molest his mother, for, or concerning her jointure, or his brothers and sisters concerning their portions, but, to his uttermost power and ability, assist and comfort them, as became a natural brother to do. He appoints his wife and son, Wakeley, executors; and requests his noble kinsmen and friends, Charles, Lord Moore, Sir Robert Loftus, and Sir William Cooley (in whom he reposed most confidence and trust), to be overseers of his will and children; and prays his children, upon his blessing, to be governed and directed by them on all occasions that should concern their advancement, and especially in the disposition of themselves by marriage. He died 26th of that month, and had issue by her, who died 8th July, in same year, and was buried the 15th, fourteen children, who died in their infancy, and three sons and six daughters, who survived; viz,

First, Thomas,† his successor in estate.

Second, Gerald, who died in his youth.‡

Third, Adam of Croghan, who died unmarried, 10th November, 1636, and by his nuncupative will that day, left to his sister, Anne, 200l. and to his sisters, Thomasine and Elizabeth, 50l. a piece.§

(eldest son of Sir Terence O Dempsey, created Viscount of Clanmalier, 22d December, 1631), and by him, who died there in 1638, before his father, and was buried in the chapel of Killmolahy, she had Lieutenant-Colonel James O'Dempsey, who died childless; and Dorothy, who died young.

<sup>m</sup> Apparently in consequence of their connection with Sir Henry Sydney, the Lord Deputy, whose seat was at Penshurst, in Kent.

<sup>n</sup> The Queen, by instructions to the L. D. and Chancellor for the time being, dated at Westminster 24th October, 1565 (7 Eliz.), granted him a lease in reversion, for twenty-one years, of the dissolved monastery and lands, spiritual and temporal, of Mellefont, paying such reasonable fine within certain years, as to the L. D. and Council should seem convenient. Whereupon they made the following order: "Forasmuch as the said house and lands are situated near unto the borders of Ulster, and hath in all times of rebellion in those parts, been subject to the invasion of the enemy, and is not in such times defended from burning and spoil, but with such an excessive charge, as in a manner the whole commodity doth no more than bear the expenses of such a force as may defend it; and that in all such times the said Edward hath not shunned that place, but maintained hospitality plentifully; whereby he hath not only relieved many of her Majesty's servants and subjects, but defended the same lands, and thereby given an example to others, and a relief to the whole county of Louth: and for as much further as in the same instruction her Majesty's express pleasure is, that consideration be had to the situation of the place, adding these words, That the house standeth upon the Irish country, and is chargeable to defend: We have condescended, and by authority of the same instruction agreed, that the said Edward shall pay to her Majesty for a fine of his said lease in reversion, the sum of 45 l. current money of this realm, the same to be paid at the feast of Easter, which shall be in the year of our Lord God 1570; for payment whereof the said Edward shall with one sufficient suretie enter into his residence, and where his posterity remained, till the late Earl of Drogheda removed to Monasterevan, or Moore-Abbey, in the county of Kildare, the seat of the late Viscount Loftus, of Elye, which descended to his Lordship, as heir to that family.

In the wars carried on for the reduction of the Earl of Tyrone, Sir Edward was a principal commander; and it is observed, that he and Sir Francis Stafford were, in 1599, the only English house-keepers in the county of Louth, all the lands being wasted by the Ulster rebels. To the general hosting at the hill of Tarah, 24th September, 1593, he and Sir Edward Brabazon brought three horsemen; and 10th March, 1601, he was constituted Constable of the fort of Philip's-town, with the fee of two shillings, Irish, a day for himself, with eight pence apiece for twelve footmen, during good behaviour, which upon his surrender, and in consideration of his services, and those of his son, Sir Gerald, was renewed to them 2d March, 1609, during their respective lives.

He married, first, Mildred, daughter and coheir to Nicholas Clifford, of Chart, in Kent, Esq. and, secondly, Margery, daughter<sup>o</sup> of William, fourth son of John Brabazon, of Eastwell, in the hande in the chancery, for the due answering thereof to her Majesty's use. Given at Dublin 1 June 1566, in the eighth year of her Highness's reign."

He had accordingly a lease by patent, 20th June that year; and held also all the lands and temporalities of the hospital of St. John of Ardee, by lease, dated 25th July, 1579, for forty-one years from Michaelmas 1591; which were granted in fee to his son, Sir Gerald, as the monastery of Mellefont also was. King James likewise granted to him a lease of the hospital of Mounterconought, in the county of Cavan, for twenty-one years, to commence 6th March, 1605, at the rent of 15 d.; the hospital of Dromloman, at the rent of 2 s. and 6 d.; and that of Ballylinch, at the rent of 3 d.; all which premises, and such other lands as he held by lease, were granted in reversion 23d April, 1605, for sixty years more.

* Rather his widow; for in the Bishop of Clogher's MS. N<sup>o</sup> 18, 4<sup>to</sup>. is this memorandum: That on Thursday the 30th of December, being St. Andrew's day, the worshipful Lady More, wife to the worshipful Sir Edward More, Knt. Bachelor, was buried in the cathedral church, called Christ Church, where was prepared a fair herse, covered with black bayes, and the outer rayles were covered with black cotton, and the said herse was well garnysed with Scotchions of her arms, and with the arms of all her four husbands; viz. Sir William Brabazon, Master Waren, Master Blondt, and Sir Edward More; and also with a great number of pencils of the several arms. The corpse of said Lady More, was worshipfully conducted from her place of Melivant unto the city of Dublin, and Ulster county of Leicester, Esq. the widow of Mr. Warren, and of Mr. Blount, and had issue four sons; viz.

First, HENRY, who married Mary, daughter of Francis Agarde, of Fawston, in Staffordshire, Esq. Privy Counsellor to Queen Elizabeth, and an eminent person in Ireland during her reign, who lies buried in Christ-Church, Dublin, under a monument yet remaining; and died without issue by her, who after became the first wife of William Makewy, of Ballyneskeagh, in Meath, Esq.<sup>p</sup>

Second, Sir Gerald (commonly called Sir Garret Moore). created Viscount Drogheda.

Fourth, William, of Barmeath, in the county of Louth, whose son and heir, Richard, married Anne, daughter of Patrick Cashell, of Dundalk, Gent. and dying 6th January, 1634, was interred in the church of Dysert, having had five sons and three daughters; viz. William (a Captain in the wars of 1641, who after the restoration had a warrant dated 13th December, 1660, to be a Captain of foot, and married Catharine, daughter of Garrett Cooley, of Ardee, Esq.); Garrett; George; Robert; James; Mary (married to George Waven, of Wavenstown, in Louth, Gent.) Elenor; and Maud.

Sir GARRET MOORE, second son, first Viscount Drogheda, who succeeded his father at Mellefont, served under the Earl of Essex and the L. D. Mountjoy, in the war with Tyrone and the Spaniards; and in September 1599, when the Earl of Essex left the kingdom, had the command of one hundred foot at Ardee; with twenty-five horse at Kells and Navan. November 13th, 1600, he was with the L. D. at the fight of Carlingford against Tyrone, when his ensign was killed; and about the beginning of that month, 1602, was sent by the deputy into the Breny, where all the rebels submitted, and gladly received her Majesty's protection; Tyrone at the same time sending by Sir Garrett to the L. D.

King of Arms met the corpse 3 miles from Dublin, and wearing the Queen's coat of arms, brought the said corpse unto St. Catherine's church, and there it remained from Tuesday until Thursday aforesaid, and was then brought unto the said church of Christ Church. (Lodge.)

<sup>p</sup> Which William died 21st March, 1636, and was buried at Rathcor, leaving Francis Makewy, Esq. who married Anne, daughter of Thomas Hussey, of Mulhussey, in Meath, Esq.; Catharine, married to Charles, son of Richard Perkins, of Athboy, Esq.; and Alice, to Andrew Pollard, of the county of Devon, Esq. an absolute submission to the Queen's mercy, bearing date 12th November. And the Queen dying 24th March, 1602, the news was imparted to the L. D. on the 27th, in the night, at Mellefont; and his Lordship being warranted by her Majesty's letters, to receive Tyrone to mercy, had upon the 24th commissioned, and the next day sent Sir Garret, and Sir William Godolphin, to treat with him. The said 27th they arrived at Charlemount, where Sir William staying for his troop of horse, Sir Garrett rode that night to Tulloghoge, and conferred with Tyrone, who being resolved to obey the Deputy's commands, accompanied them to Mellefont, and made a most humble submission in writing, which he presented publicly on his knees; and the Queen's death being proclaimed 3d April, he renewed his submission to King James, and in May attended the L. L. into England.<sup>a</sup>

On the 9th June, 1603, he and William Moore, of Barmead, and Brent Moore, had the grant of a pardon for all treasons and other offences; 20th of the same month, he was made Seneschal of the county of Cavan, and town of Kells; and 22d November, 1609, Constable of the castle of Philipstown, for his life and that of Edward, his son. In the parliament of 1613, he was member for the borough of Dungannon; 20th May, 1615, appointed of council to the president of Munster; and 8th July, same year, he was rated 100 marks for the subsidy then granted to the King.

<sup>a</sup> The castle and lands of Ballyscanlan, Krivagh, and divers others which had been granted 10th July, 1599, to Sir Anthony St. Leger, Sir Gerald purchased the same 26th November, 1600; and 22d January, 1610, had a grant of 1000 acres, called Ballymonehon, in the barony of Orier, and county of Armagh. By patent, dated 4th June, 1612, he had a confirmation in fee of the Abbey of Mellefont, with all its appurtenances, the Priory of Dulee, the Hospital of St. John Baptist of Ardee, the manor of Shenlis, the monastery of Gallen, with many other lands and hereditaments; and the rectories and tithes of Dulee, Killcarvan, Eight Castles, Moorechurch, Stamullen, Cloneallway, Ardcathe, Tymoll, Macestown, Dowth, Rathkenny, Killmessane, Rathconnel, Castletown, Killowane, Croyaneston, Kilcowle, Hollywood, the Grallach, the Naul, Cowlage, St. Mary and St. Peter, in Drogheda, Julianstown, Mullengar, and Maghericloo, in Ferine, in the counties of Louth, Meath, Westmeath, Dublin, Monaghan, and King's County. And his Majesty having granted, 21st February, 1610, to Henry King, Gent. one great house, called the Fermory, &c. in or near Dublin, parcel of the possessions of St. Mary's Abbey; whose interest by mean conveyance being passed to Sir Gerald Moore, the King, lest any imperfection might make the said patents defective, was pleased to grant him a new one, 9th February, 1619, of the Abbey of Mellefont, and all the aforesaid premises, which were very large, to hold in common socage, at the yearly rent of 694l. 0s. 3d. 2q. Irish, twenty pecks of corn, and to furnish and maintain two horsemen, and one archer for ever.

In 1616, Sir Garrett was Captain of twenty-five horse at 4s. a day; and his Majesty taking into consideration his great and manifold services to the crown, was pleased, in testimony of the favour he bore him, to create him and his heirs male, Baron Moore, of Mellefont, by privy seal, dated at Newmarket, 15th February, 1615,<sup>r</sup> and by patent, at Dublin, 20th July, 1616; the day after which (being Sunday), his Lordship and the Lord Ardee, was so created by the Deputy, after a sermon preached in St. Patrick's cathedral by Dr. James Usher, then Chancellor of that cathedral, from these words, Acts xvii. 11. There were more noblemen than they which were at Thessalonica. By privy seal, dated at Westminster 5th January, 1621,<sup>s</sup> the King thus writes, "Whereas we did not long since give a royal testimony to the world of the gracious opinion we had conceived of our right trusty and well-beloved Sir Garrett Moore, of Mellefonte, whereby, for the eminency of his own virtues, and the good services done both by himself and his ancestors to our Crown, we were pleased to advance him to the dignity of a Baron of that our realm; forasmuch as his accustomed zeal and integrity to our service, together with his porte and carriage since that honour was conferred upon him, have made him in our princely judgment worthy of a greater, we are therefore pleased to create him a Viscount of that kingdom; these are therefore to require you, &c." He was accordingly created Viscount Moore, of Drogheda, by patent, 7th February, 1621.<sup>t</sup>

The L. D. Falkland making a progress to oversee the late plantations, and to settle the government in those remote parts, for the administration of justice, preservation of peace, and other causes touching his Majesty's special service, the Lord Drogheda was appointed, 15th July, 1624, one of the commissioners and

We do therefore let you know, that we have taken into our consideration, the great and manifold services, performed to us and our crown, by our trusty and well beloved subject, Sir Geratt Moore, of Mellefont, Knt. and in testimony of the favour we bear him, and of our gracious accepting of those his faithful endeavours in our service, we have thought fit to advance him to the state and dignity of a Baron of that kingdom." years of age at his father's death,<sup>m</sup> and 13th August, 1628, appointed one of the commissioners for the granting anew of the escheated lands in Ulster;<sup>n</sup> was present in parliament 14th July, 1634;<sup>o</sup> and 24th, was appointed one of the committee of grievances, and for taking into consideration such acts as were fit to be propounded to be passed, and such statutes as, being in force, were fit to be repealed; he was again present 4th November, the first day of the second session, at which time he was of the Privy-council, and a member of the committees for grievance and privileges.<sup>p</sup> In 1640, he was Captain of sixty-three carbines, with the pay of 11. 4s. a day, and five spare horses, at two shillings a day each; and from the breaking out of the rebellion to the time of his death, acted with great resolution and vigour against the abettors of it.

His Lordship, 26th October, upon the first discovery of the rebellion, having notice of the imprisonment of his sister, Blayney, and her children, with the surprisal of her castle, the towns and castles of Newry, Carrickmacross, Charlemount, Monaghan, Tanderagee, Mountjoy, Cloghwoter, Dungannon, and many other places of strength in the North, he went from Mellefont to Drogheda, in the midst of the night, with his troop of sixty-six horse, very completely provided, and on his arrival summoning the mayor and aldermen, excited them to a speedy and vigorous preparation for their defence, who gave him indeed fair promises, but their actions being no way correspondent (not above forty men, very ill armed, being mustered by the town), he advertised the state, of the bad condition, and imminent danger the place was in; which it was not possible to preserve without further strength, both of horse and foot; for, should the enemy make any sudden approach, or attempt to surprize the town, he found such poor preparations for defence within, such apparent signs of disloyalty, and all things in so desperate a confusion, that, with his best endeavours, he should not be able to give a good account of the place. However, he was so far from being discouraged, that conceiving his presence necessary, he removed his family thither; prepared some old ordnance for use, and had them mounted; the walls repaired; and the ditch scoured; but finding all ineffectual without further succour, he rode to Dublin in a dark night, and so effectually represented both the weakness and importance of Drogheda, offering in the council-chamber this very exemplary motion, to augment his own troop to 100 horse, and to raise 100 foot at his own charges, that he obtained a promise of speedy succour; the state in a few days raised a regiment of 1000 foot, and placed them under the command of Sir Henry Tichburne, who had a commission of government for the town, with which he arrived 4th November; and in the mean time, Captain Seafowle Gibson, having a commission and arms for 120 men, raised them in Drogheda in the space of two hours, who that very night were set on the watch, and kept to so hard duty, that his Lordship and the Captain watched ten nights successively, and in several sallies killed 200 rebels, and took eighty prisoners, of whom six only suffered death.

His Lordship made another journey to Dublin, to be present at the second session of the parliament, which sat 4th November; and generously offered (seeing Sir Henry Tichburne's regiment was not sufficient to secure the town), to raise and clothe 600 men; to make fourteen independent companies at Drogheda a complete regiment, by which the whole county of Louth might possibly have been secured; but this offer was not accepted. However, his affections to the King, and detestation of the rebellion, were so fully discovered to the rebels, by these earnest and noble offers, that, taking the advantage of his absence, they sat down before his house of Mellefont, on Sunday, 24th November, with 1300 foot, intending to surprize it; which (after a very brave defence, so long as their powder lasted, from the few left to guard it, consisting only of twenty four musketeers and fifteen horsemen), was entered with great cruelty and slaughter of the foot, who yielded on quarter (the horse vigorously charging through the enemy, got safe to Drogheda), and Colonel Coll Mac-Brian Mac-Mahon, with his soldiers, destroyed and carried away of goods and cattle to the amount of 2000*l*. and killed twenty-eight of his Lordship's servants, the most of whom they would not suffer to be buried.

The rebels, to the number of 1400, 30th November, besieged Drogheda, which they reduced to extreme distress; forcing them to subsist on the flesh of dogs, cats, and other animals; and 12th January, by the assistance of their Popish friends in the town, having made a breach in an obscure part of the wall, 500 of them marched, at four o'clock in the morning, so far into the town, that thinking it their own, they alarmed the governor by a great shout, who running down stairs with his pistols in his hands, and being seasonably joined by the Lord Moore with fifteen horse, they put them to flight, with the loss of above 200, and some officers; which, with other successful sallies, so-dispirited the Irish, that they drew off with great loss, before the Earl of Ormond, who intending to raise the siege, marched out of Dublin.

March 1st, with Sir John Borlace, in a sally he took the castle of Colpe; and 5th, routed his ungrateful tenants near Tullagh-allan, on the north side of Drogheda, with the slaughter of seven officers, and near 400 soldiers; taking prisoners, Captain Rory Mac-Arte Mac-Cross Mac-Mahon, and Barnewall, of Ratheskett, with good store of arms, whereby the siege of Drogheda was raised, and the garrison was at leisure to visit the enemy's quarters; in this action he exposed his person to great danger, and being known, was surrounded by about 200 of the enemy, who endeavoured to seize him, crying out, This is my Lord Moore, when he had but seven horse in his company, the rest being engaged at a distance; yet he retreated not, but charging them, many were killed, and the rest scattered.

On the taking of Dundalk soon after (in which he had a share), Sir Henry Tichburne was left with a sufficient force to preserve it, and the present government of Drogheda was committed to his Lordship; at which time the Earl of Ormond, in a council of war, resolved to prosecute the rebels; but that Lord being summoned to Dublin on affairs of great importance, the work fell wholly on the Lord Moore and the Governor, who were recruited with four companies of 1000 foot, two troops of 200 horse, and two pieces of battery; so that 21st March he burned the country about Slane; entered Ardee the 23d, with the slaughter of about 400 Irish, his Lordship doing much execution with his own hand; and being certified that 1300 rebels were fortifying the town of Navan, he marched the 25th, early in the morning, with 200 horse, some dragoons and musqueteers, drew up within half pistol shot of the gates, killed twenty men, fired the country, and returned with a large supply of cows, and 600 sheep.

the county of Louth, and barony of Slane, whereof he had a grant by commission, 10th September,<sup>r</sup> with the fee of 10s. a day, and power to prosecute all rebels, traitors, &c. in consideration, as his Majesty expressed himself, “ That to the hazarding himself, and the loss of all his estate, he had contributed very much, as well before as during the siege of Drogheda, to the preservation of that town, and performed many other acceptable services there, since the beginning of that detestable rebellion, towards the suppression thereof, for his better encouragement to proceed cheerfully in the said service, and to the end he might be the better enabled thereunto.”

In August same year, with 1500 men, and four pieces of cannon, he took the strong castle of Seddan, with the slaughter of 500 men, whereupon the Lords Gormanston and Netterville, quitted the fort of Nobber, and the castle of Newtown; by which the counties of Louth and Meath were cleared of the enemy. But after performing many brave and signal services, he lost his life, 7th August, 1643, at Portlester, in Meath, by a cannon-shot, as he was upon an eminence, giving directions for the assault.

He married Alice,<sup>s</sup> younger daughter of Sir Adam Loftus, Viscount Ely, and by her (who broke her leg near the foot, by a fall from her horse, occasioned by a sudden grief arising on the first sight of St. Peter's church in Drogheda, where her dear Lord lay buried, on Wednesday, 10th June, 1649, and dying 13th, of a gangrene, was that night buried by him in the family tomb), he had five sons, and four daughters; viz.

Third, Garret Moore, of Ardee, Esq. an officer for the reduction of Ireland before 5th June, 1649; after that was brought about by the parliament, he was permitted, 9th March, 1654, to compound for his estate, at two years and six months purchase, amounting to 1023l. 16s. and died without issue in 1665.<sup>t</sup>

On 11th January, 1642-3, he was chosen one of the commissioners, to receive the propositions of the Irish confederate recusants; and in 1645, repairing to the court in England, the King (he being under age), favoured him with a special livery of his estate. In 1647, upon the surrender of the government to the English parliament, he had the command of a regiment given him, with which, in 1649, he helped to reduce the kingdom: his estate was afterwards sequestered by the parliament; but, upon his petition, 8th April, 1653, he was permitted to enjoy one full third part thereof, and to receive the issues and profits till further order, paying contribution and other country charges; also, upon his further setting forth, that his estate was extended for the satisfaction of a debt to Walter Burrowes, and others, and liable to several other burthens, whereby he was reduced, and like to continue in a very sad and distressed condition, without any manner of relief for the support of himself and family; the government, 10th October, 1653, ordered, that his house of Mellefont, the park, with the deer therein, and 300 acres of land, in such places next adjoining and lying close together, as he should chuse, should be exempted from the power of such extents, for the maintenance of himself and family. And further, upon his petition touching a composition for his estate, an order of reference was directed, 10th January, 1654, to the commissioners general of the revenue, requiring them to consider thereof; who returned, that the total of his yearly estate did amount to 4087l. 15s. and that the yearly quit-rents payable thereout were 611l. 3s. 6d. that he might be admitted to compound for the remainder, being 3476l. 11s. 6d. at two years purchase, amounting to 6953l. 3s. And his Lordship returning his personal estate to be worth 200l. only, he was to pay 20l. for that by way of fine, for which he had an order of composition, 5th February, to pay the same as follows; viz. 2000l. on 1st August, 1654; 2000l. 1st February, 1655; 2000l. 1st August, 1656; and 973l. 3s. at or before the end of two years from 1st February, 1654.

January 20th, 1656, he was made C. Rot. of the county of Louth; after the restoration (19th February, 1660), Captain of a troop of horse, Governor of Drogheda, and of the aforesaid county; and for his services and affections to the King and his country, was advanced to the dignity of Earl of Drogheda, by patent dated 14th June, 1661. In the parliament of that year, 1st July, his Lordship, with others, was appointed to take into consideration the smallness of the salaries of the judges, and masters of the chancery, and the fees of the several officers of the courts, and to report what regulations were fit to be made. On the 17th, he reported that the committee found the fees of the judges and masters in chancery to be inconsiderable, and therein had made such an addition as might make their maintenance comfortable, and answerable to that dignity and trust which his Majesty had given unto them. On the 23d, he was joined with the Lords Howth and Kingston, to join with a committee of the House of Commons, in a request to the L. Lieutenant for licence to transplant wool into England as formerly, in order to remedy the great inconveniencies that arose to the trade of Ireland, by obstructing the same.<sup>a</sup> On 22d May, 1662, he was one of the Commissioners entrusted for satisfying the personal arrears of the commissioned officers who had served the Kings Charles I. and II. in Ireland, before 5th June, 1649, as he was again 26th October, 1675; and 20th October, 1663, made C. Rot. of the county of Louth.<sup>b</sup>

His Lordship married Alice,<sup>c</sup> fifth daughter of William, Lord Spencer, of Worm-Leighton (sister to Henry, created Earl of Sunderland), by the Lady Penelope Wriothesley his wife, eldest daughter of Henry, Earl of Southampton, and sister to Earl Thomas, Lord High Treasurer of England,<sup>d</sup> who died in 1667; and deceasing 11th January, 1675, had issue three sons, and three daughters; viz.

<sup>c</sup> After the troubles of 1688 were ended, her Ladyship preferred a petition to King William, setting forth, that she had lost the benefit of her jointure, being 1000*l.* a year for three years, the loss of which, being all she had to live on, had reduced her to a very low condition, and prayed to have a grant of such debts as were due to her grandson, Lord Slane, when she was his guardian, out of the estates of Randal, Marquess of Antrim, and Sir John Fleming, Knt. whereupon, she had a grant, 15th October, 1694, of 2000*l.* out of the said debts, upon the report of Sir Richard Levinge, Solicitor General (to whom her petition was referred), that she had lost upwards of 2500*l.* and that the said Lord Slane, being indicted and outlawed of high treason, his real estate was granted to Godart, Earl of Athlone; but not the personal estate. THE paternal name of the late Marquis of Ely was TOTTENHAM, which he exchanged for that of LOFTUS, in right of his mother, who became the heiress of that noble family, in whom the Irish peerage was several times extinct, and revived.

The noble family of LOFTUS is descended from

EDWARD LOFTUS, of Swineshead, in Yorkshire, who had issue two sons; viz. First, Robert, ancestor to the first Viscounts Ely.

Second, Adam, Archbishop of Dublin, ancestor (in the female line), to the present Peer.

ROBERT LOFTUS, eldest son, had three sons.

First, ROBERT, Serjeant at Law, who died September 5th, 1602.

Second, Adam, created Lord Elye.

Third, Francis, who, 22d February, 1609, had a pension of 2s. a day. He died July 14th, 1629, having issue by his wife, Isabella, daughter of William Usher, Clerk of the Council (who was buried at Christchurch, in November 1597), two sons, and six daughters; viz. Arthur, Adam, Mary, Jane, Margaret, Alice, Eleanor, and Anne.

ADAM Loftus, first Viscount Elye, second son of Robert, was created LL.D. made Judge of the Marshal-court, 17th September, 1597, and 8th November, 1598, a Master in Chancery; was knighted in the reign of King James I. and in 1603, was made KEEPER OF THE GREAT SEAL, appointed of Council to the Earl of Thomond, President of Munster; represented the King's County in parliament; was called into his Majesty's Privy-council; and 13th May, 1619, constituted LORD HIGH CHANCELLOR OF IRELAND; in which office his conduct was so acceptable to the King, that he rewarded his services and merits with the title of Viscount Loftus of Elye, by privy seal dated at Westminster, 23d April,<sup>a</sup> and by patent 10th May, 1622, on 4th of which month he was appointed one of the L. J. and being continued in his post of Lord Chancellor by King Charles I. 11th April, 1625, was again L. J. of the kingdom in 1629 and 1636.

On the breaking out of the rebellion, his Lordship signed the proclamation 23d October, 1641, notifying the discovery thereof, and requiring all men to stand upon their defence; but before 5th February following, he lost by the rebels to the value of 8330l. and 2106l. a year, and leaving the kingdom to avoid the storm, died at Midlam, in Yorkshire, and was buried in the church of Corkham.

He married Sarah, daughter of — Bathow, and widow of Richard Meredyth, Bishop of Leighlin, and by her, who died 1st August, 1650, had issue four sons, and two daughters.

First, Sir ROBERT, the eldest son, was knighted by the L. D. St. John; he married Eleanor, eldest daughter and coheir to Francis, son of Sir Francis Ruish, of Castle Jordan, Knt. who died 18th November, 1629, and he deceasing at Mellefont, 11th October, 1640, before his father, was buried in St. Patrick's cathedral, Dublin; having issue by her, who died 27th May, 1639, one son, and one daughter; viz.

HENRY, who died young, 9th November, 1640, before his grandfather. And,

Anne, born in 1626, became heir, and was married to Richard Lennard Barrett, of Bell-house, in the county of Essex, Esq. to whom she carried a considerable estate at Clounes, in the county of Monaghan; she died 4th April, 1659, and was buried at St.

<sup>a</sup> There is no preamble to the patent, but the privy seal we insert verbatim :
 “ Among others of our best deserving subjects in that kingdom, we have for many years together, taken especial notice of the faithful and industrious services performed, in many kinds, by our right trusty and well beloved Sir A. Loftus, Knt. our Chancellor of that our realm; and in a gracious consideration of his merits, we are pleased out of our goodness and favourable respects to him, to look beyond himself, and to add to that eminent office of Chancellor, which we have bestowed upon him, such a title of honour as may descend upon his posterity, for his sake; that thereby his virtues may be recorded to future ages, so long as there shall remain an heir male of his house.” (Rot. anno 20 Jac. I. 1a. p. d. R. 9. both privy seal and patent.)

Audoen's Dublin, having had issue by him, who died in 1696, Dacre, who married Jane, daughter of Arthur, Earl of Donegal, and from him descended the Lord Dacre, of Bell-house, in Essex; a daughter, Anne, married to Carew Mildmay, of Mark's-Hall, in Essex; and Richard and Dorothy, who died unmarried.

Second, Edward, the second son of the Lord Chancellor, succeeded to the title.

Fourth, Francis, the fourth son, died 1st December, 1629.<sup>b</sup>

The daughters were, Lettice,<sup>c</sup> first married to Lieut.-Colonel Philip Fernley; and, secondly, to Nathaniel Desborough; and the younger daughter, Alice, married Charles, Earl of Drogheda, and carried the Elye estate into that family.

Rot. of the county of Kildare; married Jane, daughter and coheir to Arthur Lyndley, of Midlam-Castle, in Yorkshire, Esq. and dying on Easter-Day, 11th April, 1680, æt. 82, was buried 22d of that month in the chancel of the church of Monaster Evan,<sup>d</sup> having issue by her (who died 14th November, 1614, and was buried with him, having made her will 27th October, proved 23d November, 1684, and bequeathed 100l. to her daughter, Kirk, and the like sum to her daughter, Alice Fernley; 20l. to the poor of the parish of Monaster-Evan, and left her son, Arthur, Viscount Elye, executor and legatee);<sup>e</sup> one son, Arthur, who succeeded to the title.

And two daughters; Sarah, who was first married to Charles Kirk, and had issue a son, Charles;<sup>f</sup> she became afterwards the wife of Henry Townley, of Athclare, in the county of Louth, Esq.

And the second daughter, Alicia,<sup>g</sup> married to her first cousin, Henry, son of the aforesaid Philip Fernley, by whom she had the Rev. ARTHUR, the third Viscount Elye, married, first, Douglas, daughter and heir to William Savage, of Castle-Rheban, in the county of Kildare, Esq. but had no issue by her, who was interred at Monaster-Evan; secondly, in December, 1676, Anne, daughter of William Hawkins, Esq. aunt to the late Sir William Hawkins, Ulster King of Arms, and widow of Sir Andrew Owens, Knt. who was drowned in a boat near Sutton, county of Dublin; and by her, who died 17th March, 1702, and was buried at St. Werburgh's, Dublin, in her father's vault, had issue two sons, and a daughter; viz.

We return now to ADAM LOFTUS, second son of Edward, of Swines-head aforesaid, which Adam was born at Swines-head, and receiving a liberal education in the University of Cambridge, by a more than ordinary allowance for his support in his studies, he appeared to advantage before Queen Elizabeth, at a public act, by performing his part as a florid orator and subtle disputant, which so engaged her Majesty's approbation of his early abilities, joined to a comely person and address, that she encouraged him to proceed in the course of his studies, by a gracious promise of his speedy preferment. Accordingly, her Majesty soon after sent him to Ireland, in quality of Chaplain to Thomas, Earl of Sussex, L. L. where his first provision was the Rectory of Painstown. in the diocese of Meath, to which he was presented 8th October, 1561 (3 Eliz.), and by privy seal, dated 30th of that month, was nominated to the Archiepiscopal See of Armagh (being styled therein Professor of Divinity), but did not receive his mandate for consecration and investiture until 20th of January, 1562 3, which was then dated at Westminster, and his writ for restitution to the

He served in parliament for the borough of Clonmines; and having succeeded to the estates possessed by his uncles, Nicholas and Henry, late Earls of Ely, in the counties of Wexford and Fermanagh, he assumed their surname, and was advanced to the dignity of a Baron of Ireland, pursuant to privy seal, at St. James's 3d May, and patent at Dublin 28th June, 1785,<sup>n</sup> and by the title of Lord Baron Loftus, of Loftus-Hall, in the county of Wexford, he had his introduction to the House of Peers 2d July, 1785.<sup>o</sup>

On December 24th, 1789, he was created Viscount Loftus of Ely; on February 15th, 1794, he was further elevated to an Earldom, by the title of Earl of Ely; and on December 29th, 1800, was created Marquis of Ely. On January 19th, 1801, he was advanced to a British Peerage, by the title of BARON LOFTUS, of Long Loftus, in Yorkshire.

His Lordship was sworn of the Privy-council in Ireland, appointed a Governor of the county of Wexford; and in January, 1789, was constituted joint Postmaster-General with the Right Hon. William Brabazon Ponsonby.

In June, 1766, he married Jane, elder daughter and coheir to

BUTLER, LORD BUTLER.

[Earl of Ormond, in Ireland.]

THE original descent of this illustrious family is diversely deduced by genealogists,<sup>a</sup> but we shall begin with HERVEIUS, who <sup>a</sup> “ We are told, that Mr. Roberts, Ulster King of Arms, in Ireland, took a great deal of pains in compiling a Genealogical History of the family of Ormond, wherein he labours to prove, that the name of the family was originally Walter, or Water; and in support of this, he brings a great number of instances, from which it appears, that Theobald, after he was Butler of Ireland, subscribed Theobald Walter, to charters of King John; and he likewise shews, that his descendants preserved the surname of Walter, down to the time of James, the first Earl of Ormond, who styled himself, Jacobus Walter Pincerna Hiberniæ. We are, likewise, told in support of this notion, that Walter is also a name of office, and that it signifies the ruler over any of the King’s forests; and this upon the authority of Richard Verstegan: but as that writer is not very correct, I am apt to think he is a little mistaken here, and that the office he means was styled, not Walter, but Wal’dtgrave; and that Walter is a contraction or corruption of Waldtheer; i. e. the lord or owner of a wood, answering to the word Sylvester, Sylvius; so that taking this all together, it is not at all improbable, that the father of Theobald might use this surname. Sir Robert Rothe, who put the last hand to another very laborious account of the descent of this noble family, which was written by his father, a Barrister at Law, and Counsel to Thomas, Earl of Ormond, in Queen Elizabeth’s time, declares expressly for the surname of Becket, and will have Theobald, Butler of Ireland, to be the son of Walter Fitz-Gilbert, i. e. son of Gilbert Becket; and many writers concur in deriving this family from Walter Becket, a younger brother of Thomas, Archbishop of Canterbury. That the Earls of Ormond were descended some way or other from the family of Becket, is asserted in an act of parliament; but this does not prove the surname of the family was Becket, since they might be descended as well by marriage; which notion may be supported from two pedigrees, wherein it is so laid down: but as these pedigrees are inconsistent with each other, so the Rev. Mr. Carte is unquestionably proved by Sir James Ware, and William Roberts, Esq. Ulster King of Arms in the reign of King Charles I. and by the indisputable authority of ancient records, to be the true and direct ancestor of the family.

He accompanied the Conqueror in his expedition to England, and obtained large possessions in the counties of Norfolk, Suffolk, and Lancaster; in which he was succeeded by Herveius Walter, his son, having also a daughter, Alicia, who became wife of Ormus Magnus.

HERVEIUS WALTER (which continued the surname until disused by Edmond, Earl of Carrick), when (according to the custom), the Christian name only was to be used with the title), married Maud, eldest daughter of Theobald de Valoines, and had issue five sons;

First, Theobald, the first Butler of Ireland.

Second, Hubert. Third, Walter. Fourth, Roger. And, Fifth, Hamon.

Hubert, the second son, was born at West-Derham, in Norfolk, where he built a monastery; and encompassed the Tower of London with a strong wall and deep moat: he was brought up, with his brother, Theobald, under Ranulph de Glanville, Justice has clearly shewn, that they are irreconcilable to truth. But the Rev. Mr. John Butler, a clergyman in Northamptonshire, being dissatisfied with all the accounts he had met with, and even with that of the famous Sir William Dugdale, who to say the truth, speaks very cautiously of this family, being sensible of the imperfections of his materials, resolved to set this whole matter in a new light; and the story he tells is this: That Richard I. Duke of Normandy had, besides his son, Richard II. by Gunora, another son by a Lady whom he does not mention, whose name was Geoffrey, Count of Brionis; who had issue Gisslebert, who was guardian to William the Conqueror. He had also two sons; Richard, Earl of Clare, and Baldwin. This Richard, Earl of Clare, was Cupbearer to William I. and had five sons; Gilbert, Roger, Walter, Robert, and Richard: these two last mentioned often supplying their father's place, took from thence the surname of Bouteillers. Robert, after his father's death, became Cupbearer to Henry I. and had issue Walter, and other sons. Walter succeeded him as Cupbearer, and was Baron of Baynard Castle; and the eldest son, Theobald, the first Butler of Ireland. This reverend antiquary has taken a great deal of pains to shew, that the surname of Botiller was much ancients than the grant of this office to Theobald; whence he would infer, that the surname of the family was not either Walter or Becket, but Botiller or Butler. All this very eminently demonstrates, that it is a fruitless thing to expect either exactness or certainty in matters of this nature; and, indeed, having looked into the pedigrees of several families of this name in England, I find different accounts of its origin in almost every one of them." Kippis's Biogr. Brit. III. 56.

of England, his uncle by the mother's side; and in Henry II's reign, was one of the Barons of the Exchequer, and Dean of York; whence King Richard I. advanced him (1st November, 1189), to the SEE OF SALISBURY; and being taken prisoner in the Holy Land, where he commanded the English forces at the siege of Acon, was translated (while there), in 1193, to the SEE OF CANTERBURY; and on his return, made Chancellor, Chief Justice, and Treasurer of England; which last great trust he managed so well, that in two years (besides defraying the public expenses), he saved the King of his own revenue 110,000 marcs. He died of a fever, in July 1205, at his manor of Teynham, and was buried 13th, at Canterbury.

THEOBALD, the eldest son, attended King Henry II. into France, when that Prince came to an agreement with the French King on the behalf of Thomas Becket, Archbishop of Canterbury, murdered 28th December, 1171; and the next year accompanied him into Ireland, where he served in the reduction of the kingdom, and being rewarded with very large possessions, made it the place of his residence;<sup>b</sup> having also conferred upon him the BUTLERSHIP OF IRELAND, in the year 1177, whereby he and his successors were to attend the Kings of England at their coronation, and that day present them with the first cup of wine; for which they were to have certain pieces of the King's plate. Some time after, that King granted him the prisage of wines, to enable him, and his heirs, the better to support the dignity of that office.<sup>c</sup> In 1185, he was witness to a charter of King John, then Earl of Morton, to the canons of Lanthony, of the lands of Ballybenimmer, and other estates. In 1 Richard I. he accompted to the pipe-roll in the Exchequer 72l. 6s. 8d. of the suitage of the Knights of the honour of Lancaster. In 1194, he was appointed by his brother, Hubert, collector of the fees to be paid to the King by those who should perform tournaments, or feats of arms in England; viz. from an Earl, twenty marcs; from a Baron, ten; a Knight, who had lands, four; and a Knight who had no lands, two marcs. In that reign he was a benefactor to the abbey of Furnes, in Lancashire; was a person of large possessions<sup>d</sup> in

England and Ireland, being a BARON of both kingdoms; and, 6 Richard I. was appointed Sheriff of the county of Lancaster, in which office he continued to the first of King John inclusive, and founded a monastery therein at Cockersands, as he also did at Arklow, for Cistercian Monks,<sup>e</sup> endowing it with his lands on the South side of the river, the Salt Pits, and the island of Arklow, to found the abbey on. He likewise, in 1205, founded and endowed with all the lands of Wodeney O'Flinn, the impropriate rectories of Thurles and Arklow,<sup>f</sup> the Abbey of Wotheneys, or Woney (Abington), in the county of Limerick, having in the year 1200, founded and liberally endowed that of Nenagh, in the county of Tipperary, being a priory or hospital of St. John Baptist, for the maintenance of Augustine canons, with a provision, that at least thirteen sick persons should be maintained in the house, with the daily allowance of a loaf, drink, and a dish of meat; and as their possessions should increase, so the number of canons were to be augmented.<sup>g</sup>

In 1204, he gave two palfreys for license to go into England, and dying in 1206,<sup>h</sup> was buried in a tomb, made for him in Wotheneys Abbey. <sup>i</sup>He married Maud, daughter and heir to Robert de Vavasor, a great baron of Yorkshire (with whom he had the manors of Edlington and Newborough, and the lands of Bolton), and by her, who was afterwards married to Fulk Fitz-Warine,<sup>k</sup> had one son, Theobald, and a daughter, Beatrix, to whom he gave a large estate in marriage with Thomas de Hereford, after whose death she remarried with Sir Hugh Purcell, Knight.

THEOBALD, the second, was about six years of age at his father's death, and attaining his full age 5 Henry III. had a livery of his estate 18th July, 6th of that reign; and thereupon assumed shire, which was confirmed to him and his heirs by the charter of King Richard, 22d April, 1194;* to hold by the service of three Knights fees, and containing almost half that county. He had also a grant of the lands of Inchemelmoie, Kilpoch, Kylinewy, Stachmoyl, Voshehan, Kylcarnewy, and divers others, with the advowson of the churches, and all liberties, from Richard, Archbishop of Dublin, yielding to the Bishops of that See two marks of silver yearly, and to each of the cathedral churches two pounds of wax at Easter. And John, Earl of Morton, gave and confirmed to him the castle and town of Arklow, with the appurtenances, to hold by the service of one Knight's fee.

THEOBALD, the fifth honorary Butler of Ireland, was present in the Irish parliament of 1295, and stands the fifth on the roll. In the Spring of 1296, he attended the King in his invasion of Scotland, and accompanied him in all those expeditions, wherein Edinburgh, with the loss of 25,000 Scots, and all the fortresses of that kingdom were reduced; and gained a great reputation by his valour. In 1297, he<sup>p</sup> purchased from Philip de Rupella, the manor of Bree, in the county of Dublin, with all the lands of the Brinns; and also the cantred of Omany, in Connaught, the lands in Cronn, and divers others. <sup>q</sup>He died unmarried, at his manor of Turvey, 14th May, 1299, and was buried 27th, in Wotheneys-Abbey, being succeeded in estate, and the Butlership of Ireland, by his brother,<sup>r</sup>

EDMOND, Earl of Carrick, who, in 1302, sat in parliament as a Baron, by the name of Edmond le Botiller, and about the feast of St. Hillary that year, recovered the manor of Hollywood, near Ballymore, from Richard, Archbishop of Dublin (except the advowson of the church), reserving to the See two pounds of wax, and half an ounce of gold, yearly, and releasing all his right to one messuage and five acres of land, with their appurtenances, in Luske. He was knighted in London, by King Edward II. in 1309, and that year, with John, after Earl of Kildare, dispersed the rebellion in Connaught and Offaley; and in 1312, being L.D. he repressed the incursions of the Byrnes and Tooles, numerous and potent clans, and forced them to submit; and being a great encourager of servitors, made a noble feast at Dublin, on Sunday, 29th of September, 1313, when he created thirty Knights:<sup>s</sup> by patent, dated at Langley, 4th January, 1314, he was L. In 1302 he married Joan, daughter of John, the first Earl of Kildare, and by her had three sons, and two daughters;

First, James, his successor in the Earldom and Butlership of Ireland.

Second, John, who died in 1330, from whom the present Earl of Carrick derives his descent.

Third, Laurence, who on the vigil of St. Cecilia the Virgin, in 1329, with Sir Henry Trahern, were taken prisoners by O Nolan, in Sir Henry's house of Kilbegg; in revenge of which, his brother, James, wasted their country.

His daughter, Joan, was married, 1321, to Roger Mortimer, second son of Roger, brother to Edward, Earl of March.

———, to Sir Thomas Dillon, of Drumrany, ancestor to the Viscount Dillon.

JAMES, first Earl of Ormond, who succeeded, was under age at his father's death, but notwithstanding his nonage, had a license, 3d December, 1325, for the fine of 2000 marcs, to marry whom he pleased; and 1st March, 1326, had a grant and confirmation of the prize-wines; and was created Earl of Ormond (the north part of the county of Tipperary), by patent, bearing date, 2d November, 1328, at Salisbury, the King then holding a parliament there, with the creation-fee of 10l. a year out of the fee-farm of Waterford; and by patent, dated at Wallingford seven days after, in consideration of his services, and the better to enable him to support the honour, had given to him the regalities, liberties, knights fees, and other royal privileges of the county of Tipperary, and the rights of a palatine in that county, for life; which being re-assumed by that King, were restored to him again 23d April, 1337, and with the prize-wines (which were also re-assumed by the King, 17th November, 1343), were granted in fee to his son, James, and his heirs male, 5th June 1372 (46 Edward III.) in virtue of which grant they were enjoyed by the family until the year 1716.

In 1336 he founded the friary of Carrick-Begg, on the river

Suir, in the county of Waterford, for Franciscan Friars; to whom, 3d June that year,<sup>x</sup> he gave his castle and estate of Carrick, of which they took possession on Sunday, the feast of St. Peter and Paul.<sup>y</sup> He is characterised by Clynne, the Annalist, to be a liberal, amicable, facetious, and comely person, and dying in the flower of his youth, 6th January, 1337, was buried at Gowran; having, in 1327, married Elenor, second daughter of Humphrey Bohun, the fourth Earl of Hereford and Essex, High Constable of England (by Elizabeth his wife, seventh daughter of King Edward I.) and by her, who after married Sir Thomas Dagworth,<sup>z</sup> had two sons, and one daughter; viz.

First, John, born at Ardee on St. Leonard's day, 1330, died an infant.

Second, James. And,

Petronilla, the wife of Gilbert, Lord Talbot, ancestor to the Earl of Shrewsbury.

JAMES, the second Earl of Ormond, was born at Kilkenny, 4th October, 1331, and given in ward, 1st September, 1344, to Maurice, Earl of Desmond, for the fine of 2300 mares; and afterwards to Sir John Darcy, L. J. of Ireland, who married him to his daughter, Elizabeth. He was usually called the noble Earl, on account of his descent from the Royal Family; and by the Irish, James the Chaste, an appellation procured by his modesty and virtue. Through his extraction, and in recompence of his services, he obtained several grants of lands, and other favours, from King Edward III. and Richard II. April 18th, 1359, he was appointed L. J. of the kingdom; as he was again, 15th March, 1360, in which year he published proclamations, and made divers regulations, for the advancement of the English interest in Ireland; and did great service against the rebellious Irish in the provinces of Ulster, Leinster, and Munster. September 8th, 1361, Lionel, Duke of Clarence, third son of King Edward III. being made L. In 1632, he slew 600 of Mac Murrough's followers at Teigstaffen, in the county of Kilkenny; and 22d April, 1364, was appointed L. D. to the said Duke of Clarence; as he was L. J. 24th July, 1376, with the usual salary of 500l. a year; in which office he was continued by King Richard II. On 2d April, 1372, he was made Constable of the castle of Dublin, with the fee of 18l. 5s. a year; was summoned to the parliaments held by King Richard II.; and 16th January, 1381, had a commission dated at Cork, during pleasure, to treat with all rebels, English and Irish, though indicted and outlawed, and to grant them safe conducts, in order to reform them to peace, and preserve the tranquillity of the country; so as such treating should not tend to the prejudice of the King's faithful subjects.

He died 18th October, 1382 (or 1383), in his castle of Knocktopher (near which he had, in 1356, founded a friary for Carmelite Friars), and was buried in the cathedral of St. Canice, in Kilkenny.

By his said wife (who remarried with Sir Robert Herford, and by her deed, 5 Richard II. surrendered to her son all her dower in Ireland, except that of the prize wines), he had two sons,

First, James, his heir, then under age.

Second, Thomas, who by commission, dated at Kilkenny 25th May, 1389, was constituted, with Nicholas White, of Clonmell, the King's Justices in the county of Cork, during pleasure, to inquire upon oath, of all seditions, transgressions, felonies, oppressions, conspiracies, confederacies, and other crimes whatsoever, committed against the King or his liege people, and to administer justice throughout that county, &c.

And two daughters; Ellen, married to Gerald, Earl of Desmond, and died in 1404; and Joan, to Teige O Carrol, Prince of Elye, and died of the plague in 1383.

JAMES, the third Earl of Ormond, by building and making the castle of Gowran his usual residence, was commonly called Earl of Gowran; but, 12th September, 1391, he concluded the purchase of the castle of Kilkenny,<sup>a</sup> which became the chief seat of the family. He also built the castle of Dunfert (commonly called Danes-Fort), and in 1386, founded a friary of Minorites at Ailesbury, in Bucks. In 1384, he was deputy of the kingdom to Philip de Courtenay, the King's cousin; and, 25th July, 1392, again made L. J. as he was in 1401; and 26th October, 1404, on the departure of Sir Stephen Scrope to England. By commission, dated at Carlow, 12th February, 1388-9, he was appointed (by reason of the excessive losses and damages, sustained by the King's liege subjects in the counties of Kilkenny and Tipperary, by the Irish and English rebels), Keeper of the Peace, and Governor of those counties, and the people thereof, as well within liberties as without, with full power to treat with, to execute, to protect, and to give safe conduct to any rebels, &c. In 1397, he assisted Edmund, Earl of March, L. L. against O'Brien; and in 1399, took prisoner Teige O'Carroll, Prince of Elye, who escaping the year after from Gowran, was slain in 1407, by the L. D. Scrope. By commission dated at Kilkenny, 9th May, 1400, he, Sir Edward Perers, and others, were appointed Commissioners of Oyer and Terminer in the counties of Kilkenny, Wexford, Waterford, Tipperary, Cork, and Limerick; and, 30th May, 1404, a writ, dated at Trim, by Thomas, Earl of Lancaster, L. L. was directed to him and John Lumbarde, appointing them justices or commissioners of Oyer and Terminer in the county of Kilkenny, to adjourn the parliament summoned to meet at Kilkenny; and on the anniversary of St. Vitalis the Martyr, in 1404,<sup>b</sup> he held a parliament in Dublin, which confirmed the statutes of Dublin and Kilkenny, and the charter of Ireland. Being a mighty strong man, he is styled in some annals, the head of the chivalry of Ireland; which kingdom he governed to the content of the King, and his good subjects.<sup>c</sup>

He married Anne, daughter of John, Lord Welles, and dying 7th September, on the vigil of the Blessed Virgin,<sup>d</sup> 1405, at Gowran, greatly regretted, after his return from invading O'Connor's country, was there buried, leaving two sons, chard II. of whom mention will be made hereafter, as great grandfather of Pierce, eighth Earl of Ormond.

JAMES, the fourth Earl of Ormond, commonly called the White Earl, was a man of good parts, and master of a great share of learning (which at that time was very rare in noblemen), and before he attained his full age, was, on Whitsunday, 4 Henry IV. together with the King, knighted by John, Duke of Bedford, the King's uncle and regent; after which, returning into Ireland, he accompanied the deputy, Scrope, in his invasion of Mac-Murrough's territory, when that sept was routed, and O Nolan, with his son and many others, made prisoners;<sup>e</sup> and being informed, that Walter de Burgo and O Carrol had ravaged the county of Kilkenny, they marched to Callan with such expedition, that they surprised and defeated the rebels with the slaughter of at least 800. <sup>f</sup> On his return to Dublin, not yet being of age (for that year his wardship was granted to Thomas, Duke of Lancaster, son of King Henry IV.) he was left L. D. of the kingdom, his commission bearing date 18th December, 1407, 9 Henry IV. and held a parliament there, which again confirmed the statutes of Dublin and Kilkenny, and the charter granted under the Great Seal of England.<sup>g</sup> Richard Plantagenet, Duke of York, having a son born in Dublin, well known afterwards by the name of George, Duke of Clarence, his Lordship and the Earl of Desmond, were god-fathers. In harvest, 1412, he accompanied Thomas of Lancaster, Duke of Clarence, into France; in which year Henry V. mounting the throne, he was in great favour with that victorious Monarch;<sup>h</sup> by whom he was appointed L. L. by a very large commission, bearing date 10th February, 1419; and landing at Waterford 10th April, held a parliament 7th June, on St. Laurence's day,<sup>i</sup> which granted the King two subsidies, and to himself seventy marcs; after which, he made great preys upon O Reilly,<sup>k</sup> Mac-Murrough (who at that time made all Leinster tremble), Mac-Mahon, and others; for his services against whom the parliament granted him a further sum of 300 marcs, after the feast of St. Andrew.<sup>1</sup> On the nones of May 1421, a slaughter was committed on the family of the Earl, whilst L. L. near the monastery of Leys, where twenty-seven English were slain; the chief of whom were Purcel and Grant, noblemen, ten were taken prisoners, and 200 saved themselves by flight, in the castle; and 7th June, the Earl invaded Leys, and obliged the Irish to sue for peace.<sup>m</sup>

King Henry V. deceasing 31st August, 1422, his Lordship was continued in the government until the arrival of Edmond Mortimer, Earl of March, to whom, 9th May, 1424, he was made deputy, as he was the next year to John, Lord Furnival, and again 15th April, 1426; and 13th September following, he sent James Cornwalsh, Chief Baron of the Exchequer, to lay before the King and council the state of affairs, and to prosecute several matters relating to the benefit and preservation of the kingdom, for which he was allowed 6s. 8d. a day. Also, 28th August, 1427, he declared to the council, that he had expended forty marcs in resisting Gerald O Cavanagh, an Irish enemy, who had lately assembled a multitude of Kerns, to destroy the King's subjects; for which sum, he had a liberate 11th October following; and, the day after, another for fifty marcs, for maintaining and keeping in safe custody, divers Irish hostages, for the good conduct of Bernard Mac-Mahon and Neylan O Donnel, captains of their nations, Owen O Neile and Meiler Birmingham.

In 1440, he was twice again made Chief Governor; first, as L. L. and after as L. D. and that year had the temporalities of the See of Cashel granted to him for ten years, after the death of the Archbishop, Richard O Hedian. In 1443, he was again made L. L. and 24th June, 1444, he assembled at Drogheda many of the Privy-council, nobility, and gentry, of the English Pale, and declared, that he had now held the place of Chief Governor of the kingdom for the space of three years and more, and that it had pleased the King, by his letter and writ under the privy seal, sent by Robert Mansfield, Esq. groom of his bedchamber, to command him over to his presence, without delay or excuse, notwithstanding the commotions then subsisting in Ireland; wherefore he required of them, that they would declare before the said messenger, if he had committed, during his government, any extortion contrary to the laws, or had been remiss in executing the laws. Whereupon, after some time spent in consideration of his conduct, Sir James Allen declared, that there was not one there that could in any matter complain of him, but were all fully thankful to him for his good and gracious government; for the pains he had taken in defence of the land, having undergone great and continual labours; and had also, besides the allowance of the government, been at great expense for the honour of the King, and defence of the kingdom; and added, that if at that time he should leave the kingdom, it would be exposed to great danger; and desired, that Richard Wogan, Chancellor, father Hugh Middleton, or Robert Mansfield, would repair to the King, and procure a safe passage for him; and declare, that there was then great confederacy to destroy his liege subjects, and that if it pleased his Highness to give the L. L. leave to stay till Michaelmas, so that his subjects might gather in their harvest, it would be a great comfort to them, and confusion to their enemies. Upon this representation, the King dispensed with his attendance in England: but two years after (1446), some of the Lords and Commons petitioned his Majesty for his removal, setting forth, "That he was old and feeble, and had lost many of his old castles for want of defence, and therefore was not likely to maintain, much less enlarge, the King's possessions in Ireland." Upon this he was dismissed, though the bishop and chapter of Cork, the Corporations of Cork and Youghall, the Lords Barry, Roche, and others, gave a full testimonial of his great services; which, however, had this good effect, that the next year, when the Earl of Shrewsbury, L.L. accused him of high treason before the Duke of Bedford, Constable of England, in the Marshal's court, the King quashed the accusation; and examining the cause himself, was so fully convinced of its being founded in malice, that he ordered all the proceedings to be cancelled, and declared by patent, 20th September, 1448, "That the Earl of Ormond was faithful in his allegiance, meritorious in his services, and untainted in his fame; that no one should dare, on pain of his indignation, to revive the accusation, or reproach his conduct; and that his accusers were men of no credit, nor should their testimony be admitted in any case." And a writ reciting all this, dated 21st November, attested by his mortal enemy, Richard, Archbishop of Dublin, deputy to his brother, Shrewsbury, was sent to the Magistrates of Limerick, and other towns, to cause proclamation thereof to be made throughout the kingdom.

His Lordship was a great lover of history and antiquities, and gave lands for ever to the College of Herald's, for which, until the reformation of religion, he was prayed for in all their public meetings, and constantly after remembered as a special benefactor. He built the castles of Tulcophelin, Nenagh, Roscrea, and Templemore; and gave the manor and advowson of Huckcote, in Bucks, to the Hospital of St. Thomas D'Acres, in London, which was confirmed by parliament, 31 Henry VI. at the suit of his son.

He married, first, Johan, daughter of Gerald, the fifth Earl of Kildare, who dying, 3d August, 1430, was buried in the said hospital; and, secondly, in 1432, Elizabeth, daughter of William Beauchamp, Lord Bergavenny, and widow of John, Lord Grey of Wilton; but by her, who died 6th August, 1452, a few days before him, he had no issue; having by the first, three sons;

First, James. Second, John. And, 3. Thomas, successive Earls of Ormond.

And two daughters; Elizabeth, the second wife of John, the second Earl of Shrewsbury, and died on the Saturday after the nativity of the Virgin Mary,<sup>n</sup> in 1473; and Anne, who died unmarried, and lies buried in the church of Shene, in Surrey, under a marble gravestone, on the North side of the high altar, with this memorial:

He died at Ardee, 23d August, 1452, on his return from an expedition against Connor O Mulrian, and was buried in St. Mary's Abbey, near Dublin; being succeeded by his eldest son,

JAMES, the fifth Earl of Ormond, and EARL OF WILTSHIRE in England, who was born 24th November, 1420, and knighted when very young by King Henry VI. with whom he was in great esteem. He attended Richard, Duke of York, Regent of France, into that kingdom; and, in consideration of his adherence and fidelity to the Lancastrian interest against the House of York, was created a Peer of England, 8th July, 1449, by the title of EARL OF WILTSHIRE, to him and the heirs male of his body; and in 1450, constituted one of the commissioners, to whom the custody of Calais, the tower of Risebank, and Marches of Picardy, were

L. 12th May, 1453, for ten years; and that year going to England, he undertook, with the Earl of Salisbury, and other Lords, the guarding of the seas for three years, receiving the tonnage and poundage to support the charge thereof;* also 15th March, 1455, was appointed LORD HIGH TREASURER OF ENGLAND; and shortly after attended the King at the battle of St. Albaus, where the Yorkists prevailing, he fled, casting his armour into a ditch; yet, on a turn of affairs, was restored to his post of Treasurer, 37 Henry VI. and the next year created a Knight of the Garter, and made Keeper of the forest or park of Pederton, in Somersetshire, and of Cranbourn Chace, in the counties of Wilts and Dorset. He soon after fitted out five great ships of Genoa, to fight the Earl of Warwick's fleet, with which he sailed to the Netherlands; but returning before the battle of Wakefield, fought 31st December, 1460, he commanded one wing of the army, which enclosed and slew the Duke of York, father of King Edward VI. but 29th March, 1461, being at the bloody battle of Towton-Field, he was taken prisoner by Richard Salkeld; beheaded at Newcastle 1st May, and in the ensuing parliament, which met 4th November, attainted.

He married three wives; first, Avicia, only daughter of John Fitz-Alan, Earl of Arundel, Duke of Touraine, in France, and heir to her brother, Humphry, who died 16 Henry VI.; to his second, Avicia, daughter of Sir Richard Stafford, a great heiress; and to his third, Elenor, eldest daughter of Edmond Beaufort, Duke of Somerset, and Earl of Montaigne, in Normandy, and co-heir to her brother, Edmond, Duke of Somerset, beheaded 5th May, 1471, two days after the battle of Tewksbury, for his adherence to the Lancastrian line;† but having no issue, was succeeded by his brother,

JOHN, the sixth Earl of Ormond, and BARON ROCHFORD, who was knighted at Leicester by the Duke of Bedford, the King's uncle,‡ for his faithful adherence to King Henry VI. for which he was also attainted; yet by King Edw. IV. was restored in blood, and to all his estates, except the manor and hundred of Rochford, and other lands in Essex. That King was used to say of him, "That he was the goodliest Knight he ever beheld, and the finest gentleman in Christendom; and that if good breeding, nurture, and liberal

He was a perfect master of all the languages of Europe; and there was scarce a Court in it, to which that Prince did not send him as Ambassador; but, in a fit of devotion, making a journey to Jerusalem, he died in the Holy Land, 1478, unmarried, and was succeeded by his only brother,

Sir THOMAS Butler, the seventh Earl of Ormond, who was also attainted; but, in November 1485, restored by Henry VIIth's first parliament; and the statutes made at Westminster, 1 Edward IV. which declared him and his brothers traitors, were utterly abrogated. He was soon after sworn of the Privy-council of England; in 1491, accompanied the King with a powerful army, in aid of Maximilian the Emperor, against the French; in 1492, was appointed Chamberlain to the Queen; and in September that year, sent with Thomas Goldston, Prior of Canterbury, Ambassadors to Charles VIII. King of France, to transact a treaty between the two Crowns. In 1494, he accompanied the L. D. into Ulster, when the territories of O Hanlon and Magennis were wasted; and 14th October, 1495, was summoned as a Baron to the English parliament, by the title of THOMAS ORMOND DE ROCHFORD; and in 1497, sent Ambassador to the Duke of Burgundy.

He departed this life 8th August,<sup>r</sup> 1515, and was buried in the church of St. Thomas D'Acres, London, now called Mercer's Chapel, in Cheapside, with this epitaph to his memory, as preserved by Weever:

Sir JAMES Butler (eldest son of Sir Edmond Mac Richard), sided with the house of Lancaster against King Edward IV. for which he was attainted; but when that King was settled on the Throne, he overlooked this mistake in his conduct, and an act of parliament passed in Ireland, repealing all attainders, judgments, and outlawries, against him the said James Butler Fitz-Edmoud Fitz Richard; and the King, in consideration of his faithful services from that time, granted him, 11th April, 1468, among other things, the manor and advowson of Callan, for life: and 12th October, 1477, he was constituted by John, Earl of Ormond, his attorney and deputy, to manage his lands and jurisdictions in Ireland; by virtue whereof, he laid down a certain order for the reformation and good government of the town of Carrick. He was well beloved in his country, being a promoter of peace; was knighted, and built the castle of Nehom, near Gowran; but dying 16th April, 1487, was buried in the priory of Augustine Eremites at Callan, of which priory he was the founder. He married Sawe (Sabina), daughter of Donnell Reogh Mac Murrough Cavenagh, Prince of his Sept, and by her, who died in 1508, left issue two sons, and two daughters.

very great service in suppressing rebellions, and distributing justice to all good subjects. May 13th, 1524, he was made Lord Treasurer of Ireland; and the King conferring the title of Ormond on Thomas Bullen, Viscount Rocheford, at his earnest suit, did in lieu<sup>d</sup> thereof create Sir Pierce (who to satisfy the King's pleasure, had been contented to resign his ancient and rightful title of Ormond), Earl of Ossory by patent, dated at Westminster 23d February, 1527, with the creation annuity of 20l. out of the manor of Newcastle of Lyons, in the county of Dublin.

Soon after this he returned to Ireland, where, 13th May, 1528, he was chosen L. He was a man of unshaken honour and integrity; familiar and liberal to his friends; an enemy and severe scourge to rebels and malefactors; was very religious through the course of his life; and every year, in the last fortnight of Lent, retired from all business, and lay during that time in a chamber near St. Canice church, called Paradise; where, by prayers and alms, he prepared himself for the reception of the sacrament on the approaching festival of Easter. He and his Lady, with whom he lived many years in great honour and prosperity, planted great civility in the counties of Kilkenny and Tipperary; and, to give that people an example of industry, brought, from Flanders and elsewhere, artificers, whom they employed in their castle of Kilkenny, to work diaper, tapestry, Turkey carpets, cushions, and other like works, some whereof remained there till of late years. He married in 1485, Margaret,<sup>5</sup> second daughter of Gerald, the eighth Earl of Kildare, and dying in the favour of his Prince, and the love of his friends, 21st or 26th August, 1539, was buried under a monument in the chancel of St. Canice's church, leaving issue three sons, and six daughters; viz.

‡ She survived him a few years, and led a most exemplary life for charity and devotion; she built a school near the church-yard of St. Canice; rebuilt the castle of Gowran, and was called the great Countess of Ormond. Stanihurst thus writes of her: "The Earl was of himself a plain simple gentleman, saving in feats of arms; and yet nevertheless he bare out his honour and charge of his government very worthily, through the singular wisdom of his Countess; a Lady of such port, that all the estates of the realm crouched unto her; so politic, that nothing was thought substantially debated without her advice; she was manlike, and tall of stature; very liberal and bountiful; a secure friend; a bitter enemy; hardly disliking where she fancied, not easily fancying, where she disliked."

<sup>h</sup> RICHARD, first Viscount Mountgarret, the second son, is described to have been a Knight of goodly personage, and as comely a man as could be seen; he was a very honourable and worthy gentleman, and performed many great services to the Crown of England; as a recompense for which, the Lords of the Council, in their letter to the L. D. St. Leger, dated at Windsor 5th August, 1550, transmitted * the directions of King Edward VI. to create him Viscount Mountgarret,† posing a step, which appeared so destructive to his religion and interest. That this was his design, is manifest from his letter * to the Earl of Ormond, with the de-

* The letter runs thus: " My Lord, since I have been forced into this general cause by the example of some, as innocent and free from infringing of his Majesty's laws as myself, who have been used in the nature of traitors, I forbore, for avoiding your displeasure, to acquaint you with my proceedings and other motives therein: but now, for fear of being mistaken by the state, concerning my loyalty, and presuming of your Lordship's favour and good meaning towards me, I make bold to send you, here inclosed, an exact remonstrance of those principal grievances, that have procured this general commotion in this kingdom; where-with I shall humbly desire your Lordship to acquaint the L. J. and Council, to the end they may, by a fair redress of them, prevent the fearful calamities, that doubtless shall ensue for want thereof. It is not my case alone, it is the case of the whole kingdom; and it hath been a principal observation of the best historians, that a whole nation, how contemptible soever, should not be so incensed by any Prince or State, how powerful soever, as to be driven to take desperate courses, the event whereof is uncertain, and rests only in the all-guiding power of the Omnipotent. This has been most lively represented by the French Chronicler, Philip de Comines, in the passages between the Duke of Burgundy and the Switzers. I need not press this matter further (a word is enough to the intelligent), and I cannot harbour any thought of your Lordship, but that you are sensible of the miseries of this kingdom, whereof you are a native, and do wish the quiet and tranquillity thereof. I do, for a further expression of my own sincerity in this cause, send to your Lordship here inclosed my declaration and oath, joined with others, which I conceive to be tolerable, and no way inclining to the violation of his Majesty's laws, whereof I am and always will be very observant, as becomes a loyal subject, and

" My Lord,

Your Lordship's humble servant,

MOUNTGARRET."

In confirmation hereof, it appears from the deposition of William Parkinson, of Castlecomer, Esq. that so little were his Lordship's inclinations to take up arms against his Majesty, that Walter Butler, of Poolestown, Walter Bagenal, of Dunleckney, and Robert Shee, of Kilkenny, Esqrs. were the chief instruments that made him do so; and so high was the insolence of those rebels grown, that the deponent had read a petition of one Richard Archdecne, Captain of the Irish-Town of Kilkenny, and the Aldermen of the city, directed to the Lord Mountgarret and his Council desiring (among other things), that Philip Purcell, of Ballyfoile, Esq. his Lordship's son-in-law, might be punished for relieving the Protestants. Also, the titular Bishop of Cashel, Tullogh Oge O'Neile, brother to the arch rebel Sir Phelim, and the Popish citizens of Kilkenny, petitioned the rest of the council of Kilkenny, that all the English Protestants there should be put to death; whereclaration and grievances inclosed; and this he was the better enabled to do, by reason of his alliance to most of the gentlemen of the county of Kilkenny; who being generally of his religion, readily joined with him, and attended him with a numerous train to the city of Kilkenny, into which he was admitted, and there declared his reasons for taking possession of it, and entering into arms; and by public proclamation strictly enjoined all his followers, not to pillage or hurt the English inhabitants, either in body or goods; in which design he so far succeeded, that there was not the least act of bloodshed committed.

In the last session of whose parliament, held 13th June, an act passed for confirming the title of Ormond, of the following tenor, viz. "Whereas sithence the 9th year of the reign of the noble

Kilkenny being thus seized by his Lordship, he detached parties to secure other adjacent towns, which was done with such success, that in the space of a week, almost all the towns and forts in the counties of Kilkenny, Waterford, and Tipperary were in the power of these Irish forces; after which, being chosen by those who prosecuted the same cause, General of all the forces raised by the gentlemen of the country, he marched into Munster, and took Dodd's Castle, with the castles of Knockordane, Ballahey, and Mallow; but the county of Cork insisting upon making a General in their own province, he looked on himself to be principally levelled at, and retired with his forces into Leinster, where he met the Earl of Ormond with a powerful army, and gave him battle at Killrush, in the county of Kildare, 10th April, 1642; but being entirely defeated, he returned to Kilkenny, and was chosen President of the Supreme Council formed there in the Summer of 1642.

March 18th following, he was at the battle of Rosse, fought by General Preston against the Marquis of Ormond; and in 1643, with his son, Edmund (Roe), was at the taking of the castle of Borrass, in the Queen's County; and with the Lords Netterville, Ikerrin, Upper Ossory, and Castlehaven, at the siege of Ballynakill, which surrendered 5th May, after a siege first begun 26th November, 1641, during which time, about 900 men, women, and children, endured much want and misery, receiving very little relief from the state, and no arms at all; so that upon the surrender, 753 were alive, the rest being slain, and dead by sickness. He continued to act in this war, but with as great moderation and care of the distressed Protestants, as the violence of the times would permit him to exercise; and dying in 1651, was excepted (though dead) from pardon for life or estate by Cromwell's act of parliament for the settlement of Ireland, passed 12th August, 1652, having been outlawed before. He lies buried under a handsome monument in the chancel of St. Canice church, with this inscription:

unto Alderman Richard Lawless in excuse answered, that they were all robbed before, and he saw no cause that they should lose their lives; and at divers other times, when it was pressed that the English should be put to death, the Lord Mountgarret, with his son, Edmund, and his son-in-law, Purcell, by their strength, means, and persuasions, prevented it.

He acted in concert with his father during the progress of the rebellion; whose example he followed in protecting the English, and endeavouring to restore peace to the kingdom: "of which King Charles II. was abundantly satisfied, and particularly by certificate of the Marquis of Ormond, and other good testimonies, that he was very active and earnest to incline the Irish to a submission to King Charles I. in 1646, and did then solemnly publish the peace in the city of Kilkenny, whereof he was Governor, for which he was committed by the opposers thereof, who kept him in durance for the space of three months; yet, after the interruption of that peace, he used his utmost endeavours to restore it; corresponded with the Marquis, then L. L.; offered to come to him to Dublin; and followed him to France, where he tendered his service to the King; attended the Marquis to Ireland in 1648, and constantly adhered to his Majesty's authority, employing both his person and purse in his service; acting as Colonel of a foot regiment, and Captain of horse in his army, until the Marquis's recess from Ireland; with whom he went again into France, and attended his Majesty's fortunes abroad, serving as a Captain of foot in his army. And, that such Lords, who stand outlawed on record, shall not have privilege to sit in this House, but ought to be struck out of the roll of this House.† From which privileges (though the outlawry was reversed), this noble family was excluded, on account of their religion, except Richard, the seventh, and Edmund, the ninth Lord, who conformed to the established Protestant religion, in which persuasion he educated his son.

‡ November 15th, 1715, he complained to the House of Peers of a breach of privilege committed against him, when their Lordships appointed a committee to enquire whether his father, Richard, or any of his ancestors, under whom he derived his honour, is or were outlawed of high treason, and whether such outlawry or outlawries remain of force: and upon report from the said Lords committees, it appeared to the House, that the outlawry of Richard, Lord Viscount Mountgarret, for the rebellion of 1641, was not reversed. Whereupon, they ordered his Lordship's name to be expunged out of the list of Peers. But his Lordship at that time not being able to offer sufficient proofs of the reversal of the said outlawries, deferred doing so, until 5th October, 1721, when, by petition, he prayed the aforesaid premises to be taken into consideration, and to grant him a re-hearing. The petition was referred to a select committee of all the Lords present; and the Lord Viscount Strabane reported from the said Lords committees, that, on examination of the matter to them referred, and from the testimony of Mr. Thady Dunn, it appeared, that Philip Savage, Esq. in the year 1687, was Clerk of the Crown of the Court of King's Bench, and the said Dunn produced an affidavit, sworn by the said Philip Savage, before Godfrey Boate, Esq. one of the Judges of the said Court, 24th November, 1716, which the Lords committees thought proper to lay before the House, and is as follows:

not only refused to join with his kinsman, Thomas, Lord Offaley, in his rebellion, who earnestly solicited his concurrence by letter; but in his answer told him, he had rather in that quarrel die his enemy, than live his partner; and when that Lord thought to force him to a compliance, by invading his lands, he resolutely opposed him, and in an engagement at Jerpoint, near Thomastown, slew many of his followers; but being himself sore wounded, was carried to his house at Dunmore; and the enemy apprehending another battle with fresh forces, retired out of the country, and were soon after subdued.

He was created Viscount Thurles, by patent 2d January, 1535, the Privy Seal for which runs thus:

“ By the KING,

“ Trusty and right well beloved, we greet you well, and woll and cominand you, that with convenient speed ye, under our Great Seal, of that our land of Ireland, being in your custody, ye address out in due form, our letters patents for the creation to the honour, name, style, and dignity, of our right trusty and well beloved counsellors, the Lord Jamys Buttler, High Treasurer of that our land of Ireland, to the name of Viscount Durles, and the Lord Leonard Grey, Marshal and Lieutenant of our Army within the same, to the name of Viscount Grane, in like form and manner as was used in the creation of Viscount Gormanston. And these our letters shall be your sufficient discharge in this behalf. Yeven undre our signe at the town of Southamptone, the thirde day of October, the 27th year of our Reign.

“ To our Right Trustie and well-beloved counsellor of Trvmleston, Lord Chancellor of our land of Ireland, or to any other having the custody of our Great Seal.”<sup>1</sup>

May 31st, 1535, he was made joint Governor, with his father, of the counties of Kilkenny, Tipperary, and Waterford. In 1536, he timely opposed the disturbances in Munster, begun by James, Earl of Desmond; and the L. L. Grey going to England with the Fitz-Geralds, he marched to Clonmell, to extinguish the remains of their rebellion, which he did, by reducing Dungarvon, Youghall, Cork, and other places of strength; and restored peace and quiet to the whole country.

In consideration of his services to the Crown, he had a grant, 4th January, 1539, of the priory and rectory of Kenlis, &c. in the county of Kilkenny; the manors of Rathvillie, Clonmore, and other lands of the ancient possessions of the Earls of Kildare. Also, 5th May, 1542, the King conveyed to him and his heirs the moiety of the monastery of the Friars Minors of Clonmell, with all the lands thereto belonging, to hold by the eighth part of a Knight's fee.

He was commissioned, 8th August, 1539, to pursue and take into protection the rebels of Connaught, and such as were in arms in the South parts of Munster: and 10th April, 1543, was, by special commission, authorized to levy and lead men through the counties of Tipperary, Waterford, Cork, Kerry, Ormond, and Desmond; to imprison as he saw fit; to pursue and give protections for suppressing rebels, and quieting the country; and the next year was, with others, sent by the L. D. and council, into Clanrickard, to pacify a tumult raised there, after the death of Ulick, chief of that country, which he soon performed. In 1545, at the King's instance, he went General of the Irish forces into Scotland, in aid of the Earl of Lenox, with twenty-eighty ships, to recover that Earldom to Matthew Steuart, of which he had been dispossessed; but without success; for when he came upon the Scotch coast (where the Hamiltons had promised to deliver the castle of Dunbritton to Lenox), he perceived a vast army gathered to oppose him, whereupon, by common assent, he returned into England; and 17th October, 1546, himself and thirty-five of his servants were poisoned at a supper at Ely-House, in Holborn, of whom, James White, Steward of his household, and eighteen more died, and he languishing until the 28th, then deceased. His body was interred in St. Thomas D'Acres, according to the orders he had given in a codicil to his will, but his heart was brought into Ireland, and deposited in the cathedral of Kilkenny. His will, whereby he disposes of his estate, bears date 10th March, 37 Henry VIII. and the codicil, 18th October of that King; in which, after directing his burial, he says, "Item, That my sonne and heyre being in the Prince Grace's Court, shall have me basine and ewer, which I have here, a silver pott, a salte, a nywe boll, a trencher, and a spone of silver. Item, my wyfe to have me best bracelet of golde sent her for a token. Item, to me Lord Chancellor of England, me nywe gilded goblet, with the cover, for a token. Item, Mayster Fitz-Williams to have a nywe boll of them that were made of late, for a token. Item, Mayster Houthie to have his pension of twenty nobles yearly duryng his lyfe. Item, Lewes Bryane to have White's-Wall duryng his lyfe free, as he hath it before;" with several other legacies.

He married Joan, daughter and heir to James, eleventh Earl of Desmond, with whom he had the manors of Clonmell, Killsherlane, and Killfeacle, in Tipperary, and had a special livery of his estate (no date), granted by King Henry VIII.<sup>m</sup> and by her (who after married, first, Sir Francis Bryan, Knight Marshal of Ireland; and, secondly, Gerald, Earl of Desmond, and died in 1564), had seven sons; viz.

First, Thomas, Viscount Thurles, his successor.

Second, Sir Edmond Butler, of Roscrea and Cloughgrenan, who, in 1562, was in commission for preservation of the peace in the county of Carlow, during the Deputy's absence in the North against Shane O Neile; and in 1567 was knighted, and had a grant for the return of all writs in the cantreds of Oremón, Elyogerth, and Elyocarrol, in Tipperary: but after this, with his brothers, Edward and Pierce, he went into rebellion, raised great commotions in Munster, and was declared a traitor; yet, on his submission, being pardoned, and with his brother, Pierce, surrendering his estate to the Queen, 10th October, 1570, had a pardon (together with their brother, Edward), dated at Gorhambury, 12th March, 1573, of all their treasons,<sup>n</sup> after which he did great service in Leix against the O Mores. He married Eleanor, second daughter of Sir Rowland Eustace, Viscount Baltinglass, sister to James, Viscount Baltinglass (who was in rebellion against Queen Elizabeth, and died without issue); and dying at Ennisteige, was buried in the cathedral of St. Canice, leaving issue four sons, and two daughters; viz. First, Pierce, the eldest, to whom by indenture, 14th October, 1593, the Queen granted a lease in reversion for forty years, of Ballysax, in the county of Kildare, parcel of the possessions of the late Duke of Norfolk and the Lord Berkeley, who were coheirs, and then in lease for twenty-one years to Robert Nangle, Gent. After the death of Thomas, Earl of Ormond, earnest pretences were made to King James I. by the said Pierce Butler, who proved with much confidence, that he was the son and heir of Pierce Butler deceased, who was nephew to the said Earl, and had he lived, would have been the next heir male inheritable to that honour; and to himself, the right of the Earldom would now of right appertain, if he could prove himself to be the true and lawful son and heir of the said Pierce, by Mary his wife, now wife of one Molloy, the King, by letters from New Market, 5th February, 1623, directed a commission to issue, that this pretence in respect of the violation it had to a great family, should be duly examined, for discovery and manifestation of the truth; and accordingly, 12th May, 1624, the L. D. Falkland, Donogh, Earl of Thomond, Francis, Lord Aungier, Master of the Rolls, and Laurence, Lord Esmond, Privy Counsellors, were commissioned to examine the said Mary Molloy, and all other witnesses, as should be nominated by the said Pierce Butler, as they should think fit, for finding out the truth of the premises.<sup>o</sup> He left an only daughter, Ellen, married to John O Carrol, chief of his name, and she died in December 1620, leaving issue, John, Elizabeth, and Joan.<sup>p</sup> Second, James. Third, John. And, Fourth, Theobald, who all died without children; the last of whom had by patent, dated at Westminster 13th July, 1603, the titles of Ormond and Ossory entailed and secured to him, after the death of Thomas, then Earl of Ormond, without issue male; remainder to the heirs male of his great-grandfather, Pierce, Earl of Ormond and Ossory. He was also created, 4th August following by patent, at Westminster (or at Hampton-Court), Viscount Butler, of Tulleophelim, in the county of Carlow; of which county, 18th June, 1605, he was made Governor and L. L. He married his cousin-german, the Lady Elizabeth Butler,<sup>1</sup> only daughter of the said Thomas, Earl of Ormond; but dying soon after, in January 1613,<sup>r</sup> was buried in St. Canice church. The two daughters were, Joan (married to Teige, Lord Upper Ossory, died in 1631, and was buried at St. Canice's); Catharine, the fourth wife of William Fitz-John Eustace, of Castlemartin, in the county of Kildare, Esq. (father of Sir Maurice Eustace, Chancellor of Ireland), and by him, who died 25th June, 1635, she had no issue.<sup>s</sup>

Ellen, Ellane, and Ellice. Walter, who succeeded at Nodstown, was then twenty-one years old; had a special livery 26th November, 1634; and 20th February, 1637, in virtue of the commission for remedy of defective titles, and for the fine of 133l. 6s. 8d. Irish,<sup>z</sup> had a confirmation of his estate by patent; but engaging in the rebellion of 1641, went about New-Year's Day that year to the city of Cashell, and with others, rifled that place, with the murder of fourteen of the inhabitants. This branch of the family ceased in the time of King Charles II.

Fifth, James, who, 20th January, 1560, had a lease for twenty-one years, of the monastery and lands of Duiske, in the counties of Wexford and Carlow, at the rent of 15l. during the life of Charles Cavanagh, the late Abbot, and after his death 25l. a year, maintaining two able horsemen for the defence of Ireland, and reserving three couples of tithe corn;<sup>a</sup> which, with other hereditaments, on the recommendation of the L. Hellen, married in September 1740, to George Macnamara, of Conge, Esq. by whom she left Mary, Hellen, and Phœbe;<sup>d</sup> and Mary unmarried. The sons were, First, James Butler, of Killveleigh, and of Ballyadams, Esq. Page of Honour to King Charles II. who 10th March, 1692, married, first, Margaret, daughter of Caryll, Lord Viscount Molyneux, widow of Jenico, the seventh Viscount Gormanston; and, secondly, Mary Dennis, in England; and died, 3d January, 1738, æt. 94. Second, Thomas, Counsellor at Law, who died 18th May, 1746, unmarried, and was buried at Killardriff, near Killmoyler, in the tomb of his ancestors; he bequeathed his Tipperary estate to his nephew aforesaid, Stephen Creagh, now Stephen Creagh Butler; and his Queen's County estate to his natural son, William Butler.<sup>e</sup> Third, Captain John Butler, who went into Spain with his regiment, and having married Frances, daughter of Theobald Matthew, of Thomastown, Esq. left one son, James, who died unmarried; and two daughters, Elizabeth, married to Thomas Arthur, of Ballyquin, in the county of Clare, Esq. who left her a widow, 23d December, 1755, with one son, and one daughter, since deceased; she remarried with Mr. Luke Wall;<sup>f</sup> and Catharine,<sup>g</sup> to Mr. Benjamin Ellard, of Cork, who died in 1750.

THOMAS, the tenth Earl of Ormond, being at his father's death only fourteen years old, it was ordered by the state, that the L. company, at whose coronation, 20th February, 1546, he was made a Knight of the Bath; and was a youth of such hopes, that the King, 8th September, 1548, directed the L. D. Sir Edward Bellingham, to allow him 200 marcs a year during his minority; and 17th October, 1551, ordered a year's release of his wardship. He served as a volunteer under the Duke of Somerset in his Scots expedition, and behaved with great bravery in the battle of Musselburgh. In Queen Mary's reign he commanded a troop of horse, and gave extraordinary proofs of his fidelity and courage, as a Lieutenant of the horsemen, in suppressing Wyatt's rebellion in 1554; after which, in November, he came to Ireland, and in July 1556, accompanied the L. L. with a body of 200 horse, and 500 foot, which he maintained at his own charge against the Scots Islanders, who made a descent into Ulster, and besieged Carrickfergus, when he distinguished himself in the battle fought 18th of that month, in which the Scots were entirely routed: 10th August, 1557, he served against another body of them, who had invaded Tyrconnel; and soon after relieved the Earl of Thomond, besieged in his castle of Bunratty, and took the castle of Clare; after which, 20th June, 1558, attended with many gentlemen, he joined the L. L. in the county of Limerick, on his march against Donald O'Brien, the Earl of Thomond's uncle. This zeal and activity in the service of the Crown, induced Queen Mary to confirm his patent for the regalities and liberties of Tipperary, and the prize wines, 11th March, 1555; and 13th December, 1557, to grant the religious houses of Athassil, Jerpoint, Callan, Thurles, Carick, Kilcowle, and Tulleophelim, with all their hereditaments in the counties of Tipperary, Kilkenny, and Waterford; the manor of Kilrush, in the county of Kildare, &c. the monastery of Athassil, to him, his heirs, and assigns; and the rest of the premises to his heirs male, to hold by the service of the twentieth part of a Knight's fee, and the yearly rent of 49l. 3s. 9d. Irish. Which reserved rent Queen Elizabeth remitted, and confirmed the said grant, 8th March, 1562; having, 27th January, 1560, given him a discharge of all such sums, as he stood indebted to the Crown, for arrears of rent in the Exchequer, or any other Court, owing for the Earl, his father: and whereas in the time of Edward VI. he was appointed to repair to Ireland for service to be done there, one year before he had sued out his livery, during which time he had the farm of his own lands granted to him, the rents whereof for that year remained unpaid; the Queen, in consideration of his good service, discharged him from the same, as she also did the arrears of rent due upon certain lands, granted to him by Queen Mary: also, for his services against the traitors of Leix, by patent, dated 28th February, 1562, she granted to him and his heirs male, the abbey of Leix, in the Queen's County, with all its lands, estimated at 820*l.* and 3*d* October, 1563, in fee-farm, all the possessions of the monastery of the Holy Cross, advowsons of churches excepted. By privy seal, 30th June, 1569, as a reward for suppressing the rebellion of his brothers, who by strength of arms endeavoured to assume their right to a certain territory, claimed by Sir Peter Carew, which they could not maintain by the laws, he was restored to the prize wines of Youghall and Kinsale, which had been sequestered in 1563, on a claim laid to them by Garret, Earl of Desmond; and had his lands exempted from all cesses and impositions, subsidies to the Crown excepted, by reason of the damages he had sustained, and the impoverishment of his tenants by the rebels, which exemption was confirmed by King James, 5th December, 1611. He received other considerable grants from Queen Elizabeth; viz. 24th September, 1574, the estate of John Burnell, of Ballgriffin, in the county of Dublin, Esq. forfeited by treason, and three carracutes in Rathnemeddagh, county of Westmeath. And making suit to the Queen, that in consideration of his faithful services performed in the affairs of Ireland, she would grant to him in fee-farm 100*l.* Irish (in lands), a year, which grant she was pleased to make by privy seal at Greenwich, 7th July, 1513, containing the manor of Old-Rosse, and other lands: also 12th December, 1578, he had a grant of the rectories of Dunmore and Donaghmore, with many others in Kilkenny, Tipperary, Carlow, and Wexford; and at his Lordship's instance, King James I. by patent 26th November, 1604, granted to him and his heirs, all the premises contained in the patents of Queen Mary, by the twentieth part of a Knight's fee; and all contained in the patents of Queen Elizabeth, at the rent of 10*l.* 5*s.* Irish.<sup>h</sup> He continued in the esteem of Queen Elizabeth throughout her long reign; she considered him as her relation, and had the highest opinion of his capacity, fidelity, and zeal for her service, which he took all occasions to promote and advance, by suppressing the commotions in Munster, and elsewhere, of which our public histories relate many particulars, and shew his services to have been very considerable. (in the first year of her reign), made him Lord Treasurer of Ireland, in which post he continued to his death, and 30th of that month was sworn of her Privy-council. April 3d, 1563, he was joined with Richard, Lord Mountgarret, and others in commission, to preserve the peace in the counties of Kilkenny and Tipperary, during the Deputy's absence, against Shane O'Neile; 6th October that year, he was in commission to make inquiry in order to redress all offences in ecclesiastical matters; also, 21st November, 1564, was commissioned to prosecute and subdue, as notorious rebels and traitors, such of the O'More's and their adherents, as before the 28th of April preceding, had not submitted to the observation of such orders as were taken and concluded for them by the Earl of Sussex, L. L.<sup>i</sup> and was generally named in all commissions of public importance. In 1575, the L. D. Sidney appointed him L. L. of the counties of Kilkenny and Tipperary, whom, in November that year, he splendidly entertained in his castle of Kilkenny, when on his Leinster progress; and the O'More's having almost ruined the county of Kildare, Rory Oge, their chief, was prevailed on by his Lordship to come and submit to the Lord Deputy in Kilkenny. By patent, dated 6th January, 1578, he was made Governor of the province of Munster, when he subdued O'Sullivan More, took many of that sept prisoners, and delivered them to the L. L. Sussex; he also subdued Pierce Grace, Rory Oge, and the Mac Swiney's, and taking the Earl of Desmond prisoner, destroyed 46 of his captains, 800 notorious traitors, and 4000 common soldiers.<sup>k</sup> In 1581, the Queen constituted him Lord High Marshal of England, in which office he continued for a time, until (at his earnest suit), he was discharged; the cause moving him to surrender this honourable employment, was the apprehension that he should be tied to continual attendance in England, and thereby be made a stranger to his own country, a thought he could not endure. He arrived at Waterford about the end of January 1582, with a supply of 400 men, and a commission, appointing him General of Munster. He obtained also two-pence a day in addition to the soldier's pay, which, with permitting them to enjoy what spoils they took from the enemy, procured him the general love of the army.<sup>l</sup>

He was present in the parliaments of 1559 and 1583, sitting in both as Lord High Treasurer. August 15th, 1594, he was appointed Chief Leader (in the Deputy's absence), and commander of the forces in Leinster; and in 1595, the fort of Blackwater being destroyed by the Earl of Tyrone, his Lordship joined the L.D. at Ardee, in his march to relieve it, attended with 80 horse, and 200 foot, furnished and victualled at his own expence; and the L.D. returning from that service, left him with his men to defend the place, which having done, and supplied it in January following with ammunition and victuals for six months, he returned to Dublin, and<sup>m</sup> was made a Knight Companion of the Order of the Garter, 23d May, 1596; in the next year the rebels growing very formidable, and the Deputy, 13th September, marching into the North, his Lordship was appointed General of Leinster, but without either army or ammunition, which the L.D. took with him; a want, however, that he supplied, for he took the field at his own charge, where he continued all the months of October and November to cover the castles of Leighlin and Carlow; and in the beginning of December, was ordered to take on him the command of the army at Dundalk, having been, 29th October, by a particular commission, appointed Captain and Lieutenant-General of all her Majesty's forces in Ireland by sea and land; and by her letter from Westminster 15th November, had the principal charge of all martial services, with the entertainment of 100 mares by the month, thirty horsemen, and as many footmen in wages. After which, Tirôen applied to him to procure a commission to treat with him, which being obtained, they met at Dundalk, 22d December, and Tirôen making his submission in writing, a cessation of arms for eight weeks was concluded on nine certain articles, and his Lordship sending his submission and grievances to England, received authority to make a final conclusion with the rebels; meeting him again at Dundalk, 15th March, he received him and all the inhabitants of Tyrone to mercy, and upon his entering into conditions to renounce the name of O'Neile, to keep the peace, disperse his forces, &c. at his Lordship's instance a general pardon passed<sup>n</sup> to Tirôen, 11th April, 1598; yet, though he received it, being resolved to continue his disloyal courses, he never pleaded it; so that in the year 1600, he was outlawed upon an indictment brought against him in September 1595. He continued to prosecute the rebels with great vigour; and held, in 1599, all his castles in the county of Kilkenny, and six in Carlow, for the Queen; and the L.D. Mountjoy, arriving 26th February that year, his Lordship advertised him of Tyrone's motions in Munster, in which province he employed his forces so well, that in the beginning of January 1600, he expelled Redmond Bourke, and others, out of Ormond, with great loss; killed his brother, Thomas Bourke, and forced Redmond, with his company, into the river Nore, where seventy of his men were drowned, and all his baggage lost. But 10th of April same year,<sup>o</sup> going eight miles from Kilkenny, to parley with Owen Mac-Rory O'More, he was treacherously taken prisoner, and detained by him to 12th June, where he obtained his liberty by delivering hostages for the payment of 3000*l.* if he should seek revenge for that injury; but the custody of the provinces of Leinster and Munster being committed to him, his Lordship (notwithstanding his hostages were in Owny's hands, who in a little time found means to escape), abated nothing of his wonted activity and severity; and securing those parts by the submission of the rebels, went to defend the Pale, against the incursions of the Irish, whilst the Deputy was in the north, and in 1601, executed twenty-nine rebels in the borders of Kilkenny and Tipperary;<sup>p</sup> 28th May, 1603, he had his commission of Lieutenant-General of the army renewed by King James I.

His Lordship having lost his sight about fifteen years before his death, departed this life at his house in Carrick, 22d November, 1614.<sup>q</sup> This shews, says the author, how erroneous is the following account, given by Mr. Anstis, Garter King of Arms, in his History of the Garter. "Thomas, Earl of Ormond, married Lora, daughter of Sir Edward Barklay, of Beverston, widow of John, Lord Mountjoy, and also of Sir Thomas Montgomery, Knight of the Garter, which Earl Ormond, in his will made in 1615" (a year after he was dead), "mentions Dame Lore, late his wife, by whom he had a daughter, that lies buried at Sheffield, in Yorkshire);" he died in the eighty-second year of his age, and was buried, 17th April, in the choir of St. Canice church, where a monument was erected for him by Sir Walter Butler, his successor in the Earldom: the work was executed by Nicholas Stone, of London, statuary, for which he was paid 100*l.* in hand, and 300*l.* more when finished and set up.<sup>r</sup>

He married three wives; first, Elizabeth, only daughter of Thomas, Lord Berkeley, but by her, who was buried in the chapel of St. Paul, in Westminster, he had no issue.

Secondly, Elizabeth, only daughter of John, the second Lord Sheffield; and by her, who was buried at St. Canice, Kilkenny, 21st April, 1601 (or according to Sir G. Carew, her death seems to have happened in November or December 1600; for the Earl, 26th November, met the Lord President of Munster, to whom he was of counsel, at Clonmell, to consult about the prosecution of the rebels in the borders of Ormond; which he readily undertook, and would have immediately performed, had not the immature death of his most virtuous and honourable Lady, the lamentable tidings whereof were now brought him to Clonmell, oppressing his aged heart with miserable sorrow, caused the same for a time to be deferred),<sup>s</sup> he had

Two sons and a daughter.

Thirdly, Helena, daughter of David, Viscount Buttevant, and widow of John, son and heir of Richard, Lord Poer; but by her, who died in 1642, he had no issue.

His children were,

First, John, Viscount Thurles, born in 1584, who died an infant, and was buried in St. Paul's Chapel, Westminster.

Second, Thomas, buried in the church of Carrick under a flat stone, yet remaining, with this circumscription:

*Here lieth Entombed the Bodie of THOMAS BUTLER Esquier, Son to the Righte Hon<sup>ble</sup> th' Erle of Ormond and Ossory,
&c. who dyed being Shirife of the County of Typerary

rendered him equal to the most important and difficult employments, and his loyalty made him fit to be employed in those of the greatest trust, in the most intricate and dangerous situation of affairs. He was a very comely and graceful personage, and of a black complexion, which made the Irish give him the sobriquet of Duffe, and gave occasion to the Queen to call him her black husband. He was in his time the flower of his country; and all his life kept the greatest house, and used the most hospitality, of any person in the kingdom; and for his valour, wisdom, liberality, and virtue, was greatly honoured, not only in England and France, but in all other realms where he was known, and was commonly called and taken by them to be the pattern of true honour. He repaired his castle of Kilkenny, and house of Carrick, at great expense; made a deer-park at the Earl's-Cragg, near Kilkenny; built the castle of Drehednefarney, near Holy-Cross, as a strength for the county of Tipperary, against the O'Mulrians, and other Irish borderers; and by his will, appointed his nephew, Walter (after Earl of Ormond), to build an hospital in Kilkenny, leaving lands of his own purchase for maintenance thereof, and that he should procure a charter of incorporation, with license of Mortmain; which he did, bearing date 16th May, 1631, by the name of Master, Brethren, and Sisters, of the Hospital of our most Holy Saviour Jesus Christ, of Kilkenny.

Sir WALTER Butler, of Kilcash, eleventh Earl of Ormond, for his devotion, styled Walter of the beads and rosaries,<sup>y</sup> was son of John, third son of James, the ninth Earl of Ormond; and did good service to the Crown in the latter end of Queen Elizabeth's reign, when, with his own company, and some few gentlemen of the county of Tipperary, he pursued the traitor, Redmond Bourk, and forced him to fly into Spain, with the slaughter of his brother, Thomas, and many of his followers, taking his brother, John, prisoner, who was soon afterwards executed at Kilkenny. In this action Sir Walter was wounded.

He succeeded to the honour; became the eleventh Earl, and thought to have taken possession of the estate entailed upon him, but was opposed therein by Sir Richard Preston. The King, to support a favourite, took upon him to make award himself in the case. The Earl refusing to submit, the King seized upon all his estate, and imprisoned him in the Fleet, where he continued for eight years, in a most shameful want of all things. The behaviour of King James, reflects particular disgrace on the character of that monarch; for he became convinced that he had made an unjust decision; he was sensible that he ought to unravel what he had done, and yet he persisted in depriving the Earl of his right, and in suffering him to be kept a prisoner for so many years.<sup>z</sup> He married Hellena, eldest daughter of Edmond, the second Viscount Mountgarret, and dying at Carrick, 24th February, 1632, was buried 18th June, 1633, at Kilkenny, having issue by her (who died 28th January, 1631,<sup>a</sup> and was buried there 27th March), three sons, and nine daughters; viz.

First, Thomas, his heir apparent, who died before him.

Second, James, who died young in England.

Third, John, who died in France, without issue.

Catharine, to Pierce Power, of Monaghalargy, in Tipperary, Esq. second son of Richard, Lord Poer.

Ellan, to Sir Pierce Butler, the first Viscount Ikerrin.

Hellena, to James Butler, of Grellagh, Esq. eldest son of James, the second Lord Dunboyne, by his second wife, Margaret, daughter of Connor, Earl of Thomond.

Joan, to George Bagenal, of Dunleckney, in the county of Carlow, Esq. ancestor to Beauchamp Bagenal, of that place, Esq.

Mary, died unmarried.

Elizabeth, married, first, to Sir Edmond Blanchville, of Blanchville's Town, by whom she had Gerald, who dying before them, 21st February, 1646, they erected a monument to his memory in the cathedral of Kilkenny;<sup>b</sup> and, secondly, to Richard, sixth Earl of Clanrickard.

Eleanor died unmarried, in 1633.<sup>c</sup>

Alice, married to Terence (or Turlogh), Mac-Ibrien-Arragh.

THOMAS, Lord Thurles, the eldest son, was Governor of the counties of Kilkenny, Tipperary, and Waterford, and the territories of Ossory and Ormond; but was unfortunately drowned in his passage from England to Ireland, near the Skerries, 15th December, 1619; leaving issue by Elizabeth (who, according to Mr. Carte,<sup>d</sup> lived a widow near fifty-four years, and died at Thurles, in May 1673, in her eighty-sixth year; but "in this particular (says the Author), as well as in others, Mr. Carte is mistaken, JAMES, the eldest son of Thomas, Lord Thurles, and successor to his grandfather, Walter, was the twelfth Earl of Ormond, and FIRST DUKE OF ORMOND. He was born in the year 1607<sup>q</sup> (according to Mr. Carte, he was born at Clerkenwell, London, 19th October, 1610,<sup>r</sup> but it appears from the undoubted authority of an inquisition, taken at Clonmell, 21st April, 1622, after his father's death, before the King's Commissioners, upon the oaths of twelve gentlemen of the county of Tipperary, that he must have been born in 1607. The words of the inquisition are these: "Prædictus Thomas Vicecomes Thurles 15<sup>to</sup> die Decembris Anno Dom. 1619, obiit & quidam Jacobus Butler, communiter vocatus Dominus Vicecomes Thurles, fuit filius et hæres præfati Thomæ Butler, et quod præfatus Jacobus Butler, tempore mortis prædicti Thomæ fuit ætatis duodecim annorum, et non amplius.") He was granted in ward, 26th May, 1623, to Richard, Earl of Desmond, and by order of King James I. educated under the eye of Doctor George Abbot, Archbishop of Canterbury, who took care to have him instructed in the Protestant religion, as professed in the church of England, to which he adhered with great constancy and steadiness to his death.

On 7th February, 1626, his Majesty, by privy seal, directed that he might receive all the rents of his lands, which were in sequestration on account of the long unhappy differences between his grandfather and the said Earl of Desmond, concerning their respective titles to the estate; to which, in 1629, he put as happy a period, by gaining in marriage the Lady Elizabeth Preston, only child of the said Earl of Desmond; who being then very young, and in ward to the Earl of Holland, he was forced to pay that Lord 15,000l. in lieu of her wardship and marriage: soon after which, he retired with her to Acton, in Gloucestershire, ten miles from Bristol, where he employed his time in learning the Latin tongue; and after about a year's stay with his uncle, Sir Robert Pointz, came to Ireland in the conclusion of the year 1630; where, 2d June, 1632, for the fine of 566l. 13s. 4d. he sued out a livery of his Lady's estate, as he did of his own, 15th August, 1633, for the fine of 960l. Irish.

In 1631, he purchased a troop of horse; and in 1634, gave an uncommon instance of his undaunted resolution, in opposing the commands of the Lord D. Wentworth; who calling a parliament to meet 14th July, at the castle of Dublin, published a proclamation (to prevent any ill effects from their animosity, which was now risen very high), that no member should enter with their swords. All obeyed except this young Lord; who told the Usher of the Black Rod at the door, when he demanded his sword, that he should have no sword of his, except in his guts. Being the only Peer who sat that day in the house in defiance of the proclamation, it so fired the Deputy, who was not accustomed to have his orders disobeyed, that his Lordship was called upon in the evening to answer it; who thereupon produced his Majesty's writ, calling him to parliament, Cinctum cum Gladio, or Per Cincturam Gladii. Which answer being unexpected, and finding him likely to prove an untractable companion, it was in deliberation that night between the L. D. and his two friends, Sir George Ratcliffe and Mr. Wandesford, whether to trample under foot, or to oblige so daring a young man, who was now also grown so very popular; when the more benign extreme being resolved on, he was taken into favour,<sup>s</sup> and by the Deputy, in his letter of 16th December, recommended to the King to call him into his Privy-council, as a person of solid judgment, grave and sober carriage, and good affection to his Majesty's service; who (added to that testimony), considering both his nobility and worth, thought fit to encourage and enable him for his service; and therefore, by his letter from Westminster, 20th January, 1634, ordered the Deputy to call him into the Privy-council.<sup>t</sup>

In 1638, his troop was taken from him; but he was promoted to the command of a troop of cuirassiers, consisting of a captain, lieutenant, cornet, and 101 horsemen, with the pay of 24s. a day, and five spare horsemen, at 2s. 6d. each; and 25th May," 1639, made C. Rot. Pacis, of the county of Kilkenny; also, in 1640, advanced to the command of a regiment of horse, with the pay of 11. 10s. a day; and 16th September, appointed Lieutenant-general of the horse, at 41. a day, and Commander in Chief of all the forces in Ireland, in the absence of the L. L. Strafford, which were then raised by that Earl, and rendezvoused at Carrickfergus, to assist the King against the Scots; but were the same month (upon the pacification), ordered to be disbanded, which was not executed till June 1641.

On October 23d that year, the rebellion<sup>o</sup> broke out, and his Lordship being then at his house in Carrick, the L. J. by an express, notified the discovery of the plot; advised him to stand upon his guard; to make the best provision he could for the defence of the country about him; and desired him presently to repair to Dublin with his troop of horse: and the King referring the whole business of Ireland to the parliament of England, they made the Earl of Ormond (that the army might be led by an honourable and promising person), Lieutenant-General; who being approved by the King, as one, who by his relations, integrity, and quality, was pitched on as the fittest person for that employment, his Majesty confirmed him therein by his letter from Edinburgh of the 31st of that month: in which situation he behaved with indefatigable activity and undaunted resolution; for, as soon as an army could be raised, he marched from Dublin (31st January), took the castle of Lyons; routed the rebels at Kilsaghlán; secured Naas with a garrison, and placed in the town a new Sovereign, eight Burgesses, and fifty families of despoiled Protestants; and having lost a trumpeter, with four soldiers, by the garrison of Tipper, he marched thither, and caused it, with all therein, to be blown up; after which, 15th April, 1642, he gained a very signal victory over the Irish army under the Lord Mountgarret, at Kilrush, on his march from Athy to Dublin, killing 700 men, and taking all their ammunition, the General's waggon drawn by eight oxen, and twenty colours. For this great service he received (8th August), the following letter of thanks from the Speaker of the House of Commons, accompanied with a jewel of 620l. value:

“ My Lord,

“ I am commanded by the House of Commons, to let your Lordship know, that with much contentment they received information from Ireland, of the good service performed by you against those wicked bloody rebels; and in testimony of their good acceptance and esteem of it, they do present you with this jewel, to be unto you a remembrance of their affection, as also a pledge of their intentions of taking all occasions to acknowledge your merit, continuing in the same zealous endeavours to serve this state and the true religion, by the suppression of that unnatural rebellion. These lines will further assure you, that no misreports or false scandals, which any malicious tongue may have raised concerning you, can make the least impression on them, who can easily see through such empty clouds, and fasten a clear judgment upon true and honourable desert;—my Lord, you have here the public expression of the sense of the House, made unto you by their own command; receive now, I beseech you, the tender of his particular service who heartily prays for the continuance of your prosperous success, in so pious a cause, and desires to remain

“ Your Lordship’s most humble, and

“ WILLIAM LENTHALL, Speaker.”

To the Right Honourable the Earl of Ormond and Ossory, Lieutenant-General of his Majesty’s Army in Ireland.*

And at the same time, the King, on his part, by privy seal, dated at Nottingham, 23d August, 1642, directed a full discharge to be given him, of what mortgages and debts he stood engaged for to those in actual rebellion, and for which the said mortgages were given; and also by patent, dated at the same place the 30th of that month, created him Marquis of Ormond.<sup>y</sup>

In November 1641, he was joined in commission with the Lord Mountgarret, to govern and command such forces as they should raise, and be armed by the state, for the defence of the county of Kilkenny; and by commission dated at Oxford, 11th January, 1642, he was joined with Ulick, Earl of St. Alban’s and Clanrickard, Earl of Roscommon, Viscount Moore, Sir T. Lucas, Knt. Sir M. Eustace, Knt. and T. Bourke, Esq. to receive the propositions of the Irish confederate recusants. In March 1642, he took the castles of Castlemartin, Kildare, Tully, and Timolin; whence marching to Ross, he obtained on the 18th, a complete victory, though at a great disadvantage, over General Preston. Soon after which, a proposal being set on foot by the King, for a cessation of arms with the Irish for one whole year, he was appointed to conclude it by the King's letters, dated at Oxford 23d April, 3d May, and 31st July, 1643, and by commission under the great seal, dated at Dublin 31st August, he was authorised to treat and conclude for his Majesty, and in his name, with his said subjects, upon a cessation of arms for one whole year, to begin at such time, as to him should be thought fit, and upon such articles and agreements, as to him should seem necessary for his Majesty's service; or otherwise to break off the treaty, as he should see cause. Accordingly, he concluded the treaty 15th September, by which they were to pay 38,000*l.* and send succours to the King, in England: and 16th November, his Lordship sent to England about 2000 men; and 3d December, 1300 foot, and 140 horse, under the command of Colonel Robert Byron.

The cessation being thus concluded, his influence, fidelity, and diligence became so conspicuous, that it was thought necessary to confer upon him the government of the kingdom; and accordingly being appointed by the King at Oxford,<sup>z</sup> 13th November, 1643, L. L. of Ireland, he was sworn 21st January following; and 23d March, had a reversionary grant of the government of the fort of Duncannon, after the death of Laurence, Lord Esmond, with an augmentation of the warders, from thirty to one hundred; and that nobleman dying 26th March, 1645, he had a grant thereof passed to him, 5th December, 1646, for life.

The Irish agents presenting to the King several propositions in order to a firm and settled peace, his Majesty appointed the Marquis of Ormond, by commission dated at Buckingham, 24th June, 1644, to treat concerning the establishment of a firm and perfect peace in Ireland; and if he found it not reasonable to consent to such propositions, as should be made for a full peace, then to conclude on a further cessation of arms. By virtue of this commission he concluded a peace, consisting of thirty articles, which were signed and sealed 28th March, 1646; whereby the Irish were to furnish a body of 10,000 men for the service of the King against the Parliament; and he had a commission, 17th August, authorizing him to give out commissions for raising officers, as well natives of Ireland, as others his Majesty's subjects.

He continued in the government until the year 1647,<sup>a</sup> when, with the King's approbation, he concluded a treaty with the Parliament's Commissioners, 18th June, for delivering into their hands the next day all the garrisons of the kingdom, which he did, together with the city of Dublin; and 28th July, the regalia of the government. He then left the kingdom, and landed 2d August at Bristol; about which time the King being delivered by the Scots to the English army, and brought a prisoner to Hampton Court, he attended his Majesty there, who received him with extraordinary grace, as a person who had served him with great zeal and fidelity, and with the universal testimony of all good men. After some stay, he embarked on board a shallop, in the obscure and unguarded port of Hastings, in Sussex (25th December), which safely transported him to Dieppe, in Normandy; whence he waited on the Queen and Prince of Wales at Paris, by whom he was consulted in every transaction, being a person most depended upon to begin to give a turn to their fortune, and recommended to them by the King for that purpose.

Here he held a close correspondence with the Lord Inchiquin, on whose promise to prepare the province of Munster to receive him as the King's L. L. he ventured over, and arrived at Cork,<sup>b</sup> 29th September, 1648; whence, 11th October, he went to his house of Carrick, and there treated of peace with the Commissioners of the General Assembly, which (17th January), was solemnly confirmed and proclaimed at Kilkenny; on the 30th of which month the King being beheaded, the Marquis received the news with inexpressible grief, and a suitable resentment; and 17th February, King Charles II. continuing him L. L. he caused him to be solemnly proclaimed 19th March, and used his utmost endeavours to recover the kingdom to his obedience: which proving ineffectual, he appointed the Marquis of Clanrickard his Deputy; and again leaving Ireland, 6th December, 1650, arrived safe in France, where he gave the Queen an account of the condition of the kingdom: and for these his services to his King and country, was excepted from pardon for life or estate, by Cromwell's act of parliament for the settlement of Ireland.

When the King returned to Paris after the defeat at Worcester, he was sworn of the Privy-council; and constantly attending his Majesty, was consulted by him in all his affairs. In 1654, with great steadiness of spirit, he brought the Duke of Gloucester from the Queen at Paris to the King at Cologne, to prevent his being perverted in his religion; and soon after attended the Princess Royal from the Hague to the King; as he did his Majesty in his journey to Frankfort; and was present at the interview with Christina, Queen of Sweden, at Koningstein. In June following he was dispatched to engage the Duke of Neuburg's interest, to dispose the Court of Brussels to espouse the King's cause, and promote a treaty of alliance between their Britannick and Catholic Majesties. When the King settled at Bruges, and raised four regiments, he gave the command of one, in December 1656, to the Marquis, that the Irish might be tempted to come over and increase his forces; and by the Marquis's interest, the town of St. Ghislain, in which the French had a garrison was delivered up to the Spaniards in the beginning of 1657, a service of great importance, considering its vicinity to Brussels; and in February after, he was present at the Duke of York's attempt upon Mardike, when he had his horse killed under him.

Having been elected a Knight of the Garter, 18th September N. S. 1649, he constantly wore the ensigns, though not installed or invested with the habit till 15th April, 1661; and on his Majesty's restoration was appointed, 1st June, 1660, Lord Steward of the household; sworn of his Privy-council; made a Lord of his Bedchamber; and soon after, L. L. of the county of Somerset; High Steward of the city and liberties of Westminster, Kingston, and Bristol; and was restored to the Chancellorship of the University of Dublin, which he had held before the usurpation, and soon redressed the evils, which had befallen it in that period.

In consideration of his distinguished loyalty, services, and sufferings, he was created a Peer of England, 20th July, 1660, by the titles of BARON BUTLER, of Llanthony, and EARL OF BRECKNOCK.

November 30th, 1660, the King, by his declaration from Whitehall, appointed the Duke of Albemarle, and the Marquis, Trustees for the several towns of Ireland, and other the securities for the satisfaction of the arrears of the forty-nine officers. February 7th, 1660, he was made Colonel of a regiment of horse, and Captain of a foot company; 30th March, 1661, created LORD HIGH STEWARD of England, to assist at the coronation on the 23d April, in which solemn procession he walked immediately before the King, and carried St. Edward's crown, wherewith his Majesty was crowned.

That very day (30th March), he was created Duke of Ormond, in Ireland,<sup>d</sup> with the creation fee of 40l. payable out of the Exchequer: and the county of Tipperary, which had been seized by King James I. was restored to him by patent, 2d April, 1662. The preamble: Cum summè dilectus et fidelissimus Consanguineus noster Jacobus Marchio Ormondiaë et Ossoriaë, Vicecomes Thurles, Dominus Baro de Arclo, Dominus Regalitatum et Libertatum Comitatus Palatini Tipperariaë, Cancellarius Universitatis Dublinensis Baro Butler de Lanthony in Comitatu nostro Monmouth in regno nostro Angliæ, Comes de Brecknocke in Dominio nostro Walliæ, unus à Sanctioribus nostris Consiliis tam Angliæ quam Hiberniæ, Dominus Seneschallus Hospicii nostri, unus Nobilium a Cubiculo nostro, et nobilissimi Ordinis Garterii Miles, Comes ex Comitibus prædictæ Ormondiaë per circiter quatercentum annos, semper intactæ fidei, semper aut bello aut pace conspicuus, merita Majorum tot et tantorum propriis superaverit, nec dum satisfactum judicemus duorum Regum debito, et utriusque nostrum singulari benevolentia congestis in eum hactenus Honoribus quum et ipsum in statum gradum, stilum, titulum, dignitatem, nomen et honorem Ducis Ormondiaë in Regno nostro Hiberniæ prædicto sublimari censuimus. November 4th, 1661, he was declared L. L. of Ireland, which gave universal satisfaction; and arriving at Dublin, 27th July,<sup>f</sup> 1662, after a dangerous passage (being the day of the same month, on which, fifteen years before, he had been compelled to deliver up the government to the English parliament), he continued in the administration until 14th February, 1668, when he was succeeded by John, Lord Robarts; and the parliament of Ireland, as a testimony of their gratitude and affection, presented him with a gift of 30,000*l.* but his removal (accomplished by the Duke of Buckingham, and other enemies), prevented his receipt of 98,256*l.* due to him, which made him all his life struggle with many difficulties, and at his death, leave debts of 89,324*l.* 13*s.* 10*d.* after having lost for his loyalty, beyond all profits received, 868,590*l.* 16*s.* 9*d.*

His Majesty, by patent, dated at Westminster, 23d April, 1662, having thought fit to raise in England a regiment of 1200 foot, to be his regiment of guards in Ireland, authorised his Grace to raise and transport them into this kingdom, and to give commissions to such as he should think fit to be officers. February 20th, 1663, he was made Commander of the Port of Passage, in the county of Waterford, pursuant to privy seal at Whitehall 19th January preceding; in which the King writes, "Whereas we understand that our Fort at Passage, in our county of Waterford, on the other side of the water from our Port of Duncannon, in our county of Wexford, is of great importance, and that it may tend very much to our service, and the safety of that harbour, and of the parts of the country thereabouts, that good correspondency and intelligence be held between those our forts; and our Royal Father having, by his letters patent, granted the command of the said Fort of Duncannon unto you, during your life; we think fit, that for the ends and purposes aforesaid, you have the command also of our said Fort of Passage, and the town of Passage, East and West, during your natural life, with power to appoint a Deputy." &c And, 24th July, 1669, he was empowered to hold Court of Sessions and Gaol Delivery, in the county Palatine of Tipperary.

August 4th, 1669, he was chosen Chancellor of the University of Oxford, on the resignation of Dr. Gilbert Sheldon, Archbishop of Canterbury, who earnestly recommended him to be his successor, having a great and just opinion of his integrity and honour; and to shew the higher esteem of him, he did this at a juncture when his Grace was out of favour at Court. January 17th, 1672, he was joined in commission with Prince Rupert, and others, to inspect the affairs of Ireland; viz. the execution of the acts of settlement; the disposition of forfeited lands; the state of the revenue,<sup>b</sup> &c. and 24th August, 1677, he was a third<sup>i</sup> time sworn L. L. of Ireland, in which station he continued till 1682, when with great difficulty he procured leave to go to England; and, 9th November following, was created an ENGLISH DUKE,<sup>k</sup> retaining the title of DUKE OF ORMOND, with the creation fee of 40l. a year, in consideration of his faithful services, and particularly for his keeping the kingdom of Ireland quiet all the time of the Popish plot, whilst England was in the utmost distraction. He was commissioned with others, 14th March, 1683, for the remedy of defective titles; and whilst he continued in England, attempted to have a parliament called in Ireland, but ineffectually, and, upon the disappointment thereof, returned in August 1684, with a heavy heart, as he declared to many in Ireland.<sup>1</sup>

February 15th, 1684, he was continued by King James II. Lord Steward of his household, and constituted Lord High Steward of England for his coronation,<sup>m</sup> at which, 23d, April, 1685, he assisted, by carrying the same crown as before at the coronation of King Charles II. This solemnity performed, he returned to Ireland; but in March following was recalled, and on his arrival at Court, found himself in displeasure with the King; had his regiment taken from him; and perceiving the measures which the King was pursuing, would carry him to the most violent actions, he entertained dismal apprehensions of what might ensue, which are thought to have hastened his death, that happened 21st July, 1688,<sup>n</sup> at his seat of Kingston-Hall, in the county of Dorset; and 4th August he was interred in Westminster Abbey.

During his administration of affairs in Ireland, he procured many favours from the Crown for the public benefit of the kingdom. In August 1660, he prevailed with the King to fill the four archiepiscopal, and twelve episcopal sees, with the most eminent men to be found among the Irish clergy; at which time great endeavours being used to prevent the admission of Episcopacy, and the constitution of the church of England, the clergy of Ireland addressed themselves to him for protection, and soon felt the good effects of his interposition: and the grants he procured for them, drew from all the Bishops then in Dublin an address of thanks, in the name of all the orthodox clergy of Ireland. And that the kingdom might never want an able and learned clergy, he had a body of statutes drawn up for the government of the University of Dublin, to whom he was an eminent and singular benefactor in many respects. At a considerable expense and labour he revived the linen manufacture, the foundation of which was laid by the Earl of Strafford, to which is owing its now flourishing state. He obtained the allowance of a free trade to all foreign nations, either in war or peace with England. He procured the King's letter for incorporating a College of Physicians in Dublin, to improve the science, and reform the practice of physic in Ireland (which society had the grant of a new charter, 29th September, 1692.) He accomplished the foundation of the hospital near Dublin, for ancient and maimed officers and soldiers of Ireland; which 19th February, 1683, was incorporated a body politic of governors, to have perpetual succession, &c. He founded a public school called the College of Kilkenny, and endowed it with lands to the amount of 40l. a year. He set up and encouraged at a great expense, both the woollen and linen manufactures. And lived to see four Kings, three of whom he served for fifty-seven years, with an unshaken zeal and untainted loyalty, as all his ancestors had done before him. He had seen three generations above him; his father, grandfather, and great-great uncle, Thomas, Earl of Ormond; and as many below him, his son, his grandson, and his great-grandson, Thomas, who was playing in the room but a few hours before his death, being about two years old.

Thus he passed through a long life, and variety of fortunes, with honour and reputation; being beloved and esteemed by the good men of all parties; and died as much regretted, as it was possible for man to be, without courting popular applause, or pursuing any other rule in his conduct, than doing what, in his own judgment, was right.<sup>o</sup> See the Life of this great man at length in Kippis's Biog. Brit. Vol. III.

<sup>o</sup> He was a great friend of Lord Clarendon, who says, "there had been a great acquaintance between the Marquis of Ormond, when he was Lord Thurles, and the Chancellor of the Exchequer;" which was renewed, when they both came to have shares in the public business, the one in Ireland, and the other in England; so that when they now met at Paris (after the troubles, and the ruin of the Monarchy had driven them into exile), they met as old friends, and quickly understood each other so well, that there could not be a more entire confidence between men. The Marquis consulted with him in his nearest concerns, and the Chancellor esteemed and cultivated the friendship with all pos-

By his aforesaid Lady (who was godmother with the Duchess of Buckingham to Queen Mary, died of a fever 21st July, 1684, in the sixty-ninth year of her age, and was buried in Westminster Abbey), his Grace had issue eight sons, and two daughters; viz.

First, Thomas, born in 1632, who died before he was two days old, and was buried at Kilkenny.

Second, Thomas, Earl of Ossory, of whom hereafter.

Third, James, born in 1635, who did not live above two days, and was buried at Kilkenny.

Fourth, James, born 24th March, 1636, and dying 3d April, 1655, was buried in Christ Church, Dublin.

Fifth, Richard, born 15th June, 1639, was created 13th May, 1662, Baron Butler, of Cloughgrenan, Viscount of Tullogh, and Earl of Arran, with limitation of the honours to the issue male of his brother, John; was sworn of the Privy-council 26th August, 1663, and LORD BUTLER, of Weston, in England.

sible industry and application. The King was abundantly satisfied in the friendship they had for each other, and trusted them both entirely; nor was it in the power of any, though it was often endeavoured by persons of no ordinary account, to break, or interrupt that mutual confidence between them, during the whole time the King remained beyond the seas; whereby the King's affairs were carried on with the less trouble. And this friendship was so great to him, that without it he could not have borne the weight of that part of the King's business which was incumbent on him, nor the envy and reproach that attended the trust."

"The Marquis of Ormond (adds the noble Historian in his own Life), was the person of the greatest quality, estate, and reputation, who had frankly engaged his person and his fortune in the King's service, from the first hour of the troubles, and pursued it with that courage and constancy, that when the King was murdered, and he deserted by the Irish, contrary to the articles of the peace which they had made with him, and when he could make no longer defence, he refused all the conditions which Cromwell offered, who would have given him all his vast estate, if he would have been contented to have lived quietly in some of his own houses, without further concerning himself in the quarrel; and transported himself without so much as accepting a pass from his authority, in a little weak vessel into France, where he found the King, from whom he never parted, till he returned with him into England. And having thus merited as much as a subject can do from a Prince, he had much more merit and esteem with the King than any other man: and the lustre the Chancellor was in, was no less from the declared friendship the Marquis had for him, than from the great trust his Majesty reposed in him.*

had a confirmation thereof, and of divers other lands, by several patents under the acts of settlement. The King having 13th November, 1665, ordered certain light-houses to be built in or near the ports of Dublin, Carrickfergus, Waterford, and Kingsale, for the preservation of his ships, which were to pay a certain duty for the charge and maintenance thereof; his Majesty, 29th March, 1667, granted those that were then built (viz. two upon the Hill of Howth, one in the Isle of Magee, two near Kingsale, and one at the Tower of Hooke, otherwise the Tower of Rosse), to his Lordship for sixty-one years, at the rent of 40s. September 1st, 1666, he was made Alnager of Ireland; and 15th May, 1671, had a warrant to receive the pay of two common soldiers out of each field company, and of one soldier out of every other company in his Majesty's regiment of guards in Ireland: of which regiment having the command, he did good service in reducing the mutineers of Carrickfergus; and also behaved with distinguished valour in the sea-fight of 1673 with the Dutch; for which he was created 27th August that year, a Peer of England, by the title of BARON BUTLER, of Weston. October 21st, 1675,<sup>p</sup> he was made C. Rotulorum of the county of Carlow; and 2d May, 1682, sworn deputy to his father in the government of the kingdom; being also, 10th September, 1684, made Marshal of the army, with the fee of 52l. 17s. 8d. per month, which was renewed to him 16th July, 1685.

He first married in September 1664, the Lady Mary Steuart, only surviving child of James, Duke of Richmond and Lenox, who died 30th March, 1655, and heir to her brother, Esme, who died in 1666, æt. 10; but by her (who died 4th July, 1688, at the age of eighteen years, and was buried 19th August, at St. Canice's cathedral in Kilkenny,<sup>q</sup> with all the pomp that her quality and the memory of her virtues deserved, the like solemnity having never been seen in Ireland), he had no issue; he married, secondly, in June 1673, Dorothy, daughter of John Ferrers, of Tamworth-Castle, in Warwickshire, Esq. and by her, who deceased 30th April, 1715, had several children; whereof his eldest son, Thomas, was buried in the choir of Christ Church, 7th June, 1681; two others died in 1685; Elizabeth, born in 1677, who died before him, and only one daughter survived him (he died 26th January, 1685, and was buried in Westminster Abbey), which was the Lady Charlotte, born 30th November, 1678, and Sixth, Walter, born 6th September, 1641, died in March 1643, and was buried in Christ Church.

Seventh, John, born in 1643, was Captain of the troop of horse guards in Ireland; and 13th April, 1676, created Baron of Agherim, Viscount of Clonmore, and Earl of Gowran, with this preamble: Nos regia mente nostra recolentes eximiam fidelitatem et immaculatam Ligeantiam prædilecti et perquam fidelis consanguinei et conciliarii nostri Jacobi, Ducis Ormondiaë, Seneschalli Hospitii nostri regii, ac etiam quamplurima egregia et perquam acceptabilia servicia tam nobis quam regali patri nostro, beatæ memoriæ, per præfatum Jacobum, Ducem Ormondiaë, tam in sepealibus regni nostris, quam in partibus transmarinis præstita; considerantes etiam merita, et Virtutes Domini Johannis Butler, tertii filii præfati Jacobi, Ducis Ormondiaë, ac servicia per eum nobis hactenus impensa, quæ nobis abunda innotuerint, hinc est quod nos præfatum Dominum Johannem Butler—perpetuo regii favoris nostri monumento Posteris suis transmittando ornare et decorare decrevimus, ac eum ad status et dignitates—Baronis, Vicecomitis, et Comitis regni nostri Hiberniæ promovendum censuimus. Sciatis igitur, &c.<sup>r</sup> pursuant to privy signet, at Whitehall, 10th February, in the preceding year.<sup>s</sup> In January 1676, he married the Lady Anne Chichester, only daughter of Arthur, Earl of Donegal; but his Lordship travelling to Paris for the recovery of his health, died there in August 1677, leaving no issue, whereby the titles ceased.

Eighth, James, born in 1645, who being carried to take the air, and the horses running away with the coachman down the Phoenix-Hill, near Dublin, the woman, who had the care of him, in her fright threw him out of the window, and he was killed by the fall, 20th May, 1646, being six months old.

Lady Elizabeth was born 29th June, 1640, married, in 1656, to Philip Stanhope, the second Earl of Chesterfield, to whom she was second wife, and died in July 1665.<sup>t</sup>

Lady Mary, born in 1646, was married at Kilkenny 27th October, 1662, to William Cavendish, the fourth Earl (after Duke) of Devonshire, and was grandmother of William, Duke of Devon-

THOMAS, Earl of Ossory, and LORD BUTLER OF MORE-PARK, in England, the eldest son, born at Kilkenny, 8th July, 1634, by the time he was twenty-one years of age, gave such proofs of his genius, prudence, good disposition, and virtue, that Sir Robert Southwell then drew his character, and shewed him to the world in very lively colours. "He is (says he) a young man with a very handsome face; a good head of hair; well set; very good-natured; rides the great horse very well; is a very good tennis-player, fencer, and dancer; understands music, and plays on the guitar and lute; speaks French elegantly; reads Italian fluently; is a good historian; and so well versed in romances, that if a gallery be full of pictures and hangings, he will tell the stories of all that are there described. He shuts up his door at eight o'clock in the evening, and studies till midnight; he is temperate, courteous, and excellent in all his behaviour."

February 8th, 1660, he was made Colonel of a regiment of foot in Ireland; 13th June, 1661, Colonel of the next regiment of horse that should become void; and, on the Earl of Mountrath's death, succeeded to his troop of horse, and regiment of foot; was appointed the 19th, Lieutenant-General of the horse; sworn of the Privy-council, 16th April, 1661; and his Majesty judging it of importance to his service, that he should be qualified to sit in the House of Lords in Ireland, thought fit to direct the L. L. by writ or otherwise, as had been accustomed, to call him to sit in the said House of Lords, by privy seal at Hampton Court, 22d June, 1662," at which time he represented the city of Bristol and the University of Dublin; and 8th August, being brought by the Commons to the bar of the House of Lords, an order was made, that by the consent of the Earl's Bench, the Earl of Ossory should be placed above all of that degree.

By patent 16th September, 1665, he was* constituted Lieutenant-General of the army in Ireland; and the next year a Lord of the King's bedchamber; was sworn in June of the Privy-council of England; and 14th September, summoned by writ to the English parliament, by the title of LORD BUTLER OF MORE-PARK.

In the years 1664 and 1668, he was deputy to his father; and 24th April, 1669, had full power granted him to give licenses for the transporting of wool. In January 1671, he received a commission to command the Resolution, a third-rate ship, and another in April 1672, to command the Victory, a second-rate; and 3d June, behaved with great valour and conduct in Southwold-Bay fight with the Dutch, endeavouring to lay Admiral de Ruyter's ship aboard, but he sheering off avoided the engagement: the Earl of Ossory however gained so much reputation, that when he returned to Court, he was, 30th September, elected a Knight of the Garter, and 29th October installed at Windsor.

In November he was sent Envoy Extraordinary to the Court of France, with compliments of condolence on the death of Louis-Francis, Duke of Anjou, and at his parting was presented with a jewel of 2000*l.* value. May 17th, 1673, the King gave him the command of the St. Michael, a first-rate ship, then newly built, and made him Rear Admiral of the Blue squadron, in order to that great sea-fight against the Dutch, which happened shortly after, wherein, as Anthony à Wood says, he gallantly acted beyond the fiction of a romance. After the fight, he was made Rear Admiral of the Red squadron; and 10th September, displayed the Union flag, as Commander in Chief of the whole fleet, in the absence of Prince Rupert, by the King's special command.

November 10th, 1674, he embarked for Holland, to treat with the Prince of Orange concerning a marriage with the Lady Mary, eldest daughter of James, Duke of York; was appointed in August 1675, a Commissioner of the Admiralty; had a pension 13th March following, granted for three years, of 2666*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* a year; and 18th November, 1676, was sworn Lord Chamberlain to Queen Catharine.

In July 1677, he joined the Prince of Orange at the siege of Charleroy; and in February following, going over to command the English forces in the pay of the States, had a commission from them to be Colonel and Captain of one of their six regiments, being also made Major-General, and Commander in Chief of the English Brigade, by the Prince of Orange's patent; and in the campaign of 1674, was fought the famous battle of Mons, in which the Mareschal de Luxemburgh was forced to retreat, and the Earl of Ossory gained so much glory; the States of Holland, the Duke de Villa Hermosa, governor of the Low Countries, and the King of Spain himself, in a letter under his own hand, acknowledging his great services in that campaign.

said), was snatched away by a fever at Whitehall, 30th July, 1680, to the universal regret of England, and the general grief of great part of Europe, and his body was conveyed to the family vault in the cathedral of Kilkenny.

He married, 17th November, 1659, N.S. the Lady Amelia Nassau, eldest daughter of Louis, Lord of Beverweart, La Leeke, Odyke, and Auverquerque, Governor of Sluys, natural son of Maurice, Prince of Orange, by Madame de Beverweart, Countess of Mecklin, and had issue by her, who was naturalized by act of parliament, 13th September, 1660, and buried in Christ Church, 25th January,<sup>y</sup> 1684, six sons, and as many daughters; who all died young or unmarried, except two sons, and three daughters; viz.

First, James, Duke of Ormond.

Second, Charles, Earl of Arran.

Third, Lady Elizabeth, married in July 1673, to William-Richard-George, the ninth Earl of Derby, died 28th June, 1717, and was buried 12th July, in Westminster Abbey.

Fourth, Lady Emilia, born 29th May, 1660, and died 30th March, 1760, unmarried.<sup>z</sup>

Fifth, Lady Henrietta, married in 1696, to Henry D'Auverquerque, Earl of Grantham, her first cousin, and died 11th October, 1724.

JAMES, the SECOND DUKE OF ORMOND, was born 29th April, 1665, in the castle of Dublin, when his father was deputy to his grandfather; was educated in Christ Church, Oxford, till his father's decease, when he was complimented with the degree of Master of Arts, after which (by his grandfather's order), he returned to Ireland,<sup>a</sup> and went a volunteer in April 1684, to the siege of Luxembourg, then invested by the French, whence he returned to London in July, and was made Colonel of a regiment of horse in Ireland. In May 1685, he was appointed a Lord of his Majesty's Bedchamber, and serving in the army, was sent down into the West against the Duke of Monmouth, and had a share in the victory over that unfortunate nobleman, 6th July, at Sedgemoor, near Bridgewater. He was elected Chancellor of the University of Oxford, 25th July, 1688, in the room of his grandfather, and installed 23d August, at his house in St. James's-square.

To his power he opposed the despotic measures of King James's Court; and 17th November, 1688, joined with several Lords and Bishops, in a petition to the King, to prevent, by calling a free parliament, the miseries his person and kingdoms were exposed to; but meeting with a sharp answer, his Grace left the Court, along with Prince George of Denmark; and declaring for the laws and liberties of his country, was one of the first of the English nobility that went over to the Prince of Orange; for which King James seized his estate in Ireland, to the value of 25,000*l.* a year, and 20th April, 1692, excepted him out of his general pardon; his parliament at Dublin having attainted him, 7th May, 1689.

On King William's advancement to the throne, his Grace, 14th February, 1688 (the day after the King and Queen were proclaimed), was made a Gentleman of his Bedchamber, and Colonel of the second troop of guards; installed a Knight of the Garter, 5th April, 1689, and 11th, constituted HIGH CONSTABLE OF ENGLAND, for their Majesties coronation.

In 1690, he attended his Majesty into Ireland; was at the Battle of the Boyne, and two days after detached with his uncle, Henry, Lord Auverquerque, and nine troops of horse, to secure and take possession of the city of Dublin; and the King afterwards advancing towards Kilkenny, his Grace was dispatched from Castledermot, to secure that city and the adjacent country from plunder; when his Majesty came there, 19th July, he splendidly entertained him in his castle, attended him into England and Holland, and 29th July, 1693, was at the battle of Landen, wherein he charged the enemy at the head of one of Lumley's squadrons, received several wounds, and having his horse shot under him, was rescued by a gentleman of the French guards from the hands of a villain about to stab him; being thus taken prisoner, he was carried to Namure, where he signalized his charity, by distributing a great part of his revenues to his fellow prisoners, by the hands of Count Guiscard, the governor;<sup>b</sup> but was after exchanged for the Duke of Berwick, made prisoner by Brigadier Churchill, and when at liberty, attended his post in the army, where the grandeur of his table and retinue were an honour to the English nation, as his valour had been an example to the nobility.<sup>c</sup>

By Queen Anne he was appointed, 20th April, 1702, COMMANDER IN CHIEF of the land forces, sent against France and Spain, when he destroyed the French fleet, sunk the Spanish galleons in the harbour of Vigo, and took the fort of Redondella, for which he received the thanks of both houses of parliament.

June 24th, 1702, he was made L. L. of the county of Somerset; and 4th February following, her Majesty declared him L. L. of Ireland, where he was received with every demonstration of joy; and during his stay, till the year 1706, in this high post, governed with more affection from the people, and kept his Court in greater splendor, than ever was known in this kingdom.

In 1707, he was appointed Colonel of the third troop of horse guards; 19th October, 1710, again declared L. L. of Ireland; and 1st January, 1711, made Colonel of the first regiment of foot guards, and declared Captain General, and COMMANDER IN CHIEF of the land forces in Great Britain, or which were or should be employed abroad, in conjunction with the troops of the allies; which post (his commission being signed 26th February),<sup>d</sup> he held till the treaty of Utrecht in 1713.

June 26th that year, he was made Warden and Admiral of the Cinque Ports, and Constable of Dover Castle; and on the Queen's death, was one of the Privy-council who signed the proclamation, declaring King George I. to be the only lawful and rightful King of Great Britain; on whose arrival, he was graciously received by his Majesty; appointed, 9th October, 1714, of his Privy-council in Ireland; and L. L. of the county of Somerset; from which he was removed a few days after, as he had been 18th September before from being Captain-General of the army, the Lord Viscount Townshend then acquainting him, that his Majesty had no longer occasion for his service in that quality, but would be glad to see him at Court.

The parliament meeting 17th March, 1714, his Grace was impeached, 21st June, 1715, by Mr. Secretary Stanhope, of high treason, and the House of Commons voted that he should be impeached accordingly; whereupon being advised to avoid the impending storm of a parliamentary prosecution, although it is presumed by many, had he waited to stand his trial, that his innocent and good intentions in all his actions, would have cleared him from the imputed guilt;<sup>e</sup> he retired, 8th August, into France, and was 20th of that month attainted, his estate forfeited, and honours extinguished; and the parliament of this kingdom, 26th June, 1716, passed an act, for extinguishing the regalities and liberties of the county palatine of Tipperary; for vesting his estate

But the same English parliament passed an act, 24th June, 1721, to enable his brother, the Earl of Arran, to purchase his estate, which he accordingly did.<sup>f</sup>

This great, but unfortunate nobleman, married to his first wife, 15th July, 1682, Anne, eldest daughter of Laurence, Earl of Rochester, who dying, 25th January, 1684,<sup>g</sup> of a miscarriage in Dublin, aged seventeen years and three days, was buried in the family vault in Christ Church; he married, secondly, 3d August, 1685, Mary,<sup>h</sup> eldest surviving daughter of Henry, first Duke of Beaufort, and by her, who died 19th November, 1733, in the sixty-ninth year of her age, and was buried in Westminster Abbey, he had one son, Thomas, born 26th September, 1686, who died 27th February, 1689, and was there buried.

And five daughters; whereof the Ladies Mary, Emilia, and Henrietta, died in their infancy.

Lady Elizabeth died unmarried, 20th April, 1750, and was buried with her father.

And Lady Mary was married, 21st October, 1710, to John Lord Ashburnham, and dying 2d January, 1712, æt. 23, without surviving issue, was buried at Ashburnham.

<sup>f</sup> “ When Stanhope moved for his impeachment (says Coxe), Hutcheson, member for Hastings, made a long speech in his behalf, and urged many palliating circumstances; and Sir Joseph Jekyll, whose principles and conduct had always proved him a sincere friend to the Protestant succession, spoke warmly on the same side. The debate continued above nine hours, and Ormond had so many friends, that his impeachment was carried only by a majority of forty-seven. The proceedings against Ormond would not, in all probability, have been conducted with much asperity, had he preserved the moderation, which, under his circumstances, would have been becoming; but, on the contrary, whilst his conduct was under inquiry, before the secret committee, he lived in an unsuitable style of magnificence, affected to court popularity, and saw with complacency, his name made the signal of tumult and disloyal exclamation! Even after his impeachment, Devonshire had arranged for him a private interview with the King; but far from availing himself of this kindness, and contrary to the promise extorted from him by his Tory friends, he withdrew from the kingdom, and precluded the possibility of a return to his native country, by instantly entering into the service of the Pretender. Having once embraced that desperate measure, he was too honest and zealous to act like Bolingbroke, and obtain a pardon by sacrificing the interest of his new master; or by entering into a compromise with his prosecutors.”

CHARLES, Earl of Arran, and LORD BUTLER OF WESTON, in England, the younger son of Thomas, Earl of Ossory, was born 4th September, 1671, and by King William made a Lord of his Bedchamber; Colonel of a regiment of horse; and, by privy seal, dated at Whitehall 15th January, 1693, and patent, 8th March following, created Baron of Cloughgrenan, Viscount of Tullogh, and Earl of Arran; and also a Baron of England, by the title of LORD BUTLER OF WESTON. The preamble: Nos regia mente recolentes eximia merita et virtutes prædilecti et fidelis subditi nostri Caroli Butler, filii secundo geniti egregii viri Thomæ nuper Comitis de Ossory, necnon fidelitatem erga nos illustrem, ac res per illum contra inimicos nostros fortissime gestas, in magnam rerum nostrarum emolumentum, quæ omnia simul cum partus ejus nobilitate et hæreditario ejus erga coronam nostram Angliæ studio, nobis amplissime innotuerint. His Lordship, 14th January, 1702, was made a Brigadier-General of her Majesty's armies, and 22d April, 1708, a Lieutenant-General. By patent, 6th June, 1712, he was constituted Master of the Ordnance, in the room of Lieutenant-General Ingoldsby deceased, but this he resigned on the Queen's demise. In July 1713, he was made Governor of Dover Castle, and Deputy Warden of the Cinque Ports, which he also resigned at the same time. On 10th September, 1715, he was elected Chancellor of the University of Oxford; and 28th February following, Lord High Steward of the city and liberties of Westminster.

He married Elizabeth, fourth and youngest daughter of Thomas, Lord Crew, of Stene, but by her, who became coheir to her uncle, Nathaniel, Lord Crew, Bishop of Durham (who died without issue 18th September, 1721), and died 21st May, 1756, his Lordship had no issue, and deceasing 17th December, 1758, æt. 88, the titles became extinct.

He married Eleanor, eldest daughter of Nicholas Morris, of the Court, in county of Dublin, Esq. (son of Sir John, and great uncle to the late Sir Redmond Morris, Barts.), and by her, who died January 1794, had three daughters,

First, Frances, the elder, married to — Cavanagh, of Borris, in county of Carlow, Esq. and died January 1802. Second, Susan, to — Cavanagh, Esq. of the same family. Third, Lady Eleanor, who resided many years in Llangollen Vale, married, August 11th, 1808, Cornelius O'Callaghan, Viscount Lismore.

And an only son,

He left issue behind him two daughters; Margaret and Catherine, by Anne, second daughter of Sir William Ingleby, of Ripley, Bart. who, in just esteem of her husband's virtues, erected this monument to his memory, and to admonish thee, Reader, that he was worthy thy imitation; for as he was singularly happy in all the virtues of a private condition, so the great concern he shewed in procuring the authority of the legislature, to enable him to do honourable right to his family, though to the diminution of his own revenue, shows his goodness was not confined to himself: and his known ability might have rendered him a public blessing, had not the circumstances of the times he lived in, hindered him from entering upon public action.

The Torporley and Utkinton estates came by marriage with the coheir of the Dones. "Sir John Done, who was knighted by King James, at his house at Utkinton, in 1617, on occasion of the King's hunting in the Forest of Delamere, of which he was hereditary Bow-bearer, died in 1629: his only son, John Done, Esq. dying either before, or soon after him, without issue, the estates were divided among the three surviving sisters; Jane, who died unmarried; Mary, wife of John Crewe, Esq.; and Eleanor, wife of Ralph Arderne, Esq. Upon a partition, the manor and advowson of Torporley, and the manor of Utkinton, were allotted to Jane, the eldest sister, who, by a deed of February 12th, 1662, settled those estates to the use of herself for life, with remainder to her sister, Mary, for life, with divers remainders over; upon the determination of which, the premises so settled, were to be divided into six parts; two sixths were limited to Sir John Arderne (then son, and heir apparent to his sister Eleanor), and his heirs; and the other four sixths to Henry, Ralph, James, and Philip, younger brother of the said Sir John, to each of them and his heirs, one sixth. These estates became afterwards the subject of litigation in the Court of Chancery; and so continued till the year 1725, when a partition was decreed between the children of Eleanor, the youngest sister of Mrs. Jane Done (who married Ralph Arderne, Esq.), in the following proportions: two sixths of the manors, with Utkinton-Hall, which had then lately been the seat of Sir John Crewe, were allotted to Sir John Arderne, Knight, great grandfather of John Arden, Esq. the present proprietor; one sixth to Henry Arderne, the ancestor of Mrs. Glegg, in whom it is now vested; one sixth to Ralph Arderne, whose eldest daughter brought it in marriage to Jonathan Hulley; another sixth part was allotted to the Dean and Chapter of Chester, as devisees of Dean Arderne, who died in 1651, having bequeathed the chief part of his estates to that body; the remaining sixth part was allotted to Philip Arderne, and having been devised by him to the Dukensfield family, was purchased in 1773, of Sir Nathaniel Dukensfield, Bart. by Philip Egerton, Esq. of Oulton, father of John Egerton, Esq. the present proprietor." Lions, at supr.

ABERCROMBY, BARONESS ABERCROMBY.

THE surname of ABERCROMBY, like others of great antiquity, is local, taken from the lands of Abercromby, in the county of Fife, which was the ancient possession of this family.

The Abercrombies of that Ilk, were very considerable gentlemen.

THOMAS ABERCROMBY, of that Ilk, in the reign of King James II. was one of the Lords of Session, or what at that time was a committee of parliament, who were from one session to another appointed for the administration of justice, anno 1457. He left a son,

THOMAS, his successor in the barony of Abercromby,

And a daughter, Margaret, who was married to Maule, of Panmure.

And from this THOMAS the line of the family continued till the reign of King CHARLES I. anno 1649, that THOMAS Abercromby sold the Barony of Abercromby to Sir James Sandilands, of St. Monance, who was created Lord Abercromby in the year 1647.

The most ancient cadet of this family of Abercromby of that Ilk, was Abercromby, of Birkenbog, in the shire of Banff, whose predecessor was HUMPHREDUS de Abercromby, a son of the house of Abercromby, who obtained a charter and grant from King Robert the Bruce, of the lands of Harthill and Arduin, pro homagio et servitio suo, as the charter bears; which is still extant in the custody of Sir James Abercromby, of Birkenbog, Baronet. It is without date, but appears to have been about 1315, the seventh year of the King's reign, immediately after the battle of Bannockburn, when that immortal monarch began to reward the loyalty and valour of such of his subjects as had served him hitherto with merit and fidelity.

This Humphrey Abercromby, of Harthill, was succeeded by ALEXANDER de Abercromby, who acquired from Patricias Hay, dimidium partem terræ de Ardhuienyh, to be held of him and his heirs in feudo et hæreditate. To the deed the grantor's seal is appended, and the witnesses are Domino Willielmo Episcopo Aberdonensi, Domino David Fleming, milite, Johanne de Periston. The charter is granted in the reign of King David II. To this Alexander succeeded another

ALEXANDER de Abercromby, designed of Pitmithen; and to him succeeded his son and heir,

ALEXANDER Abercromby, of Pitmithen, as is vouched by a precept out of the chancery, by King James III. for investing the said Alexander in the lands of Harthill, Pitmithen, Pitmachy, Halton, and Ardoun, in comitatu de Garioch. The instrument of sasine is dated the 4th of August, 1484, the 25th year of the King's reign. Then succeeded

JAMES Abercromby, of Leg and Birkenbog, who is also designed of Pitmithen. He was married to Margaret Ogilvie, daughter of Sir James Ogilvie, of Findlater and Deskford, and was slain with King James IV. at the battle of Flodden. He was succeeded by

GEORGE Abercromby, of Pitmithen, his son, who, by Christian his wife, a daughter of ——— Barclay, of the Barclays, of Gartlay, had

JAMES, his son and heir, who succeeded him, and married Marjory Hay, a daughter to William, Earl of Errol.

ALEXANDER Abercromby succeeded to James, and married Margaret, daughter of Leslie, of Pitcaple, who was again succeeded by ALEXANDER, his son, who married Margaret Leslie, daughter of William Leslie, of Balquhain by whom he had

JAMES Abercromby of Birkenbog, and

ALEXANDER, who was Laird of Fitternier, father of ALEXANDER Abercromby, of Fitternier, who, by Jean his wife, daughter of John Slaton, of Newark, had

FRANCIS Abercromby, of Fitternier, who was by King James VII. created Lord Glassford for life, in regard that his children by his wife, Anne, Baroness of Semple, were to succeed to the honours of Lord Semple; of which marriage is descended the present Hugh, Lord Semple.

The Lord Glassford had a younger brother, Patrick Abercromby, M.D. who wrote the Lives of the Scots warriors, in two volumes, with great exactness and ingenuity.

The above JAMES Abercromby, of Birkenbog, was succeeded by ALEXANDER Abercromby, of Birkenbog, who was Falconer to Charles I. He married Elizabeth Beaton, daughter to Beaton of Balfour, by whom he had

First, Sir ALEXANDER Abercromby, Baronet.

Second, John Abercromby, of Glasshaugh.

Third, Walter Abercromby, of Braconhilly.

Sir Alexander married, first, Jean Urquhart, of the family of Urquhart of Cromarty; and after her, Jean Sutherland, of the family of Kilminity; and, lastly, Elizabeth Baird, daughter to Sir James Baird of Auchmeddan, chief of that name; by which last Lady he had

First, Sir JAMES Abercromby, of Birkenbog. And,

Second, ALEXANDER Abercromby, of Tillibody, who succeeded to his cousin, GEORGE Abercromby, of Keith (who was an ancient cadet of the family of Birkenbog), in the lands of Tillibody.<sup>a</sup>

GEORGE Abercromby, of Tillibody, Esq. married Mary, daughter of Ralph Dundas, of Manour, Esq. and had issue,

First, Sir Ralph.

Second, Barnet Abercromby.

Third, Sir Robert, K. B. a General in the army, and Colonel of the 75th regiment of foot.

Fourth, Alexander, died in 1795.

Sir RALPH was born about 1738; and on May 23d, 1756, obtained a Cornetcy in the second regiment of dragoon guards; and rose, April 24th, 1762, to the rank of Captain in the third regiment of dragoons. Ascending through the intermediate gradations of rank, he was appointed, November 3d, 1781, to the Colonelcy of the 103d foot. September 28th, 1787, he was promoted to the rank of Major General. November 5th, 1796, he obtained the command of the seventh regiment of dragoons.

Having been nearly forty years in the army, having served with honour in two wars, and being esteemed one of the ablest, coolest, and most intrepid officers in the whole British forces, he was employed on the Continent under his Royal Highness the Duke of York, in the commencement of the present war. In the action on the heights of Cateau, he commanded the advanced guard. At Nimeguen he was wounded. He conducted the march of the Guards from Deventer to Ochensaal, in the retreat of the British out of Holland, in the Winter of 1794-5.

In August 1795, he was appointed to succeed Sir Charles Grey as Commander in Chief of the British forces in the West Indies. March 24th, 1796, Grenada was suddenly attacked, and taken by a detachment of the army under his orders. He afterwards obtained possession of the settlements of Demerara and Issequibo, in South America. St. Lucia was next taken by some difficult exertions, in which the ability of this eminent Commander was signally displayed. St. Vincent's was, by the middle of June, added to the British conquests. Trinidad, in February 1797, shared the same fate.

He returned the same year to Europe; and in reward for such important services, was invested with the red ribbon, appointed to the command of the regiment of Scotch Greys, intrusted with the governments of the Isle of Wight, Fort George, and Fort Augustus, and raised to the rank of Lieutenant-General.

He held for a time the chief command of the forces in Ireland. In that command he laboured to maintain the discipline of the army, to suppress the rising rebellion, and to protect the people from military oppression, with a care, worthy alike of the great general, and the enlightened and beneficent statesman.

From that station he was called to the chief command of the forces in Scotland. His conduct in this distinguished appointment gave universal satisfaction.

When the great enterprize against Holland was resolved upon, Sir Ralph Abercromby was called upon again to command under his Royal Highness the Duke of York. The difficulties of the ground, the inclemency of the season; delays, though inconvenient, yet unavoidable; the disorderly movements of the Russians, and the timid duplicity of the Dutch, disappointed our hopes of that expedition. But, by the Dutch, the French, the British, it was confessed, that even victory, the most decisive, could not have more conspicuously proved the talents of this illustrious officer. His country applauded the choice, when he was sent with an army to disposses the French of Egypt, 1801. His experience in Holland and Flanders, and in the climate of the West Indies, particularly fitted him for this new command. He accomplished some of the first duties of a general, in carrying his army in health, in spirits, and with the requisite intelligence and supplies, to the destined scene of action. The landing, the first dispositions, the attacks, and the courage opposed to attack, the spirit with which his army appears to have been, by confidence in their leader, inspired; the extraordinary superiority which the British infantry under his command evinced, to that which was thought the bravest and best disciplined infantry in the world, demonstrate that all the best qualities of one of the bravest commanders were in Sir Ralph Abercromby united—that they were all summoned forth into activity in the glorious achievements amid which he fell. His private character was modest, disinterested, upright, unstained by any negligent or licentious vice. He was a good son, brother, father, husband, and friend, as well as an able and heroic general. His remains were conveyed on board Admiral Lord Keith's flag-ship to Malta, attended by Col. Sir John Dyer, to be there interred in the commandery of the Grand Master, with the highest military honours.<sup>b</sup>

The following just tribute to his memory is extracted from the London Gazette, from Lieutenant-General Hutchinson (now Lord Hutchinson), dated Head-Quarters, Camp, four miles from Alexandria, April, 3d, 1801 :

“ We have sustained an irreparable loss in the person of our never sufficiently to be lamented Commander in Chief, Sir Ralph Abercromby, who was mortally wounded in the action, and died on the 28th of March. I believe he was wounded early, but he concealed his situation from those about him, and continued in the field giving his orders with that coolness and perspicuity, which had ever marked his character, till long after the action was over, when he fainted through weakness and loss of blood. Were it permitted for a soldier to regret any one who has fallen in the service of his country, I might be excused for lamenting him, more than any other person; but it is some consolation to those who tenderly loved him, that, as his life was honourable, so was his death glorious. His memory will be recorded in the the annals of his country—will be sacred to every British soldier, and embalmed in the recollection of a grateful posterity.”<sup>c</sup>

By Sir Herbert Croft, Bart.

“ So may some gentle muse,
With lucky words favour my destined urn!
And, as he passes, turn
And bid fair peace be to my sable shroud!”

“ Epaminondas, Wolfe, time's roll shall tell,
In weeping victory's fond embraces fell;
Egypt has seen a third as greatly die,
Whose loss from victory drew as deep a sigh.
Brave Abercromby stamped his British name,
Where Alexander trac'd the path to fame.
On the last pyramid late time shall find
His glorious name with gallant Nelson's joined.
While Keith his corse, with each sad sailor's praise,
To Malta's vaults of chivalry conveys;
While Addington's * fine feelings dress his bier,
On which brave Moira * drops a soldier's tear;
Britain decrees her chief this sacred stone,
Which makes her thanks, though not his glory, known.
Her thanks, not grief; for widow, child, or friend,
Who mourns so grand, so classic, proud an end?
Here, ye young warriors, every vacant day,
In holy pilgrimage your visits pay
Here, sailors, soldiers, wish for such a doom;
While Valour worships at a hero's tomb!
Touch the live stone; the electric light'ning feel;
On patriot marble whet your patriot steel.
Did fondest mothers, wives, and children pray,
They may survive, to boast so great a day!
May see their sole delight, with scarce a sigh,
The envied death of Abercrombie die!
Let his immortal tomb thus speak to all:
“ Weep not, should those, you love most dearly fall;
And wish to die yourselves, at your lov'd country's call.”

“ With pleasure (says a correspondent of Mr. Urban), I have read the letter of the ingenious patriot Sir Herbert Croft, together with his Epitaph on the late General Sir Ralph Abercromby, which is worthy the appropriated first page of your Monthly Repository. Nevertheless, were it possible to contain still greater merit, I hope never to see it, "used," nor any other, even if the collected efforts of every classic genius could be united in the formation. I have long indulged a hope of seeing announced, that on the mural monument, under the invincible standard, will be transcribed the sympathizing narrative from the dispatches of Sir John Hely Hutchinson, now Baron Alexandria.

"Not the resplendent and refrigent coincidence of united talents, can form any thing more truly sublime, energetic, descriptive, or congenial to an Englishman, than the aforesaid account, written at the time, and on the spot, whilst all the affections and feelings were warm with the event. Not the Greek epigram of Byzantine Antiphilus, to the memory of Agricola, nor the most tender lamentations of Tacitus on the same great man, are more truly pathetic than those words of the surviving Commander of Egypt. Should any other epitaph be adopted, it will fall, like unto a masterly copy of an incomparable original."

FITZHERBERT, LORD ST. HELENS.

THE two families of FITZHERBERT of Norbury, and FITZHERBERT of Somersall-Herbert and Tissington, in Derbyshire, can be traced in that county as early as the origin of surnames. They are said to have been of the same stock as the ancient baronial house of Fitzherbert, of whom HERBERT Fitzherbert was Lord Chamberlain to King Stephen, and was lord of the Forest of Dene, in Gloucestershire. On this subject a memorable dispute occurred between Brooke the Herald, and Camden, in consequence of an assertion of the latter in his Britannia.

“ Herbert (says Camden) married the sister of William, Earl of Hereford, and in her right was Lord of Dene, from whom descended the noble family of Herbert;<sup>a</sup> hence also, if we shall credit the heralds and escutcheons of arms, Anthony Fitzherbert, that great lawyer, and Lord Chief Justice of England, took his original. But I think he rather descended from the worshipful family of Fitzherberts, in Derbyshire.”

To this Brooke answered, “ Whoever shall derive the said Anthony, or any of that family of Fitzherberts, from any other original than that of Herbert, who married the sister of William, Earl of Hereford, have and shall err from the truth.”

I am clear that Camden was nearer the truth than Brooke. That the Lord Chamberlain, and the Fitzherberts of Derbyshire, might be descended from a common ancestor, is probable from the similarity of names (and perhaps from that only); but dates will not allow the latter to have been descended from the former.<sup>b</sup>

But what is more, even the two Derbyshire families, of Norbury and Somersal-Herbert (of which that of Tissington is a younger branch), cannot be traced to a common origin. Their fountain-head is lost in the abyss of time. Their very arms, which are of venerable antiquity, inasmuch as their usage of them can be exhibited from the time of Henry II. are totally dissimilar: but this is by no means conclusive against a common progenitor; because those of Norbury took theirs<sup>c</sup> in allusion to the coat of their feudal chief, Ferrers, Earl of Derby; and might perhaps on that account desert the common family coat. The ancestors of the present Peer have borne the same arms as Stephen Fitzherbert, the Lord Chamberlain.<sup>d</sup>

WILLIAM Fitzherbert, of Somersal, who was father of

THOMAS Fitzherbert, of Somersal, living 56 Henry III. who had issue,

NICHOLAS FITZHERBERT, of the same, 27 Edward I. who, by Maud his wife, had

JOHN Fitzherbert, of the same, 32 Edward III. who had issue by Eleanor his wife,

WALTER Fitzherbert, 7 Henry IV. who was father of JOHN Fitzherbert, of Somersal, temp. Henry V. who<sup>f</sup> had three sons; viz.

First, JOHN Fitzherbert, of Somersal, 38 Henry VI. who, by Joan his wife, had a daughter, Joan, who died a nun, and JOHN Fitzherbert, of Somersal, 3 Richard III. who, by Margaret, daughter of John Kinarsley, of Loxley, co. Staff, had, First, Robert. Second, John, a priest. ROBERT, eldest son, was of Somersal, 13 Henry VII. and by Isabel, daughter of Chambers of Staffordshire, had issue, First, Nicholas. Second, Walter. Third,

<sup>e</sup> The family of Norbury are descended from William Fitzherbert, who had a grant of the manor of Norbury from the Prior of Turbury, in 1125, 25 or 26 Henry II. His son, John, was father of John, whose son, William, gave Norbury to his son, Henry, in 1267. From him descended Sir Anthony Fitzherbert, of Norbury, the famous Judge, who died 1538, and was buried in Norbury church. See their pedigree in Topographer, II. 225.

<sup>f</sup> The pedigree I have followed in Harl. MSS. 5809, states his wife to have been daughter of Robert Frauncis, cousin and heir of Thomas Clanville; but this is probably a confusion with the wives of his two younger sons, who married the coheirs of Frauncis.

Hugh. Fourth, John. Fifth, Robert. Sixth, Joan, wife of Edward Columbello, of Nettleworth. NICHOLAS, son and heir, 27 Henry VIII. had by a daughter of John Peverton, of Cheshire, First, John. Second, Nicholas, who married Margery, daughter of Careswell. Third, Robert, who married Alice, daughter of Richard Smith, of Coventry. Fourth, Another Robert. Fifth, Thomas. JOHN Fitzherbert, of Somersal, son and heir, married Anne, daughter of John Ferne, and had (besides a younger son, Edward), ROBERT Fitzherbert, of Somersal, son and heir, who by the daughter of Gilliot, was father of FRANCIS Fitzherbert, of Somersal, who by Anne, daughter of William Browne, of Marston, co. Derb. had two daughters.<sup>3</sup>

Second, Nicholas Fitzherbert, of Upton, of whom presently.

Third, William Fitzherbert, who married Margery, daughter of Robert Francis, of Foremark, co. Derby, by Anne, daughter and heir of Sir Thomas Clinton, Knt. by Joan (widow of John Staunton), daughter and coheir of Ralph Meignell, of Langley-Meignell, co. Derb.

By this Margery, William Fitzherbert had issue, First, NICHOLAS Fitzherbert, who died 31 Henry VIII. leaving three daughters, Cicely, married to Robert Richardson; Anne, married to Thomas Banister; and Dorothy, married, first, to Everard; and afterwards to Clarke.<sup>b</sup> Second, William Fitzherbert, died S.P. Third, Thomas Fitzherbert, of Melborne, father of William and Robert.

NICHOLAS Fitzherbert, of Upton, already mentioned, second son of John of Somersal, obtained Upton and Burton-Overy, co. Leic. with Tissington, co. Derb. by marriage with Cicely, another daughter of Robert Francis, of Foremark, by Anne, daughter of Sir Thomas Clinton, by Joan, daughter and coheir of Ralph Meignell, of which Joan, Lady Clinton, the will may be found at length in Nichols's Leicestershire, Vol. III. p. 709.<sup>i</sup> By Cicely Francis, Nicholas Fitzherbert had issue,

<sup>i</sup> It appears that Robert Francis had also a son, from whom descended the subsequent male heirs of that family, which ended in a female, married to the ancestor of Sir Francis Burdett, Bart. now of Foremark. John Staunton, the former husband of Joan, Lady Clinton, left by her a daughter and heir, Margaret, married to Ralph Shirley, ancestor to Earl Ferrers.

NICHOLAS Fitzherbert, of Upton, co. Leic. his son and heir, who married Grace, daughter of — Eyre, of Holme, co. Derb. by whom he had a son, and four daughters; viz.

Elizabeth, wife of — Beresford, of Newton-Grange. Dorothy, wife of William Cooke, of Trusley, co. Derb. Grace, wife of Robert Whithall, of Sharpcliff. Anne, wife of John Beresford, of Bradley-Ash. And,

GEORGE Fitzherbert, only son, living 6 Henry VIII. who by Anne, daughter of Humphrey Beresford of Slaton, had two sons;

First, HUMPHRY Fitzherbert, who married Joan, daughter of Henry Collaghe (brother to Sir Thomas), but died S. P.

Second, ROBERT Fitzherbert, living 1582, who married, first, a daughter of John Cotes, of Woodcot, co. Salop, by whom he had two daughters, and a son; viz.

Maud, wife of John Beresford; Jane, wife of John Porte, of co. Staff. And, Francis, eldest son, of whom presently.

He married, secondly, Jane, daughter of Thomas Basset, of Hintes, co. Staff. by whom he had,

Second, John Fitzherbert, æt. 32, 1589.

Third, Ralph; and Dorothy, wife of John Hill, of Little-pipe.

FRANCIS Fitzherbert, son and heir, 1589, had two wives. First, Jane, daughter of Hugh Armstrong, of Wissal, in the county of Notts.

He married, secondly, Elizabeth, daughter of John Bullock; and by her had issue

Sir JOHN Fitzherbert, of Tissington, co. Derb.<sup>k</sup> knighted at Welbeck, co. Notts. August 10th, 1624, who died August 2d,

A sister of Joan, Lady Clinton, married Reginald Dethick, whose daughter and heir by her, married Ralph Basset, of Blore, co. Staff. whose son by her, Ralph Basset, of Blore, was father of William Basset, of Blore, who by the coheir of Byron, was great grandfather, of William Basset, of Blore, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Anthony Fitzherbert, of Norbury, the Judge, and left a son, William, whose daughter and heir, Elizabeth, married William Cavendish, Duke of Newcastle.

Ralph Meignell was great great grandson of Sir Hugh Meignell, Knt. who died 7 Edward III. having married Joan, daughter and heir of Robert Byron, a ward, by Ida, daughter of Robert, Lord Fitzwalter. Sir Hugh Meignell was grandson of Hugh Meignell, 32 Henry III. by Philippa, sister and heir of William Le Savage.

1642, æt. 43. He married Elizabeth, daughter and coheir of Anthony Fitzherbert, Esq. of Norbury, co. Derby (descended from Sir Anthony Fitzherbert, the Judge, of which family some account has already been given at the commencement of this article.) She died February 17th, 1630. By her he had issue three daughters, and three sons; viz.

Elizabeth and Martha died young; and another Elizabeth, who died unmarried at Ludlam, co. Norfolk, æt. 18, and was buried there.

The sons were, first, William, of whom presently.

Second, Francis, living 1662, and 1666, but died young.

Third, Anthony, ancestor to the present Peer.

WILLIAM Fitzherbert, of Tissington, Esq. son and heir, was born in 1624, being æt. 38, in 1662. He died June 24th, 1696, æt. 72, having been twice married. His second wife was Anne, daughter of Richard Breton, of Elmesthorpe, co. Leic. relict of John Porte, of London, merchant; she died October 13th, 1684. By her he left no surviving issue.

His first wife was Mary, daughter of Thomas Cromwell, Lord Cromwell, and Earl of Ardglass, in Ireland; and by her, who died April 8th, 1676, he had issue four sons; viz.

William, Francis, John, and Cromwell; who all died young.

Also nine daughters; viz.

First, Mary, daughter and coheir, aged seven years, 1662, married John Porte, of Ilam, co. Derby, Esq. and died May 23d, 1675.

Second, Jane, æt. 4, in 1662, died unmarried March 2d, 1681.

Third, Anne, aged four months in 1662, married John Fitzherbert, of Somersal Herbert, Esq.

Fourth, Elizabeth. Fifth, Elizabeth. Sixth, Martha; all died young.

Seventh, Martha died unmarried 1699.

Eighth and Ninth, Frances and Martha died unmarried.

ANTHONY Fitzherbert, third son of Sir John Fitzherbert, by Elizabeth Fitzherbert already mentioned, was living in 1662, and left issue by Elizabeth, daughter of ——— Wicholes, of Boycote, co. Salop, two sons, and two daughters; viz.

First, William, of whom presently.

Second, John died in the East Indies, S. P.

Third, Mary married John Buxton, of Beassington, co. Derby, Esq.

Fourth, Elizabeth died unmarried, and was buried at Hampstead, co. Middlesex, where is her tomb.

WILLIAM Fitzherbert, of Tissington, Esq. the eldest son, succeeded his uncle, William, in that estate, 1696. He was a Barrister of some eminence; and Recorder of Derby, where he chiefly resided. By his professional industry, and good management, he retrieved the family estate, which had been materially injured during the civil wars; in which his two immediate predecessors had been actually engaged in support of the Royal cause. He died in 1739, æt. 68, and was buried at Tissington; having married Rachel, daughter, and at length heir, of Thomas Bagshaw, of Bakewell and Ridge, co. Derb. who died in 1762, and was buried at Tissington. By her he had issue,

First, William, of whom presently.

Second, John, Rector of Doveridge, co. Derb. married, and was living S. P. in 1782.

Fourth, Thomas. Fifth, Anthony. Sixth, Francis; all died young.

Martha, eldest daughter, married Hugh Bonfoy, Esq. and was living his widow in 1782. Catharine was wife of Richard Bateman, of Derby, Esq. and died in 1776. Mary died young.

WILLIAM Fitzherbert, of Tissington, Esq. eldest son, was member in three successive parliaments for the borough of Derby. In that capacity he distinguished himself by his zealous promotion of all measures tending to advance the internal prosperity of the community. And amongst other services, it deserves to be particularly recorded, that he was the chief, if not the sole framer of those various legislative provisions, which by effecting the present beneficial improvements in the police, the parochial managements, and the paving, lighting, cleansing, and laying open the streets of the metropolis, have so materially contributed to its embellishment, and to the health, safety, and comfort of its inhabitants. He was also at the head of the Board of Commissioners appointed to carry these laws into execution, a Lord Commissioner of Trade and Plantations, a Vice-President of the Society of Arts, and a leading member of many other useful institutions. But much as his time was occupied by these employments, he was nevertheless exemplarily assiduous in the discharge of his social duties, and in rendering the most extensive and essential offices of kindness to individuals; and especially to his family and children: so that it may be truly affirmed, that the whole tenor of his life was a constant series of public and private acts of beneficence.

He died January 2d,<sup>1</sup> 1772, having married Mary, eldest daughter of Littleton Pointz Meynill, of Bradley, co. Derb. Esq. by his wife, Judith, daughter of Thomas Alleyne, of the Island of Barbadoes, Esq. and by her, who died February 28th, 1753, had issue,

First, William Fitzherbert, born June 3d, 1747, died March 1748, and was buried at Tissington.

Second, Sir William.

Third, John, born July 8th, 1749, was a Writer in the service of the East India Company, and died at Bengal, 1776.

Fourth, Thomas, born August 5th, 1750, a Lieutenant in the 21st regiment of foot, died unmarried, and was buried at Tissington, 1767.

Fifth, Alleyne, now Lord St. Helens.

Judith, eldest daughter, born January 23d, 1745, died February 23d, 1757, and was buried at Tissington.

Selina, second daughter, born October 31st, 1751, married Henry Gally Knight, of Langold, co. Notts. Esq. and had an only son, Henry Gally, born December 1786.

Sir WILLIAM Fitzherbert, of Tissington, eldest son, was born May 27th, 1748, was one of the Gentlemen Ushers Daily Waiters to his present Majesty; and was created a Baronet, January 22d, 1784. He was a Fellow Commoner of St. John's College, Cambridge; and obtained the degree of A. M. by mandamus, in 1767. He was, during seven years, a practising Barrister; but passed the latter part of his life at his seat in Derbyshire, and took a very active and useful share in the public business of that county as one of its Magistrates, and as Recorder of the borough of Derby. He was author of two<sup>m</sup> small tracts; one entitled Maxims; and the other, A Dialogue on the Revenue Laws; both of which are elegantly written, and display much useful and practical knowledge and observation, together with the highest benevolence and zeal for the public good. He died July 30th, 1791, aged forty-three, having married at St. George's, Bloomsbury-square, October 14th, 1777, Sarah, only daughter of William Perrin, of the Island of Jamaica, Esq. Which Lady died in London, 1795, and was buried at Tissington, near her husband. By her he had issue,

First, Sir ANTHONY PERRIN Fitzherbert, second Baronet, born in St. George, Bloomsbury, July 21st, 1779; a young man of a most amiable disposition, and great promise, who was entered at St. John's College, Cambridge, as a Fellow Commoner, under the private tuition of the Rev. Mr. Outram, in October 1797; but, to the inexpressible concern of his friends and family, he died at Bristol of a rapid consumption, April 2d, 1798, being then in his nineteenth year.

Second, George, born November 25th, 1780, died an infant.

Third, Sir Henry, present Baronet.

Fourth, Charles, a twin with Henry, died soon after.

Fifth, Charlotte, born June 20th, 1782, died same year, and buried at Cheam, co. Surrey.

Sir HENRY, third Baronet, was born, August 4th, 1783, in the parish of St. George, Bloomsbury, and there baptized. He was educated at St. John's College, Cambridge, and took the degree of A.M. 1784. He married, December 27th, 1785, Agnes, daughter of the late Rev. William Beresford, Rector of Sunning, Berks.

ALLEYNE Fitzherbert, LORD ST. HELENS, uncle of Sir Henry, born in 1753, had his school education at Derby and at Eton; and in July 1770, was admitted a Pensioner of St. John's; where his private tutor was the late Rev. William Arnauld, whose uncommon talents and acquirements must, no doubt, be still remembered by many individuals of that society. He became B.A. in 1774; when he obtained the first of the two gold medals given annually by the Chancellor of the University, for the encouragement of classical learning. In 1775, being then making the tour of France and Italy, he was presented to one of the University Travelling Scholarships; and he took his degree of M.A. by proxy, in 1777.

He was employed, at an early age, in the diplomatical profession; having been appointed, in March 1777, to the post of his Majesty's Minister at Brussels.

He resided at that Court till Aug. 1782; when he was sent to Paris with the commission of sole PLENIPOTENTIARY for negotiating a peace with the Crowns of France and Spain, and the States General of the United Provinces: which arduous and important work he had the happiness to accomplish, by the conclusion of the several preliminary treaties with those Powers, which were signed at Versailles in January 1783. He had also a leading share in negotiating the peace with America, which was concluded at Paris at the same period. And though these treaties were censured at the time by a vote of one branch of the Legislature, the test of experience evinced the political wisdom, as well as the solidity of the principles on which they were framed. Since they produced a ten years' peace, during which the British Empire enjoyed the highest state of prosperity to which it had ever attained. And it may be truly affirmed, that the war which afterwards broke out, arose not from any seeds of discord which had been left uneradicated by the peace of 1783, but solely from the fatal effects of the French Revolution: an event which has been so justly and emphatically described by Mr. Burke, as "mocking all calculations framed by wisdom, and founded on experience."

In Aug. 1783, he was appointed ENVOY EXTRAORDINARY to Catharine II. Empress of Russia; whom he accompanied in 1787, on her memorable tour to the Crimea. At the close of the same year, he returned to England; was created a Privy Counsellor; and appointed Chief Secretary to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. In the Spring of 1789, he resigned that employment, and was sent as his Majesty's ENVOY EXTRAORDINARY to the Hague. And in May 1791, he repaired to Madrid, invested with the rank of AMBASSADOR EXTRAORDINARY, and with the necessary powers for accommodating the differences which had arisen at that period between Great Britain and Spain, respecting the right of British subjects to trade at Nootka Sound, and to carry on the Southern Whale Fishery. These differences were amicably adjusted by the convention of the Escorial (signed in October 1790), which was highly approved by the King, and both Houses of Parliament. And his Majesty was pleased, as a reward for his Ambassador's services in negotiating it, to create him an Irish Peer, with the title of Baron St. Helens.

In 1793, he concluded a treaty of alliance between his Majesty and the Crown of Spain. But the climate of that country disagreeing with his health, he quitted it in the beginning of 1794, and was appointed Ambassador at the Hague; where he remained till the ensuing winter, when the legitimate government of the Dutch Republic was overthrown by the invasion of the French.

His latest foreign mission was to St. Petersburg; whither he was sent as Ambassador in May 1801, to congratulate the Emperor Alexander on his accession to the throne of Russia; and to propose terms for accommodating the differences which had arisen between Great Britain and the three Baltic Powers, towards the close of the reign of the Emperor Paul, and had occasioned the attack against Copenhagen, and other mutual hostilities. This negociation he happily brought to a conclusion, within the short period of a fortnight after his arrival in Russia, by the signature of the Convention of St. Petersburg, of the 17th June, 1801. The benefits of which accommodation are described in a recent work (Harris's Preface to his Translation of Gentz's State of Europe), in the following terms: " This Convention is one of the most important treaties in the annals of history; since it has not only put an end to the dangers which threatened the safety of England, and the tranquillity of Europe, at the present moment; but has in all human probability prevented the recurrence of those dangers, by means of its wise and salutary provisions, which are equally just in themselves, and satisfactory to all the parties concerned in it. It seems to have left no dubious point of maritime law, which might serve as a pretext for any future quarrel with Great Britain, or as a handle for any future intrigues of France. The Powers of the North stand pledged to support the system which they were lately bound to oppose; and the equitable concessions which we have consented to make, have added double force to the rights on which we were bound to insist."

Addresses to his Majesty, approving of this Convention, were voted by both Houses of Parliament: and immediately after its signature, Lord St. Helens was promoted to a Peerage of the United Kingdom, by the title of BARON ST. HELENS, of the Isle of Wight.

In September 1801, he attended the coronation of the Emperor Alexander at Moscow; where (in October), he signed a treaty with the Danish Plenipotentiary, in virtue of which, that Crown became an acceding party to the Convention of St. Petersburg. He also concluded, in March 1802, a similar treaty with the Plenipotentiary of the Crown of Sweden; and, having thus accomplished all the objects of his mission to Russia, he returned to England in the autumn of the same year.

He has since had the honour of being appointed one of the Lords of the King's Bed-chamber; an office which he was led to accept, by his sentiments of personal attachment and duty to that truly virtuous and excellent Sovereign, to whom he has been indebted for so many gracious and unsolicited marks of favour. But from the impaired state of his health, and other considerations, he is now unfeignedly desirous of being permitted to retire from all further business, and to pass the remainder of his life amidst the comforts of repose and leisure, and of the society of his friends and family. To this reward he conceives himself to be fairly entitled, by the anxious labours of nearly thirty years; and amongst its chief enjoyments will be the conscious recollection, that, in the discharge of all the more important commissions here enumerated, as well as of many others of lesser moment, it was no less constantly his good fortune, than it was uniformly the earnest and primary wish of his heart, to be materially instrumental in restoring or confirming the blessings of peace."<sup>n</sup>

<sup>n</sup> The private memoir, from whence the biographical notices in the latter part of this article are drawn, is closed with the following just and interesting remarks: "It has been well observed by an ancient writer, that 'history is philosophy teaching by example;' a definition which may justly belong even to so confined a species of historical writing as the account of a private family, if it describes not merely the genealogy, but the virtuous lives or actions of the individuals whom it records: since it thus tends to impart to their posterity, both the knowledge of what is praise-worthy, and the desire of practising it. All the nearest relations of the present family of Fitzherbert were men of business. Those among them who were heirs to easy fortunes, having been endowed with hearts and understandings, which led them to condemn a life of idleness, and to adopt such useful and honourable pursuits, as might enable them to confer benefits upon others, and to deserve well of their country; they had a relish for learning and the arts; and they were lovers of peaceful employments and of peace itself, in preference to warfare and the occupations belonging to it. Above all, loyalty to their Sovereign, and attachment to monarchy, distinguished them from a remote period; and at the same time they were careful to temper it by a sincere regard for the British constitution, and for these principles of genuine and well-regulated Liberty, which form its chief characteristic and excellence."

As Lord St. Helens is descended in the female line from the celebrated judge, Sir ANTHONY Fitzherbert of Norbury, already mentioned, it may not be improper to say something more of that learned man here.

Sir Anthony was third son of Ralph Fitzherbert of Norbury, by Elizabeth, daughter and sole heir of John Marshall, of Upton and Sedi-hall, co. Leic. He was educated at Oxford, and afterwards studying the law, attained the rank of Serjeant, November 18th, 1510; and in 1522, was knighted, and made one of the Judges of the Common Pleas; in which, carrying himself with great prudence, justice, and knowledge, he became at length the oracle of the law; and was admired by all for his profundity in it. He was author of various works, not only on law, but on husbandry; some of which are now exceedingly rare (see Censura Literaria; and British Bibliographer.) His great work, De Natura Bre-vium, is highly praised for its utility by Blackstone; who calls it, "A Digest of that most ancient and highly venerable Collection of Forms, the register of such writs as are suable out of the King's Courts: in which every man who is injured, will be sure to find a method of relief exactly adapted to his own case, described within the compass of a few lines, and yet without the omission of any material circumstance." He died May 27th, 1558, and was buried in Norbury

Anthony Fitzherbert, father of Elizabeth, wife of Sir John Fitzherbert, of Tissington, appears to have been son of John, second son of the Judge. (See Topographer, II. 227.) Of the three daughters of the Judge, Elizabeth was wife of William Basset, of Blore; Catherine was wife of Sacheverell; and Dorothy was wife, first, of Ralph Longford; and, secondly, of Sir John Porte, of Etwall, Knt. Norbury and Somerton still belong to the Fitzherberts. (See Pennant's Journey to London, p. 48.)

ELPHINSTON, LORD KEITH.

THIS ancient noble family originally took the surname of ELPHINSTON, from their own lands of that name in Edinburghshire; the first of whom I have found was JOHN DE ELPHINSTON, who is witness in that grant which Roger de Quincy, Earl of Winchester made to the monks of Dryburgh, de uno Tofto Terræ in Glaswoode circa Annum 1252.<sup>a</sup>

Another ALEXANDER Elphinston de Elphinston, in the time of King David II. had the lands of Kinchinbar, in Baronia de Stenhouse, in Vicecomit. de Stirling,<sup>b</sup> from Godofredus de Ross, Dominus ejusdem in feudo & hæreditate. He was succeeded by ALEXANDER Elphinston Dominus ejusdem, his son, who in the 33d of King David II. exchanged the foresaid lands with Alexander, son of Sir Adam More, Knt. for the lands of Arthbeg, in Stirlingshire, since called Elphinston.

Sir WILLIAM Elphinston, his son, was slain fighting gallantly against the English at the battle of Piperdain, anno 1436, to whose valour chiefly our historians ascribe the victory; leaving only a daughter, Agnes, his sole heir, married to Gilbert, son of Sir Adam Johnston of that Ilk,<sup>c</sup> who thereby came to the possession of the lands of Elphinston, in Lothian.

The rest of the estate of the family in Stirlingshire, by a solemn arbitration, in the year 1471, came to HENRY Elphinstoun, brother to the aforesaid Alexander, which he then called Elphinston.

KEITH, now LORD KEITH, fourth son of Charles, tenth Lord Elphinstone, was born in the year 1747. "Of the early part of his professional career we are constrained to be silent, as no particulars have come to our knowledge sufficiently authentic to be relied on. His promotion as Post Captain bears date May 11th, 1775; and the following year, we believe, he was appointed to the Pearl frigate, of 32 guns, in which vessel he served in America under the orders of Lord Howe; and afterwards in the Perseus frigate, under Admiral Arbuthnot, at the reduction of Charleston, on which occasion he commanded a detachment of seamen on shore, and received the official praise of General Clinton, the Commander of the land-forces, for his gallantry and spirited exertions. On his return from America, Captain Elphinstone was appointed to the Warwick, of 50 guns, in which vessel, being on a cruise in the Channel, he fell in with and captured, on the 5th of January, 1781, a Dutch man of war of equal force.

During the remainder of the war Captain Elphinstone continued in the Warwick, and was, for the most part, employed on the North America station; where, on the 11th of September, 1782, being on a cruise off the Delaware, in company with the Lion, of 64 guns, the Vestal frigate, and the Bonette sloop of war, after a chase of several hours, he came up with, and captured, a large French frigate, l'Aigle, of 40 guns, twenty-four pounders on the main-deck, and 600 men.

From the peace of 1783, Captain Elphinstone appears to have remained unemployed, till the commencement of hostilities with France, in the beginning of the year 1793, when he was appointed to command the Robust, of 74 guns, one of the squadron under Lord Hood, which sailed for the Mediterranean in the month of May. The first object of Lord Hood, on his arrival in the Mediterranean, was to obtain possession of Toulon; and the necessary arrangements being made for that purpose, the troops were landed at Fort la Malgue, under the direction of Captain Elphinstone, who was appointed by the Admiral to act as Governor of the fort, and Commander of the troops. In this arduous and difficult post, Captain Elphinstone displayed not only the greatest personal intrepidity and exertion, but a consummate knowledge of military tactics. It becoming unavoidably necessary that Toulon should be evacuated, the care of embarking the artillery, stores, and troops, was committed to Captain Elphinstone, who, in the execution of this service, merited and received the most liberal encomiums of the Commander in Chief, as also the thanks of General Dundas, who, in his official dispatch, spoke of him in terms of the most flattering approbation; and on his return to England, he was honoured with the Order of the Bath.

On the 11th of April, 1794, our hero received his first promotion as a Flag-Officer, by being made REAR-ADMIRAL of the Blue; and on the 4th of July the same year, he was further advanced to be Rear-Admiral of the White Squadron, and hoisted his flag on board the Barfleur, of 98 guns, one of the ships attached to the Channel fleet, which, on the glorious 1st of June, was commanded by Rear-Admiral Bowyer, but who, having unfortunately lost a leg on that memorable occasion, was obliged for a time to retire from the service. Our Admiral continued in the Channel fleet during the remainder of the year, in which nothing material took place; but early in 1795, hostilities having broke out between Great Britain and the Republic of Holland, he shifted his flag from the Barfleur to the Monarch, of 74 guns, and sailed from Spithead for the Cape of Good Hope, on the 2d of April, where he arrived early in the month of July, with the squadron under his command. Having been joined by the America and Stately, of 64 guns each, the Echo sloop, and some Indiamen with troops, he immediately sent proposals to the Governor of the Cape, to surrender that settlement to his Majesty's arms; which being refused, the necessary measures were taken to reduce the place by force.

In this attack the America had two men killed, and four wounded, and the Stately only one man wounded. On board the other vessels the enemy's shot did some damage, but none were killed or wounded. In the bay were five Dutch East Indiamen, which were taken possession of: three of them from Batavia, with valuable cargoes on board, and two from Amsterdam, which had delivered their cargoes previous to the arrival of the British squadron.

The next day the enemy endeavoured to regain the important position they had lost; having drawn out their whole forces from the Cape Town, with eight field pieces, but were every where repulsed. Upon this occasion Captain Hardy, of the Echo, and Lieutenant Coffin, of the Rattlesnake, particularly distinguished themselves; "having (according to the General's report) crossed the water with the seamen and marines under their command, received the enemy's fire without returning a shot, and manœuvred with a regularity that would not have discredited veteran troops.' It cannot be improper here to remark, nor is it foreign to our subject, that our seamen and marines have invariably acted in the same laudable manner, and deserve similar honourable commendations, whenever they have served on shore with the land-forces.

From this time nothing took place but some partial and unimportant operations, till the 4th of September, when the Admiral was joined in the bay by fourteen sail of Indiamen, having on board a large body of troops, under the command of Major-General Alured Clarke. Upon this accession of strength, the Admiral and General determined to make an immediate attack upon the Cape Town; accordingly, the troops, artillery, and stores, were landed with the greatest expedition from the Indiamen, which was completely effected by the 14th; and on the morning of that day the army began its march, each man carrying four days provisions, and the volunteer seamen from the Indiamen, dragging the cannon through a deep sand.

At Wyneber, a post at a small distance from the Cape Town, the Dutch had planted nine pieces of cannon, and collected their forces, as they had determined to make a firm stand; but they were so resolutely pushed by the British troops, as to be under the necessity of abandoning their position; and nearly at the same time they were alarmed by the appearance of Commodore Blanket, with three ships, which the Admiral had detached into Table Bay, to cause a diversion on that side. Further resistance on the part of the Dutch being now fruitless, the Governor sent out, the same evening, an officer with a flag of truce to solicit a suspension of arms for forty-eight hours, in order to settle the terms of capitulation: this was agreed to for twenty-four hours; and the articles of surrender, which were very favourable to the unfortunate colonists, and bespoke the highest probity, disinterestedness, and humanity in the British Commanders, being settled, Cape Town and its dependencies were next morning put into the hands of the British troops.

Thus fell the Cape of Good Hope, one of the fairest possessions of the Dutch in the East, and at former periods one of the most flourishing colonies that the industry of man had ever planted at so great a distance from the mother country; but, at the time of its surrender, in a condition of decrepitude and weakness analogous to that into which the parent state in Europe had fallen. As a naval station, it proved highly useful during the continuance of the war, by affording a shelter to our ships, and a convenient place of refreshment for their crews; and by facilitating the expeditions which afterwards took place against some of the Dutch settlements in the Indian seas, as well as those to the Red Sea, connected with the French invasion of Egypt.

In his dispatches to the Secretary of State, General Clarke made the following honourable mention of our Admiral, which it would be improper in this place to omit: "The general character of Sir George Keith Elphinstone (says he), and his ardent desire to serve his country, are too well known to receive additional lustre from any thing I could say on that subject; but I should do injustice to my own feelings, if I did not express the obligations I am under for the ready and cordial co-operation and assistance that he afforded upon every occasion, which so eminently contributed to the successful issue of our joint endeavours." A former dispatch from Major-General Craig, has the following passage: "My sense of the obligation I am under to Sir George Elphinstone, is such, as I should not do justice to in an attempt to express it: his advice, his active assistance, and cordial co-operation on every occasion, have never been wanting, and entitle him to my warmest gratitude."

Whatever was the state of decay into which the colony of the Cape of Good Hope had fallen, as it was likely to prove a valuable addition to the strength of Britain in that quarter, and particularly as a point from whence the Dutch settlements in India could be attacked, with great probability of success, it was determined, on the part of the new Government of the Batavian Republic, to make a strenuous effort for its recovery. Accordingly a squadron of nine ships of war, and a store-ship, sailed from Holland in the spring of the year 1796, for the express purpose of retaking the Cape of Good Hope, and arrived off Saldanha Bay early in the month of August. Admiral Elphinstone having received intelligence that a hostile fleet was off the coast, he put to sea in quest of them, and was so fortunate as to discover them at moorings in Saldanha Bay.

He immediately dispatched an officer to the Dutch Commander with a request that, to prevent the effusion of human blood, he would surrender the squadron under his command to the British fleet, intimating, that resistance to a force so superior must expose them to certain destruction. Admiral Lucas, the Dutch Admiral, perceiving that it was impossible to escape, and that opposition would be fruitless, surrendered the whole of his fleet on terms of capitulation on the 17th of August.

After the performance of these services, Admiral Elphinstone quitted the command at the Cape, and sailed for Europe in the month of October. He arrived at Crookhaven, in the Monarch, with the Daphne in company, on the 22d of December; and having learned that the French fleet was upon the coast, and had been dispersed by a gale of wind, made every preparation to put to sea in quest of them. His laudable exertions, however, proved unavailing; for before he could get to sea, the French ships had either fallen into the hands of our cruisers, or, favoured by the extreme stormy weather which at that time prevailed, had regained their own harbours.

On the 7th of March, 1797, his Majesty was pleased to confer on Admiral Elphinstone the dignity of a Baron of the kingdom of Ireland, by the title of Lord Keith, on account of his eminent services at the Cape of Good Hope; and in the month of May the same year, he was sent to Sheerness, on one of the most unpleasant occasions on which an Officer could be employed, to superintend the naval preparations against the mutineers, who at that time unhappily held the command of several of his Majesty's ships at the Nore, and had committed various acts of insubordination and outrage. This threatening storm being dispelled, Lord Keith for a short time commanded a detachment of the Channel fleet, and had his flag flying on board the Queen Charlotte, a ship never to be forgotten in the annals of the British navy.

Towards the latter part of the year 1798, Lord Keith had his flag on board the Foudroyant, of 80 guns, one of the ships employed off Cadiz and in the Mediterranean, under the orders of the Earl of St. Vincent; and on the 14th of February, 1799, he was promoted from Vice Admiral of the Blue to be Vice-Admiral of the Red. On the 23d of June the same year, the Earl of St.

Vincent resigned to him the command of the Mediterranean fleet, and returned to England for the recovery of his health. The season for brilliant operations was in some degree over in that quarter, in consequence of the severe losses which the enemy had sustained, and were in no condition to repair; but much praise was due to Lord Keith for the excellent disposition of the force under his command, and the judgment with which he stationed his cruisers, so that few of the enemy's vessels ventured out of port without falling into the hands of some of our ships of war.

On the 17th of March, 1800, Lord Keith had the misfortune to lose his flag-ship, the Queen Charlotte, by fire, in Leghorn roads; by this melancholy accident upwards of 600 gallant men lost their lives, and one of the noblest ships in the British navy was destroyed. Lord Keith was on shore at Leghorn at the time the conflagration happened; and hoisted his flag on board the Audacious, and afterwards shifted it to the Minotaur. His Lordship then proceeded with part of his fleet off Genoa, which place contained a strong French garrison under General Massena, and was besieged by an Austrian army under General Melas. As there was little probability of being able to reduce the place by any other means than famine, it was an object of the greatest importance that all supplies by sea should be cut off; and this service was so effectually performed by the squadron under Lord Keith, that in the beginning of June the French General was obliged to capitulate, being reduced to the greatest extremity for want of provisions.

On the 1st of January, 1801, a general promotion of Flag-officers took place in honour of the Union between Great Britain and Ireland; and on that occasion Lord Keith was advanced to be Admiral of the Blue.

His flag this year was on board the Foudroyant, of 80 guns, and he commanded the naval force employed against the French on the coast of Egypt.

His conduct on this important station was fully equal to the high promise which his exploits on former occasions held forth to his country; and on the surrender of the French army in Egypt, Lord Keith was on December 15th, 1801, created a Peer of Great Britain, by the title of LORD KEITH, with remainder, on failure of issue male of his body, to his daughter.

He also received the thanks of both Houses of Parliament, and was presented by the city of London with a sword of the value of one hundred guineas.<sup>r</sup>

His Lordship had afterwards for some time the command of the fleet in the Downs, &c.

His Lordship married, first, April 9th, 1787, Jane, daughter and sole heiress of William Mercer, of Aldie, in the county of Perth, Esq. and by her (who died December 12th, 1789), had issue an only child, Margaret-Mercer, on whom the English barony is in remainder.

His Lordship married, secondly, January 10th, 1808, Hester, eldest daughter and coheiress of Henry Thrale, of Streatham, in Surrey, and Crowmarsh, in Oxfordshire, Esq. and member of parliament for Southwark, in 1768 and 1775, by whom he has issue.

His Lordship is Admiral of the White, Knight of the Bath; and of the Turkish Order of the Crescent; Secretary, Chamberlain, Keeper of the Signet, and Counsellor of State for Scotland; and for Cornwall to the Prince of Wales; and Treasurer and Comptroller of the Household to the Duke of Clarence.

<sup>r</sup> We cannot forbear remarking here, that the attention invariably shewn by the city of London, during the late war, to our brave naval officers, was equally honourable to the members of that patriotic and most respectable Coporation, and the heroes on whom its rewards and favours were bestowed.

HUTCHINSON, LORD HUTCHINSON.

JOHN HELY, of Gertrough, in Ireland, Esq. had issue by the daughter of — Earbury, JOHN Hely, who afterwards took the name of HUTCHINSON, an only son. He was called to the Bar in 1748; returned to the Irish parliament for Lanesborough in 1759, and for the city of Cork in 1761, which he continued to represent till his death. He was appointed Prime Serjeant at Law in 1762; Provost of Trinity College, Dublin, in 1764; and SECRETARY OF STATE for Ireland, and Keeper of his Majesty's Signet, or Privy Seal, in 1777. He was also a member of the Privy-council.

He married June 8th, 1751, Christian, daughter of Lorenzo Nixon, Esq. of Murny, in Wicklow, and niece and heir of Richard HUTCHINSON, of Knocklofty, in the county of Tipperary, Esq. This Lady was raised to the Irish Peerage, by the title of Baroness Donoughmore, of Knocklofty aforesaid, by Privy Seal at St. James's, dated September 23d, 1783, and by patent at Dublin, October 16th following, with remainder to the heirs male of her body. She died June 24th, 1788.

He died in 1795, leaving issue by her,

First, RICHARD, born January 29th, 1756, who succeeded his mother as Baron Donoughmore, in 1788, was created Viscount Donoughmore on November 7th, 1797, and Earl of Donoughmore, December 29th, 1800, with a special remainder to the heirs male of Christian, Baroness Donoughmore, by the Right Hon. John Heley Hutchinson. His Lordship is a Lieut.-General in the army, and Governor of Tipperary, and one of the Peers elected for life to represent the Irish Peerage in the British House of Lords.

Second, John, Lord Hutchinson, of whom presently.

Third, Francis, born October 26th, 1759, called to the Bar in 1782, elected M.P. for the University of Dublin 1796; married Miss Nixon.

Fourth, Abraham, born March 20th, 1766, late a Captain in the 74th regiment of foot.

Fifth, Christopher, born April 5th, 1767, elected M. P. for the city of Cork to the Imperial parliament 1807, married December 24th, 1792, Miss Bond, daughter of Sir James Bond, Bart. of Merion-square, Dublin; and by her, who died March 30th, 1796, had a daughter, born November 2d, 1793.

Sixth, Lorenzo, born October 6th, 1768, married Miss Blake.

Seventh, Christina.

Eighth, Mary, married Thomas Smith, Esq.

Ninth, Prudence. Tenth, Margaretta.

Sir JOHN HELY Hutchinson, K.B. (second son) now LORD HUTCHINSON, was born May 15th, 1757; Major of the 77th regiment of foot, September 21st, 1781; Lieutenant-Colonel of the same regiment March 21st, 1783; Colonel in the army October 1st following; Major-General in the army August 5th, 1799; Lieutenant-General, and COMMANDER IN CHIEF in Egypt, in May 1801; nominated by warrant a Knight of the Bath, 28th of the same month. He was also M. P. for the county of Cork.

Mention has already been made of the battle of ABOUKIR, and of the death of the gallant leader of the British forces on that occasion, under the article of ABERCROMBY. The chief command then fell (as has been stated) to General Hutchinson. Under him the French were driven from Rosetta; from Rahmanich; and finally from Alexandria, which surrendered on September 2d, 1801. The operations against the enemy's works commenced on August 17th.

“ I have the honour (says the General, in his dispatch to Lord Hobart) to inclose you a copy of the capitulation, and also a list of the number of persons for whom the enemy have required shipping; by this it appears, that the total of the garrison of Alexandria consisted of upwards of eight thousand soldiers, and one thousand three hundred sailors. This arduous and important service has at length been brought to a conclusion. The exertions of individuals have been splendid and meritorious: I regret that the bounds of a dispatch will not allow me to specify the whole, or to mention the name of every person who has distinguished himself in the public service. I have received the greatest support and assistance from the general officers of the army. The conduct of the troops of every description has been exemplary in the highest degree; there has been much to applaud, and nothing to reprehend; their order and regularity in the camp have been as conspicuous as their courage in the field."

For these services Sir John Hutchinson was raised to the British Peerage, by the title of LORD HUTCHINSON OF ALEXANDRIA, and of Knocklofty, in the county of Tipperary, by patent dated December 5th, 1801.

His Lordship was appointed Colonel of the 74th, or Highland regiment of foot, March 24th, 1802. He was installed a Knight of the Bath in King Henry VIIIth's chapel, in Westminster Abbey, May 19th, 1803; and appointed a Lieutenant-General in the army September 25th following.

Titles. Sir John Hely Hutchinson, Knight of the Bath, Baron Hutchinson of Alexandria, and of Knocklofty, in the county of Tipperary.

LAW, LORD ELLENBOROUGH.

EDMUND LAW, Bishop of Carlisle, who died August 14th, 1787, at his seat at Rose Castle, in Cumberland, in his eighty-fifth year, was the father of the present Peer.

This venerable prelate was born in the parish of Cartmel, in Lancashire, in 1720. His father was a clergyman, descended from a family<sup>a</sup> which had been situated at Askham, in Westmoreland.

He received his education at the schools of Cartmel and Kendal; from the latter of which he went to St. John's College, Cambridge.

In 1723, he took his degree of B. A. and in 1727, M. A. and was elected Fellow of Christ College. In 1737, he was presented by the University to the rectory of Greystoke, in Cumberland; where, in 1739, he went to reside, and in 1743, was appointed Archdeacon of Carlisle.

In 1749, he took his degree of D. D. and in 1754, was elected Master of St. Peter's College, Cambridge, and served the office of Vice-Chancellor. In 1760, he was elected Principal Librarian; and in 1764, Professor of Casuistical Divinity. In 1763, he was preferred to the Archdeaconry of Staffordshire, and a prebend in the church of Lichfield, by his friend and former pupil, Dr. Cornwallis, Archbishop of Canterbury, then Bishop of Lichfield and Coventry.

In 1764, a Prebend of Lincoln, and in 1767, the twelfth stall of the church of Durham, were conferred upon him by the interest of the late Duke of Newcastle.

In February 1769, he was promoted to the SEE OF CARLISLE, by the unsolicited recommendation of the Duke of Grafton, who had a short time before been elected Chancellor of the University of Cambridge.

He was first known to the public by a translation of Archbishop King's "Essay upon the Origin of Evil, with Notes," into which were introduced most of the important topics of natural religion. This work appeared in 1729. In 1734, he published, "An Enquiry into the Ideas of Space, Time, Immensity, and Eternity;" and in 1745, Considerations on the Theory of Religion; to which were subjoined, "Reflections on the Life and Character of Christ; a Discourse on the Nature and End of Death under the Christian Covenant; and an Appendix, concerning the use of the word SOUL, or SPIRIT, in Holy Scripture, and the state of the DEAD there described." Besides these his larger works, he published a tract upon the nature and end of catechising; several pieces in the controversy concerning an intermediate state; and in 1774, a pamphlet, intitled, Considerations on the Propriety of requiring a Subscription to Articles of Faith.

During the early part of his residence in the University, he enjoyed the friendship of the late eminent Dr. Jortin; and for many years carried on a correspondence with Dr. Hartley, upon the subject of that author's celebrated work. He preserved a long intimacy with the learned Archdeacon of Cleveland, whose death happened at nearly the same age, and same time. With these excellent persons he was united, as well in an anxious and diligent search after moral and evangelical truth, as in a cordial love of civil and religious liberty.<sup>b</sup>

<sup>b</sup> 'Our old correspondent Eugenio' (says the Gent. Mag.) 'has furnished us with the following character of this good Prelate, from the MSS. of the late Rev. John Jones. "Dr. Law, a gentleman of excellent parts, extensive learning, great integrity, and of a most sweet, benevolent, and Christian disposition; very modest, free, and open in conversation, devoid of ceremony; an honour to his country, and to the University wherein he presides. His character is universally known, and approved by all wise and good men. I shall here minute down only a few particulars, the rest may be added afterwards. I heard him with great pleasure perform his exercise for his Doctor's degree, at the public schools in Cambridge, January 1748-9. Dr. Parne, the Moderator pro tempore, was his opponent, who (I believe) was foiled. The Moderator soon after grew mad, and died. One great Doctor (head of a great college) refused to sign his testimonial; saying, 'he did not like either his person or his doctrine.' Yet afterwards was reconciled, when Law became head of St. Peter's College, and made him frequent visits, &c. Dr. Garnet (brother to the Bishop of Fernes), dining, as I also did,

His Lordship married Miss Christian, daughter of John Christian, of Unerigg, in the county of Cumberland, Esq. and had issue,

First, Bridget, who died an infant.

Second, Edmund, who died young.

Third, John, the late Lord Bishop of Elphin, a man of eminent talents, who was supposed to have assisted his friend, Dr. Paley, in the composition of his Moral and Political Philosophy. He died at his house on St. Stephen's Green, Dublin, March 19th, 1810; leaving no issue by his wife, Anne, widow of — Tomlinson, Esq. of Carlisle.

Fourth, Mary, married to the Rev. James-Stephen Lushington, late Vicar of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, deceased, by whom she with the former of these two, told him he was going to pay a visit that afternoon to Dr. Law. 'You do very well (said the entertainer), I respect him, although I cannot approve of his opinions in some things, and opposed his degree.' Dr. G. said, 'Whatever his opinions be, this is very certain, and allowed by all, that he is a sweet-tempered man, an excellent scholar, and a true Christian.' The other assented. I waited on Law that evening, and told him what had passed. 'Yes (said he), we begin now, though contrary to my expectation, and without my seeking, to be pretty thick; and I thank God, who reconciles me to my adversaries.' A certain great author, who did not at all know him, nor his character, said (very uncharitably), that he must be a wicked man for proposing such an opinion. His wife, an excellent woman; a Christian in disposition, as well as name. They have sustained great afflictions with great resignation. Many children, and great charge. Their income not even yet answerable. On Sundays, in the afternoon, he instructed the young men of his college, designed for orders, in the original language, sense, and design of the New Testament, and of the Old, in the Hebrew, &c. and has nothing more at heart than teaching the Christian religion in its native purity and simplicity, of which he was a complete master. Archbishop Potter, he told me, disliked his doctrine about inspiration; and reproved him. Warburton told him, he disparaged the church by which he got his bread. Archbishop Herring, on hearing of his Thesis at Cambridge, said to him, 'I neither justify nor condemn you. If your doctrine be right, I am no loser; if wrong, I am but as I was: I am in the hands of a just and merciful God, to whom I wholly commit myself. I believe his Gospels, and am persuaded you do so as much as I, though we may have different sentiments about some particulars. We shall both of us, I hope, meet in Heaven.' When, in going his rounds to the heads of houses, presently after his keeping this act, he came to Dr. Castle (the worthy Master of Corpus Christi College), he said to him, in his blunt and honest manner, 'I know that this is reckoned a Socinian tenet; but I believe you deserve the degree, and will readily sign your testimonial.' In his return from London and Cambridge, after this bout, he kindly called upon me at Alconbury, related to me many particulars, staid a night, and would put me to no expense." J. J.

had sons, and a daughter, married to the Rev. Thomas Edwards, LL.D. of Cambridge.

HILL, BARONESS SANDYS.

THIS is a different family, in the male line, from the family of SANDS of the Vine, in Hampshire, who were elevated to the Peerage by King Henry VIII.

The pedigree of this family, as recorded in the Heralds Visitations of Lancaster, Cambridge, and Bucks, made in the years 1567, 1619, and 1634, begins with

First, John, of Furness Fells, in Lancashire, of whom presently.

Second, Thomas, father of ROGER, whose son, WILLIAM, had Robert and WILLIAM, who married Elizabeth, daughter of William Orford, by whom he had a son, ROBERT, who married Eleanor, daughter of John Skelton; and four daughters, Jennet, Elizabeth, Mabell, and Joan.

JOHN Sandes, of Furness Fells, above mentioned, married Margaret, daughter and heir of William Rawson, of Yorkshire, by whom he had a daughter, Margaret, married to Sir Richard Bray, Knt. by whom she was mother to Sir Reginald Bray, K. G.

And a son, WILLIAM Sandes, of Cumberland, who married

In 14 Richard II. Thomas del Sandes was returned M. P. for the same, Ibid. 410, 411.

In 18 Richard II. he was again returned for the same Ibid. 429.

Margaret, daughter and heir of John Gerrard, of Turvey, in the county of Bedford, and had six sons, of whom GEORGE (according to the said Visitations) resided in London, and had to wife Margaret, daughter of John Dixon, of London, by whom he had a numerous issue.

This George Sandes (who in the early editions of this work is erroneously called William) writes himself of Estwaite Furnese, in the county of Lancaster, in his last will and testament, which bears date April 23d, 1548, 2 Edward VI. and by the preamble, he appears to be a Protestant: his words are, ‘ Considering the uncertainty of my life, I commit my soul into the custody and hand of our Saviour Jesus Christ, trusting surely, that through the sprinkling of his blood, I shall be partaker of the inheritance prepared for the faithful.’

The rest of his will shews him to be a person of sound reasoning and judgment; and he made an equal disposition of his estate among his children, of whom, as therein appears, was

George Sandes, who died in his lifetime, and left a son, Roger Sandes, to whom he bequeathed half of Watside-park, &c. which George was slain at Muselborough-field, on September 10th, 1547, in battle against the Scots.

To his son, Christopher, he left his estate at Garthwaite, in Lancashire, with other lands, after the death of his mother. He died without issue male, leaving only two daughters.

To William, his son, jointly with his brother Christopher, he bequeaths his lease of Hawkshead-church, and three bloom smiddyes, with all the ore which he had in Mithland and Low-Furnese, paying to Miles and Anthony, his sons, and their brothers, a hundred pounds. This William died without issue.

He further wills to his said sons, Miles and Anthony, equally and jointly, all his rights in Louson-park, Parkamore, and the one half of Watside-park; also divers other lands and leases to William and Christopher before mentioned; and legacies to his daughter, Anne; and to his grand-daughters, Agnes, Margaret, and Elizabeth, daughters of George Sandes. Then follows:

‘ I will also, that my son, Edwin Sandes, vicar of Haversham, shall have of my goods, &c. 20l. desiring him heartily, upon my blessing, to see this my last will and testament fulfilled, and good rule and loving order to be had among his mother’s brethren, and sisters, and children of my said son George. Moreover, it is my will and mind, that in case any of my sons, or others, be not contented, lovingly and jointly, to fulfil this my last will, that then they, which offend and break this my said will and testament, shall forfeit all such possessions, &c. bequeathed to them; and the same to be at the sight of John Preston, Esq. and other supervisors of this my said last will and testament."

He constitutes his sons, William, Christopher, Miles, and Anthony, his executors; and John Preston, Esq. his son, Edwin Sandes, vicar of Haversham; William Dixon, Miles Dixon, Thomas Benson, Richard Mackereith, William Sawrey, Miles Sawrey, and Richard Sandes, of Lancaster, supervisors; appointing, that if his estate be not sufficient to discharge the legacies, that they should then be lessened, at the discretion of Mr. Preston, and Edwin Sandes, his son, vicar of Haversham.

From Anthony Sandes, the third son, descended Miles Sandys, of Garthwaite-hall, in the parish of Hawkshead, in Lancashire.

Of Edwin, the fourth son, I am principally to treat.

Miles Sandys, the fifth son, being bred to the law, was one of the Society of the Middle Temple, Clerk of the Crown, and Master of the King's Bench office. He left by Hester his wife, daughter of William Clifton, of Blimpton, in com. Somers. four sons.<sup>c</sup> First, Sir EDWIN Sandys, of Latimers, in Buckinghamshire, who married Elizabeth, daughter, and at length sole heir, of William, Lord Sands, of the Vine, in com. Hants. by <sup>d</sup>Catharine his wife, daughter of Edmund, Lord Chandos, and had issue by her Colonel HENRY Sandys, who was killed in the service of Charles I. 1644, and had <sup>e</sup> by Jane, daughter of Sir William Sandys, of Missenden, in Gloucestershire, Knt. four sons; First, William. Second, Henry. Third, Miles. And, Fourth, Edwin; also six daughters; Hester, married to Humphry Noy, of Carnington, in Cornwall, Esq. son to William Noy, Attorney-general to Charles I. Alatheia, to Francis Goston, Esq. Mary, to Dr. Henry Savage, Principal of Baliol-college, Oxon; Jane, to John Harris, of Woodstock, in Oxfordshire, Esq. Margaret, to Sir John Mill, of Tachbury, in com. Southampton, Bart. and Margery, to Sir Edmund Fortescue, of Fallow-Pit, in com. Devon. Bart. WILLIAM, eldest son (on the death of his uncle, William, Lord Sands, only son of William, Lord Sands, by Catharine, daughter of Edmund, Lord Chandos, who died without issue on November 12th, 1629<sup>f</sup>), inherited the title of LORD SANDS OF THE VINE, in right of his grandmother, Elizabeth, beforementioned, and had summons to parliament accordingly. He married Mary, youngest daughter of William, Earl of Salisbury, and dying without issue in 1668, was succeeded in the honour by HENRY, Lord Sandys, his brother and heir, who dying unmarried, as did also his brothers, the title lies dormant.

The second son of Miles Sandys, beforementioned, was § Sir William Sandys, of Flatbury, in Worcestershire,<sup>h</sup> and of Missenden, in Gloucestershire, from whom the family at Missenden, and Brimsfield, in Gloucestershire, descend. Sir George, the third son, died without issue; but from Henry, the fourth son, who was of Harwood, in com. Bucks, and married Mary, daughter of Sir Richard Conquest, of Houghton-Conquest, in com. Bedf. Knt. a progeny is yet remaining.

I now return to EDWIN Sandys, Archbishop of York (the fourth son of George), of whom, and his descendants, I am principally to treat. As he was distinguished for his great learning and eminent abilities, and one of the first reformers of our religion from Popery, divers authors have given some account of him, without a due consideration or examination of facts, particularly as to the place of his birth: it is said by some to be at London; by others, at Conisby, in Yorkshire; but <sup>i</sup>by the famous Mr. Dodsworth, the antiquary, it is positively asserted to be at Hawkshead, within the liberty of Furness, in Lancashire; who alledges, that in token thereof, he built a free school there, and endowed it with 30l. per annum, for a master and usher, out of lands in Hawkshead, and several tenements in Yorkshire. It is governed by trustees, according to statutes given them by the said Archbishop; and over the door of the school is placed a fine stone, on which is engraved his arms, and the following inscription:

Memoriæ reverendissimi doctoris divinitatis Edwini Sandys, eboraci olim archiepiscopi, Scholæ hujus fundatoris, Daniel Rawlinson, civis Londini, Graisdale com. Lancastriæ oriundus, posuit anno Domini 1675.

He was one of the first who conformed to the Protestant religion, and for the constant profession of that faith, chose a voluntary exile in Germany, during all the reign of Queen Mary. His troubles and imprisonment are reported at large by Mr. Fox, in his Book of Martyrs, out of which I shall recite some particulars, which shew him to be a person of courage, honour, and integrity. He was educated in St. John's college in Cambridge, and took his degree of Doctor of Divinity in that university,<sup>k</sup> before the month of September, 1552, when he had a grant of a prebend within the church of Carlisle, vacant by the death of Bellas.

In 1549, 3 Edward VI. he<sup>l</sup> was Master of Catherine-hall, and Vice-Chancellor of the University of Cambridge; and so truly zealous for the reformation, that fearing<sup>m</sup> an alteration in religion, he shewed himself of the party of the Lady Jane. Francis Godwin, Bishop of Hereford,<sup>n</sup> gives this account of him: "Having, by Northumberland's command, in the pulpit, impugned Queen Mary's cause, and defended that of the Lady Jane, he behaved himself with such wisdom and moderation, although upon the short warning of some few hours, that he abundantly satisfied the Duke, and yet did not so deeply incur the displeasure of the adverse party, but that his friends prevailed with the Queen for his pardon; so that after a year's imprisonment he was set at liberty, and presently fled over into Germany. After the death of Queen Mary, returning from voluntary exile, he was consecrated Bishop of Worcester, from which See he was translated to London, and thence again to the Archbishoprick of York. A man, for his learning, virtue, wisdom, and extract, very famous; but more especially happy in his issue, whereof many were admirable for their endowments, both internal and external, and of whom we have, in our age, seen three honoured with knighthood."

July 25th, being St. James's day, 1553, he<sup>o</sup> was brought prisoner from Cambridge, and committed to the Tower, with the Duke of Northumberland, and others of quality. Queen Mary, before King Edward's laws were repealed, and particularly that act for the communion service,<sup>p</sup> procured Dr. John Young, Master of Pembroke-hall (who had made himself famous for contesting with Martin Bucer, in Edward VI's time), to be chosen Vice-Chancellor of the University of Cambridge; and the noted Stephen Gardiner, the restored Bishop of Winchester, and Chancellor of the university, having wrote to the society of Catharine-hall, recommending Mr. Cosin to be chosen their Master, in the room of Dr. Sandys, because he was married, they, for their own safety, thought it convenient to comply.

The same author observes,<sup>a</sup> that after about a year's imprisonment he was discharged, and observing the fury coming on all that were resolved to stick to the true religion, and would not comply with the newly restored papal superstitions, he made his escape out of England, and took up his residence at Strasburgh, where the Gospel was professed, and where he openly declared himself a Protestant. He had for his companions, John Poynt, Bishop of Winchester, Edmund Grindal, afterwards Archbishop of York, and Canterbury, successively, with others of the clergy; and these learned Knights, Sir John Cheeke, Sir Richard Morri-son, Sir Anthony Cooke, Sir Peter Carew, Sir Thomas Wroth, and many more, mentioned by Bayle. But I shall now recite some particulars of his troubles.

<sup>1</sup>The Duke of Northumberland, after he came to Cambridge with his army, sent for Dr. Sandys, the Vice-Chancellor, Dr. Parker, Dr. Bill, and Mr. Leaver, to sup with him; and among other speeches, said, ‘Masters, pray for us, that we speed well,’ &c. and required Dr. Sandys to preach on the morrow. The warning was short for such an auditory, yet he did not refuse, but went into his chamber, and so to bed. He rose at three of the clock in the morning, took his bible in his hand, and earnestly prayed to God that it might fall open where a most fit text should be for him to treat of. The bible fell open upon the first chapter of Joshua, where he found a text for that time, the most convenient he could have chosen. Responderuntque Josuæ atque dixerunt, omnia, quæ præcepisti nobis, faciemus, et quocunque miseris ibimus: sicut obedivimus in cunctis Mosi, ita obedimus et tibi, tantum sit Dominus Deus tuus tecum, sicut fuit cum Mose, qui contradixerit ori tuo, et non obedierit cunctis sermonibus quos præceperis ei, moriatur, tu tantum confortare, et viriliter age. This text most fitly served for the purpose; and as God gave the text, so (saith my author) gave he such order and utterance, as drew many tears from the audience.

In the time of his sermon, one of the guard lifted unto him, in the pulpit, a mass book, and a grail, taken the night before by Sir George Haward, with certain of the guard, out of Mr. Hurleston's house, where Lady Mary heard mass, and had not been long gone. The Duke, with the rest of the nobility, required Dr. Sandys to put his sermon in writing, and appointed Mr. Leaver to go to London, and get it printed. Dr. Sandys required one day and a half for writing it, and at the day appointed, Mr. Leaver came ready booted to receive it of him. As he was delivering of it, Mr. Adams, one of the beadles, came weeping, and prayed him to shift for himself, the Duke being retired, and Queen Mary proclaimed. Dr. Sandys shewed no concern at what was said, but delivered the sermon written. The Duke of Northumberland that night sent for Dr. Sandys, to proclaim Queen Mary in the market-place at Cambridge, and told him she was a merciful woman, and that he had sent to know her pleasure, and looked for a general pardon. The Doctor replied, 'My life is not dear unto me, neither have I said or done any thing that urgeth my conscience; for what I have spoke of the state, I have instructions warranted by the subscriptions of sixteen counsellors; neither yet have I spoke further than the word of God and the laws of the realm do warrant me; come of me what God will; but be assured you shall never escape death, for if she should save you, those that now rule will kill you.'

That night the guard apprehended the Duke, and certain grooms of the stable were as busy with Dr. Sandys; but Sir John Gates, laying in his house, sharply rebuked them, and drove them away. The next day he advised the Doctor to walk in the fields; and in the mean time, the University, contrary to all order, had met together in consultation, and ordered Dr. Mouse, and Dr. Hatcher, to repair to Dr. Sandys's apartments, and fetch away the statute book of the University, the keys, and such other things as were in his keeping, which they did. Dr. Mouse had been an earnest Protestant the day before, but was now turned Papist; and though Dr. Sandys had done much for him, he was now his great enemy. The bell ringing for their meeting, Dr. Sandys returned out of the fields, and sending for the beadles, required them to wait on him to the schools, according to their duty. No sooner was the Doctor (the beadles going before him) come into the regent house, and had taken his chair, but Dr. Mouse, with a rabble of unlearned Papists, went into a by-school, and conspired to pull him out of his chair.

Dr. Sandys began his oration,—expostulating with the University, charging them with great ingratitude; declaring he had said nothing in his sermon but what he was ready to justify; and their case was the same with his, they having not only concealed, but consented to that which he had spoken. And as he was remembering them how beneficial he had been to their University, and their unthankfulness to him, Dr. Mouse came in again with his conspirators, about twenty in number. One laid hand on the chair, to pull it from him; another told him that was not his place; and another called him traitor: but being of great courage, and perceiving they used violence, he drew a dagger, and had dispatched some of them, if Dr. Bill, and Dr. Blith, had not fallen upon him, and prayed him for God's sake to hold his hands, and patiently bear that great offered wrong. By their persuasions he was contented, and the tumult ceasing, he ended his oration; and having monies of the University, he there delivered the utmost farthing. He gave up the books, reckonings, and keys, and surrendered his office, 'praying God to give the University a better officer, and to give them more thankful hearts,' and so repaired to his own college.

The day after there came to him Mr. Jerningham, and Mr. Thomas Mildmay; Jerningham told him it was the Queen's pleasure that two of the guards should attend on him, and that he must be carried prisoner to the Tower of London, with the Duke of Northumberland. Mr. Mildmay said, he marvelled, that a learned man would speak so unadvisedly against so good a Princess, and wilfully run into such danger. Dr. Sandys replied, 'I shall not be ashamed of bonds, but if I could do as Mr. Mildmay can, I need not to fear bonds: for you came down against Queen Mary, and armed in the field, and now return for Queen Mary; before a traitor, and now a great friend. I cannot, with one mouth, blow hot and cold after this sort.'

On this, his stable was robbed of four excellent geldings, and an inventory taken of all his goods by Mr. Moor, beadle of the University. He was set on a lame horse, that halted to the ground, which a friend of his perceiving, prayed that he might lend him a nag, to which the yeoman of the guard consented. At the end of the town some Papists resorted thither to jeer him; and some of his friends, who mourned for him, to take their leave of him.

He was guarded, with the Duke, and others to London, and coming in at Bishopsgate, one, like a milk-wife, hurled a stone at him, which hit him on the breast, so as like to have made him fall from his horse; to whom he mildly said, 'Woman, God forgive it thee.' As he came through Towerhill-street, another woman, standing in her door, cried, 'Fie on thee, thou knave, thou knave, thou traitor, thou heretic!' whereat he smiling, she said, Look, the desperate heretic laughs at this jeer. On which a woman on the other side of the street, answered, Fie on thee, neighbour, thou art not worthy to be called woman, railing upon this gentleman, whom thou knowest not, neither yet the cause why he is thus treated. Then she said, Good gentleman, God be thy comfort, and give thee strength to stand in God's cause, even to the end. Thus he passed into the Tower, the first prisoner, on St. James's day. The yeomen of the guard took from him his borrowed nag, and what else soever he had. His man, Quinting Swainton, brought after him a Bible, and some shirts, and such like things; the Bible was sent in to him, but the shirts, &c. the yeomen of the guard kept.

After he had been in the Tower three weeks, in a bad prison, he was put into Nun's-bower, a better prison, and with him Mr. John Bradford. On October 1st, 1553, the day of Queen Mary's coronation, their prison door was set open (ever shut before) and Mr. Mitchel, his old acquaintance, who had been a prisoner in the same place, came in to him, and said, 'There is such a stir in the Tower, that neither gates, or prisoners, are looked to this day. Take my cloak, my hat, and my rapier; you may go out of the gates, without being questioned: save yourself, and let me do as I may.' A rare friendship: but he replied, 'I know no just cause why I should be in prison, and thus to do, were to make myself guilty; I will expect God's will; yet must I think myself most bounden to you.' On which Mr. Mitchel, finding him resolute, departed.

Whilst Dr. Sandys, and Mr. Bradford, were in close prison twenty-nine weeks, Mr. John Bowler, a very perverse Papist, was their keeper; yet, by often conference with him, at length began to dislike Popery, and to favour the Gospel; so that on a Sunday, when they had mass in the chapel, he brought the service-book, a manchette, and a glass of wine; and Dr. Sandys ministered the communion, according to the reformed religion, to Bradford, and to Bowler.

When Wyat was in arms against Queen Mary, Dr. Cranmer, Dr. Ridley, and Mr. Bradford, were cast into one prison; and Dr. Sandys, with others, were sent to the Marshalsea: and Wyat coming into Southwark with his army, he sent two gentlemen into the Marshalsea to Dr. Sandys, to let him know he should be glad of his company and advice, and that the gates should be set open to all the prisoners; but the Doctor desired him to tell Wyat, ‘ If this rising be of God, it will take place; if not, it will fall: for his part, he was committed by order, and would be discharged by the like order, or would never depart.’

Thomas Way, the keeper of the Marshalsea, appointed unto every preacher a man to lead him in the street for the air, but he himself walked with Dr. Sandys; and discoursing very familiarly with him, the people took notice of him, and prayed to God to comfort him, and strengthen him in the truth; on which the Keeper said to the Doctor, ‘ I perceive the vain people would set you forward to the fire; you are as vain as they; if you, being a young man, will stand in your own conceits, and prefer your own knowledge before the judgment of so many worthy prelates, ancient, learned, and grave men, as be in this realm; if you so do, you shall find me as strait a keeper, as one that utterly disliketh your religion.’ Dr. Sandys replied, ‘ I know my years young, and my learning small; it is enough to know Christ crucified; and he hath learned nothing, that seeth not the great blasphemy that is in Popery. I will yield unto God, and not unto man. I have read in the scriptures of many godly and courteous keepers; God may make you one; if not, I trust he will give me strength and patience to bear your hard dealing with me.’ On which the Keeper said, ‘ Do ye then mind to stand to your religion? ‘ Yea (said the Doctor) by God’s grace.’ ‘ Truly (saith the keeper) I love ye the better; I did but tempt you. What favours I can shew you, ye shall be sure of, and I shall think myself happy if I may die at the stake with you.’ And he ever after shewed Dr. Sandys all friendship. He laid him in the best chamber in the house, and would not suffer the Marshal’s men to lay fetters on him, as others had. He sundry times suffered him to walk alone in the fields; and permitted his wife, Mr. Sandys’s daughter of Essex, a gentlewoman beautiful both in body and mind, to resort to him; they had the communion there three or four times, and a great resort of communicants, who offered Dr. Sandys money, but he would receive none. He was then in the prime of life, and admired for his learning, eloquence, sobriety, and other virtuous morals. His exhortations to the people were delivered with that energy, as drew tears from many, and made them abhor the mass.

After he had been nine weeks prisoner in the Marshalsea, he was set at liberty, by the mediation of Sir Thomas Holcroft, the Knight Marshal. Sir Thomas sued earnestly to Dr. Gardiner, Bishop of Winchester, for his deliverance, but could not prevail, except Dr. Sandys would be one of their sect; and then, he said, he should want nothing. He wrung at last out of the Bishop, that if the Queen could like of his deliverance, he would not be against it; which was Sir Thomas's last request. Thereupon he made interest with two ladies of the privy chamber to move the Queen to it, who was contented, if the Bishop of Winchester approved of it. Sir Thomas watched his going to speak with the Queen, and followed him with a warrant for setting him at liberty; and prayed the two ladies to put the Queen in mind of Dr. Sandys. On which she said, 'Winchester, what think you of Dr. Sandys? is he not sufficiently punished? And Gardiner, remembering his promise, said he was not against it, if her Majesty liked to discharge him. Saith the Queen, 'Then truly we would he were set at liberty.' On which Sir Thomas Holcroft immediately offered the Queen the warrant, who signed the same, and caused Winchester to subscribe his name thereto. The warrant was given to the Knight Marshal again; but as the Bishop went out from the Queen, he called to Holcroft, commanding him not to set Dr. Sandys at liberty, till he had taken sureties of two gentlemen, bound in a bond of 500*l.* each, that he should not depart the realm without licence.

Holcroft also made it his business to find sureties for him; and having discoursed with two gentlemen of the North, friends and cousins of Dr. Sandys, they agreed to be bound in body, goods, and lands, for him. He then sent for the Doctor to his apartments at Westminster, requiring the keeper to accompany him. He came accordingly, and found Sir Thomas Holcroft in his garden alone, who immediately imparted to him his long suit, with the proceeding, and of what effect it had; much rejoicing he was so fortunate to procure him his liberty; and that nothing remained for him to do, but to enter into bonds, with his two sureties, not to depart the realm. The Doctor answered, 'I give God thanks, who hath moved your heart to mind me so well, and I think myself most bound to you; I hope God will requite you, and I never shall be found unthankful; but as you have dealt friendly with me, I will also deal plainly with you. I came a freeman into prison, I will not go forth a bondman. As I cannot benefit my friends, I will not hurt them; for if am set at liberty, I shall not stay six days in this realm, if I may get out. If therefore I may not get forth free, send me to the Marshalsea again, and there you shall be sure of me.'

Holcroft was much displeased with his answer, and told him a change would shortly come; the state was but a cloud, and would soon shake away; that his cousin, Sir Edward Bray, and his wife, would gladly receive him into his house, where he never need come at church; and that Lady Bray hated Popery, adding, that he would not so deal with him, to lose all his labour. But no persuasions could prevail with him to enter into bonds; which Holcroft perceiving, generously said, ‘Seeing you cannot be altered, I will change my purpose, and yield unto you. Come of it what will, I will set you at liberty; and seeing you mind to go over sea, get you gone quickly as you can. One thing I require of you, that while you are there, you write nothing to come hither, for you may undo me.’ He friendly kissed Dr. Sandys, bid him farewell, let me answer Winchester as I may; and commanded the keeper to take no fees of him.

Returning with the keeper to the Marshalsea, he staid there that night, and the next day gave a dinner to all the prisoners, taking his farewell of them with many tears, particularly of Mr. Saunders, who, at his own request, was permitted by the keeper to be his bed-fellow. Their parting was very sorrowful, with many tears, the one falling on the other’s neck; and so he departed, clearly delivered, without examination or bond. From thence he went to the King’s bench, and there talked with Mr. Bradford, and Robert Farrer, Bishop of St. David’s, then prisoners. He comforted them, and they praised God for his happy deliverance. He went by Winchester’s house and there took boat, and came to William Banks, his friend, in London, with whom he remained one night, and the next night shifted to another friend’s house; and there he learned that search was made for him.

Dr. Watson, and Mr. Christopherson, coming to the Bishop of Winchester’s, Chancellor of England, told him, he had set at liberty the greatest heretic in England, and one who, of all others, had most corrupted the University of Cambridge. Whereupon the Bishop sent for all the constables of London, commanding them to watch for Dr. Sandys, then in the city; and whoever of them should bring him to him, should have five pounds for his labour. The Doctor, on knowledge of this, for greater safety, conveyed himself by night to Mr. Bertie’s house, a stranger, who had been a little time in the Marshalsea prison with him, and was a good Protestant, and dwelt in Mark-lane. There he was six days, and one or two of his friends repaired to him. He afterwards went to Mr. Hurleston, a skinner, dwelling in Cornhill; where he caused his man Quinting, to provide two geldings for him, in order to ride into Essex, to Mr. Sandys, his father-in-law, where his wife was.

At his going to bed in Hurleston's house, he observed a pair of hose too long for him, made whilst he was in the Tower, by one Benjamin, a Protestant, dwelling in Birching-lane. He was not permitted to speak to him, or take any measure of him, but only look on his legs, whereby they were not made fit for him: these hose he prayed the mistress of the house to send to some taylor to cut them two inches shorter. She sent them by her boy to the next taylor, who chanced to go to Benjamin that made them, and was then a constable, and acquainted with the Lord Chancellor's orders. The boy required him to cut the hose; on which he said, 'I am not thy master's taylor.' Whereupon the boy replied, 'My master's taylor dwelling far off, I came to you, as our next neighbour; for it is far night, and he wants them early in the morning.' Benjamin knew his own work, and said, 'These are not thy master's hose, but Dr. Sandys's, which I made for him in the Tower.' 'Saith he, Go to thy mistress, pray her to sit up till twelve of the clock, and then I will bring the hose, and speak with the Doctor to his good.'

At midnight, the mistress of the house, and Benjamin the taylor, went into Dr. Sandys's chamber, but prayed him not to be afraid of their coming. He answered, 'Nothing can be amiss; what God will, that shall be done.' On which Benjamin told him, 'he made his hose, and by what chance they came into his hands; God used the means, that he might admonish him of his peril, and advise him how to escape it.' He then acquainted him, that all the constables of London, whereof he was one, had orders to watch for him; and some were so greedily set, that they prayed, if he took him, to let them have his carriage to the Bishop of Winchester, and he should have the five pounds. He further told him, that it was known his man had provided two geldings, and his intentions to ride out at Aldgate in the morning, where he would surely be taken. 'Follow my advice (said he) and, by God's grace, you shall escape their hands. Let your man walk all the day in the street where your horses stand, booted and ready to ride; the good man's servant of the house shall take the horses, and carry them to Bethnal-green, and his master shall be booted, and follow after, as if he would ride. I will be here with you to-morrow, about eight of the clock. It is both term and parliament-time; and when the streets are full, we will go forth, look wildly, and if we meet your brother in the streets, know him not.'

Accordingly Dr. Sandys, cloathed like a gentleman, in all respects, looking as one who had been long kept in prison, was conducted by Benjamin through Birching-lane, and from one lane to another, till he came to Moor-gate, and from thence to Bethnal-green. He there found the horses were ready, and Mr. Hurlestone ready to ride with him as his man. The Doctor pulled on his boots, and taking his leave of Benjamin, would have given him great part of that little he had, but he refused it. However, Dr. Sandys on his return to England, remembered him thankfully. He rode the same night to his father-in-law's, Mr. Sandys, where his wife was; but he had not been two hours there, before Mr. Sandys was acquainted that two of the guards would that night apprehend his son-in-law. Thereupon he was immediately guided to an honest farmer near the sea, and took up his abode with him two days and two nights in a chamber, without stirring out of it; after which he was shifted to one James Mower, a ship-master, who dwelt on Milton shore, and was to sail with the first fair wind to Flanders. Whilst he staid in expectation of a fair wind, Mower brought to him forty or fifty mariners, to whom he gave an exhortation, which they liked so well, that they promised to die for it, ere he should be apprehended.

On May 6th, being Sunday, the wind served, and at the shore Dr. Sandys met Mr. Isaac, of Kent, with his eldest son, who from the good opinion he had of the Doctor, sent his son with him; and Dr. Cox also embarked in the same ship, Cockerill commander. They were within sight, when two of the guard came thither to apprehend Dr. Sandys; but they happily arrived at Antwerp, and were immediately invited to dinner by the famous Mr. Locke. Before they had dined, George Gilpin, secretary of the English house, and kinsman to Dr. Sandys, came and whispered in his ear, 'That King Philip had ordered search to be made for him, and to apprehend him.' Hereupon they rose from dinner in a very great shower, and went out of the gate toward the land of Cleve: they had the good luck to light on a waggon, and hasting away, came safe to Ausburgh, in Cleveland, where Dr. Sandys staid fourteen days, and then set out for Strasburgh; where, after he had lived one year, his wife came to him. During his abode in that city, he fell sick of a flux, which kept on him nine months, so that his recovery was very doubtful. He had a child, which died there of the plague; and his wife, after some time, fell sick of a consumption, and died in his arms.

After this, two of his friends left him, Edmund Grindal (afterwards made Archbishop of Canterbury by Queen Elizabeth) who went into the country to learn the Dutch tongue, and Sampson, who went to attain the Hebrew language. Dr. Sandys continued still at Strasburgh, supported by Mr. Isaac, who passionately esteemed him, and was ever more ready to give, than he to take. The Doctor had of him above 100 marks, which he paid again; and by his other gifts and friendship to him, shewed himself a grateful man. His wife (as was said before) being dead, he went to Zurike, and for the space of five weeks was in Peter Martyr's house. As they sat one day at dinner, the news of Queen Mary's death was brought, and Dr. Sandys was sent for by his friends at Strasburgh. Mr. Martyr and Mr. Jarratt were very joyful, but Dr. Sandys was very grave; 'it smote into his heart (as Fox writes) that he should be called to misery;' but it is more rational to believe, that he was thoughtful of the almighty power of God, in so wonderfully delivering him, and bringing about the means of returning to his native country. Bullinger, and other ministers, entreated him, before he took his leave, to return to Strasburgh, where he preached. He and Dr. Grindal came to London the same day Queen Elizabeth was crowned.

Soon after, he was one<sup>e</sup> appointed by Queen Elizabeth, and her council, to manage a conference before the Lords and Commons at Westminster, against the Popish Bishops of Winchester and Lincoln, &c. on these three propositions:<sup>t</sup> 'First, It is against the word of God, and the custom of the ancient church, to use a tongue unknown to the people, in common prayer, and administration of the sacraments.

'Secondly, Every church hath authority to appoint, take away, and change ceremonies, and ecclesiastical rights, so the same be to edification.

'Thirdly, It cannot be proved by the word of God, that there is in the masse offered up a sacrifice propitiatory for the quick and the dead.'

On the conference it was agreed to put all questions and answers in writing; but the Popish Bishops (Winchester and Lincoln) departing (as Hollinshed recites) from all order, and manifestly varying from their own, were committed to the Tower; and the conference came to no effect.

Camden, in his History of Queen Elizabeth, has<sup>u</sup> observed, that on the deprivation of the Popish Bishops, in the second year of Queen Elizabeth, the most learned, that could be found among the Protestant divines, were recommended to the vacant Sees, and that Richard Pate, Bishop of Worcester, having left the kingdom of his own accord, Archbishop Parker, consecrated Edwin Sandys, a fluent and eloquent preacher, BISHOP OF WORCESTER.

His congé d'elire bears date November 12th, 1559,<sup>x</sup> and he was elected the 25th of the same month. On the 17th of December, 1559, 2 Eliz. the Queen signified to Matthew [Parker] Archbishop of Canterbury,<sup>y</sup> that having granted her congé d'elire to the dean and chapter of Worcester, they had elected Edwin Sandys, D.D. to the said See; she therefore commands him to consecrate him, which he did accordingly on the 21st of the same month, in the Archbishop's chapel at Lambeth. And by another commission,<sup>z</sup> she commands the escheators of the counties of Worcester and Salop, and marches of the said counties; Sir William Hewytt, Lord Mayor of London, and her escheator there; as also her escheator of the county of Middlesex, to restore the temporalities of the said See to Edwin Sandys, D.D. elected Bishop of that See, by the deprivation of Richard Pate, the late Bishop.

On June 2d, 1570, he<sup>a</sup> was elected to the SEE OF LONDON; and the Queen, on July 1st, 1570, strictly commands Matthew, Archbishop of Canterbury, to confirm him; and likewise<sup>b</sup> her escheators in the counties of Middlesex, Essex, Hertford, Sussex, Worcester, Huntingdon; and Sir Alexander Avenon, her escheator in the city of London, and Mayor thereof, to restore the temporalities in the said counties to Edwin Sandes, elect-bishop.

The same year, he<sup>c</sup> was in the commission to inquire, by a jury, into all treasons, misprisions of treason, insurrections, murders, felonies, burglaries, manslaughter, riots, escapes, contempts, unlawful assemblies, and oppressions; but more especially into all conspiracies, confederacies, meetings, &c. contrary to an act of parliament, passed in the first year of the Queen's reign, intituled, "An Act for the uniformity of common prayer and service in the church, and administration of the sacrament;" and to hear and determine the same, according to the laws of the land.

The Queen, on February 14th, 1576, commissions<sup>d</sup> Edwin, Bishop of London, Robert, Bishop of Winchester, and other Bishops, to confirm Edmund, Archbishop of York, in the Archbishopric of Canterbury, to which he had been elected by the Dean and Chapter of the said See.

On January 19th, 1577, the Queen<sup>e</sup> granted her congé d'elire to the Dean and Chapter of YORK to elect an ARCHBISHOP TO THE SAID SEE, vacant by the translation of Edmund Grindall to Canterbury; who<sup>f</sup> thereupon, January 25th, elected Edwin Sandys, Bishop of London, to that See: and the Queen, March 8th, 1577, § commissioned Edmund, Archbishop of Canterbury, and other Bishops, to confirm Edwin, Archbishop of York. Also, on March 16th following,<sup>h</sup> the Queen commanded her escheators in the counties of York, Lincoln, Surrey, Middlesex, Northumberland, Gloucester, and marches of Wales, Nottingham, and the Mayor of the town of Nottingham, her escheator in the said town; her escheators in Westmoreland, Cumberland; her Chancellor in the county palatine of Lancaster, to command the escheator in that county; the Mayor of the city of York; the Mayor of Kingston-upon-Hull, her escheators there; to restore the temporalities of the See of York to Edwin Sandes, elect-archbishop.

On May 14th, 1578, 20 Eliz. he was in commission,<sup>i</sup> with Henry, Earl of Huntingdon, President in the North, Richard, Bishop of Durham, and others, to visit the church of Durham, which had undergone great damages, by the insolency, neglect, and injuries done by the Dean, Canons, and other officers of the said church; and they were impowered to inquire into the management of the revenues thereunto belonging, &c.

This good prelate continued Archbishop of York, about twelve years, and, as Bishop Godwin relates,<sup>k</sup> departed this life August 8th, 1588, and was buried at Southwell. But Sir Gilbert De-thick, Garter King of Arms in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, has left an account of the funerals of those persons of quality that he buried; wherein he recites,<sup>1</sup> that Edwyn Sandys, Archbishop of York, late Bishop of London, and before Bishop of Worcester, died at Southwell, near Newark, in Nottinghamshire, Wednesday, July 10th, 1588, and was buried there the 15th of August following, with great solemnity.

The Antiquities of Worcester, printed in 1717, page 107, recite, that though Godwin, and others, assert he was buried at Southwell, they are mistaken; whereas he lies buried at Hawkeshead, in Lancashire, among his ancestors; and has, in honour of him, in the North isle, appropriated to his family, an inscription to his memory, the same as was at Southwell. But this is an error, for he was indisputably buried in the collegiate church of Southwell;<sup>m</sup> where is a curious monument, on the North side of the choir, with his effigies lying at length, with a book in his hand, and his children kneeling on one side; and round the verge is this inscription:

Which inscription is recited in Sir William Dugdale's History of the Collegiate Church of Southwell, p. 59; and there never was any monument for Archbishop Sandys, at Hawkeshead, in Furness, in the county of Lancaster.

He made his last will and testament a year before his death, when he was in sound health and perfect memory, as he expresses himself. And the preamble being so very remarkable, and shewing his rare virtues and wisdom, I shall, for the satisfaction of the curious, insert it, as truly worthy of being known.<sup>n</sup>

“ IN DEI NOMINE, AMEN.

“ I Edwin Sandes, minister of God's holy word and sacraments, Archbishop of York, although most unworthy; often minding the frailty and uncertainty of man's life in general, and withal, feeling mine own manifold infirmities in particular, both by my years, and for my sins; and also remembering, that when the Lord God shall say, Redde rationem villicationis tuæ, I, amongst others, shall appear before the tribunal seat of Christ, to receive in this body according to that I have done, be it good or evil. I reckon that in myself a Christian duty, with Ezechias, Disponere mea. And considering, that as I brought nothing into this world (for naked I came out of my mother's womb) so can I carry nothing the'out, but naked I must return again, even earth to earth, and carcase to worms, the way of all flesh. While the Lord God hath lent me the leisure, being presently in sound health of body, and of perfect memory, I humbly thank him for both; even thus I discharge myself of those talents which the Lord hath committed unto my charge, and make my last will and testament in such sort as followeth: First, and above all, my soul and spirit I commend, with David and Stephen, into the merciful hands of my gracious God, and loving father; assuredly believing, by faith, and certainly trusting, by hope, that he, in the fulness of his good time, best known unto him, and least unto me, will receive the same unto himself; not in respect of any my deserts, for my righteousness is but a very dunghill, and defiled cloth, but of his own free mercies, and for the alone merits of his only Son, mine only Saviour, Jesus Christ; who being without any sin, was made a curse and sacrifice for all my sins, that I might be made the righteousness of God in him; who, in his own body, bare all my transgressions upon the tree, that by smart of his stripes, and blood of his wounds, I might be healed; who hath cancelled upon the cross the whole hand-writing that was against me, that I might not only be entertained as a servant, or reconciled as a friend, but adopted as a son, and accepted as an heir, with God the Father; and an heir together with Jesus Christ, who is also made unto me wisdom, righteousness, sanctification, and redemption. And as in this faith, and full assurance of my perfect redemption, by the death and only deserts of Jesus Christ, the true lamb of God, and very lion of the tribe of Juda, I have and do live; so in the same firm and stedfast faith and hope I end my sinful life, and gladly yield up, with all immortal and mortal bodies. Secondly, Although this body of mine is but a clod of clay, a prison of my soul, my will is, that it shall be buried, neither in superstitious nor superfluous manner; yet for that it hath been, and, as I trust, not only a vessel of the Gospel, but likewise a temple of the Holy Ghost, I require, that the same be so decently and conveniently brought to ground, as appertaineth to a Christian, a servant of Almighty God, and a man of my calling; putting no doubt, but that I shall see my Redeemer with mine own eyes, and be covered with mine own skin, and that the Lord Jesus shall make this my vile body like unto his glorious body, whereby he is able to subdue all things unto himself, Reposita est hæc mihi spes in sinu meo. Thirdly, Because I have lived an old man in the ministry of Christ, a faithful disposer of the mysteries of God, and, to my power, an earnest labourer in the vineyard of the Lord, I testify before God and his angels, and men of this world, I rest resolute, and yield up my spirit in that doctrine, which I have privately studied, and publicly preached, and which is this day maintained in the church of England; both taking the same to be the whole council of God, the word and bread of eternal life, the fountain of living water, the power of God unto salvation, to all them that do believe; and he seeking the Lord besides, to turn us unto him, that we might be turned, lest, if we repent not, the candlestick be moved out of his place, and the Gospel to a nation that shall bring forth the fruits thereof: and further protest, in an upright conscience of mine own, and in the knowledge of his Majesty, before whom I stand, that in the preaching of the truth of Christ, I have not laboured to please man, but studied to serve my Master, who sent me; not to flatter either prince or people; but by the law, to tell all sorts of their sin; by the Spirit, to rebuke the world of sin; of righteousness, and of judgment, by the Gospel, to testify of that faith which is in Jesus Christ, and in him crucified. Fourthly, Concerning rites and ceremonies, by political constitutions authorised amongst us: as I am and have been persuaded, that such as are set down by public authority in this church of England, are no way either ungodly or unlawful, but may with good conscience, for order and obedience sake, be used of a good Christian; for the private baptism to be ministered by women, I take neither to be prescribed or permitted; so have I ever been, and presently am persuaded, that some of them be not so expedient for the church now; but in the church reformed, and in all this time of the Gospel, wherein the seed of the Scripture hath so long been sown, they may better be disused by little and little, then more and more urged. Howbeit, I do easily acknowledge our ecclesiastical policy, in some points, may be bettered, so I do utterly mislike, even in my conscience, all such rude and indigested plat-forms, as have been more lately and boldly, than either learnedly or wisely, preferred; tending not to the reformation, but to the destruction, of the church of-England. The particulars of both sorts, reserved to the discretion of the godly; which of the latter I only say thus, That the state of a small private church, and the form of a large Christian kingdom, neither would long like, nor can at all brook, one and the same ecclesiastical governments. Thus much I thought good to testify concerning these ecclesiastical matters, to clear me from all suspicion of double and indirect dealings, in the house of God; wherein, as touching mine office, I have not halted, but walked sincerely, according to that skill and ability which I received at God's merciful hands. Lord, as a great sinner, by reason of my frail flesh, and manifold infirmities, I fly unto thee for mercy. Lord, forgive me my sins, for I acknowledge my sins. Lord, perform thy promise, and do away all my iniquities; hasten the coming of thy Christ, and deliver me from the body of sin. Veni cito, Domine Jesu, cloath me with immortality, and give me that promised crown of glory. So be it.

And as concerning those worldly things, which God of his bountiful goodness hath given for our use; thus as a steward of the same, for the discharge of my duty in that behalf, I dispose of them.

First, therefore, I will, ordain, and appoint, that my funerals, and debts whatsoever, be paid and discharged by mine executrix, hereafter to be named, out of my whole goods.

After which he recites, that by indentures, bearing date the 4th of June, in 18 Eliz. between him the said Edwin on the one part, and Miles Sandes, of Latimers, his brother, Francis Wilford, Edward Fenner, and Roger Brigges, Esqrs. on the other part; they the said Miles, Francis, Edward, and Robert, did severally covenant and grant to him, his executors and assigns, that such person or persons as he should nominate and appoint, should and might hold, &c. and take the issues, profits, &c. of one messuage and a lodge, and land and pasture, called Cursewood-park, alias Crudeswood-park, within the county of Kent; which the said Miles, Francis, Edward, and Robert, had of the grant of Henry Leonard, Esq. &c. as by the same indenture more at large appeareth; he now, by his last will and testament, appoints and assigns the said issues, &c. to his wellbeloved wife, Cicely Sandes.

He further declares, that if it should please God that Elizabeth Norton, daughter of John Norton, late of Rippon, in the county of York, Esq. deceased, and George Sandes, his youngest son, shall hereafter fortune to marry together, that then Thomas Spencer, and Thomas Porter, their heirs and assigns, shall assure and convey all such messuages, lands, &c. as John Samond, Gent. and Anne his wife, did heretofore convey to them, and their heirs, unto the aforesaid George Sandes, and Elizabeth Norton, and the heirs of their two bodies, lawfully begotten; and for default of such issue, the remainder to the said Elizabeth Norton, and her heirs. And if the said George Sandes, and Elizabeth Norton, do marry together, he then wills that the said Elizabeth Norton be discharged of her wardship, and value of her marriage, which belongeth unto him, and of all charges and expenses he has disbursed about the same, &c.

He further wills, that his wife, Cicely Sandes, shall have the custody and bringing up of his children, Thomas Sandes, Henry Sandes, and George Sandes, so long as she continues a widow; and all that time to have in her hands, as well the annuity granted out of the manor of OMBERSLEY, to the said Thomas, Henry, and George, as all other portions, patents, leases, &c. till they come to their full age; but if his said wife, Cicely Sandes, should marry before his children come to full age, that the several annuities, &c. be committed to his sons, Samuel Sandes, and Edwin Sandes, on sufficient bonds entered into by them, to see the same, and every part thereof, truly employed to the uses of his said sons, Thomas, Henry, and George.

And whereas, according to his ability, he had sufficiently preferred and advanced all his children; viz. both his daughters, Margaret Aweher, and Anne Barne, by marriage, to his great charges; as also all his sons; viz. Samuel, Edwin, Miles, Thomas, Henry, and George, by leases, patents, annuities, and otherwise; whereby they ought not, by reason of the custom of the province of York, to claim their filial portions of his goods and chattels; he declares, that his said sons and daughters should hold themselves contented, and not make any claim of his executrix, &c. And albeit that he had so provided for his children, according to his ability, as aforesaid; yet, for a further declaration of his fatherly good-will towards them, and that they may continue in their hearts and minds a thankful memory of the same, he bequeaths to his eldest son, Samuel Sandes, one basen and ewer of silver, double gilt, one salt, double gilt, and one dozen of silver spoons, with feather-beds, &c. therein mentioned, three geldings, &c. also his black armour of proof, made for his own body, with five other armours, at the discretion of his executrix. He bequeaths to his second son, Edwin Sandes, one bason and ewer, parcel-gilt, one silver salt, double gilt, one dozen of spoons, and one nest of small bowls, double gilt, with a cover; also feather-beds, &c. two geldings, and one armour. To his third son, Miles Sandes, a big square salt, double gilt, a dozen of silver spoons, and a standing cup of silver, double gilt, feather-beds, &c. two geldings, and one armour. To his fourth son, Thomas Sandes, one silver bowl, double gilt, with a cover, marked with the letter M; feather-beds, &c. one gelding, and one armour.

To his fifth son, Henry Sandes, besides his own plate, given him when he was christened, one small round salt of silver, double gilt, with a cover, one gelding, one nag, and one armour, &c. and 30l. current money. To George Sandes, his youngest son, besides the plate given him at his christening, one nest of silver pinked bowls, double gilt, with a cover, a small square salt, double gilt, a gelding, a nag, one armour, &c.

To his eldest daughter, Margaret Awcher, one great salt of silver, with a cover, and furniture, &c. To his daughter, Anne Barne, one great salt of silver, double gilt, with a cover, a dozen of silver spoons, and one ambling nag, fit for her own saddle; all at the appointment of his executrix.

He bequeaths to his brother, Christopher Sandes, 10l. and 30l. that he oweth him. To his brother, Anthony Sandes, 10l.; and to his daughter, Cicely, 10l. To his servant and kinsman, David Sandes, 20l. and one good gelding, at the assignment of his executrix. To every one of his household servants, at his decease, half a year's wages, and meat and drink for two months after. He moreover wills, that Dr. Toby Matthews, Dean of Durham, and his son, Edwin Sandes, should dispose of all his books of learning, except those in English, which he leaves to his wife, Cicely, to dispose of among his children; reserving to the said Edwin, such as the said Dr. Matthews shall think fittest for his study.

The residue of his goods and chattels, not before bequeathed, his funeral debts, (and dilapidations, if any should happen to be), being first discharged, he gives to his loving and faithful wife, Cicely Sandes, in full satisfaction of that her third part of his goods, due by the custom of the province of York, and makes her sole executrix; requiring her, as she will answer in good conscience before Almighty God, to see this his last will and testament truly performed.

He constitutes supervisors, his trusty and well-beloved friends, Sir Christopher Wrey, Knt. Lord Chief Justice of England; Dr. Toby Matthews, Dean of Durham; his loving brother, Miles Sandes, Francis Palmes, and his son, Samuel Sandes, Esqrs. heartily praying them, for all the good-will they have borne him, to give their best advice and assistance to his said executrix; and bequeaths to each of them 10*l*. And if any doubt, question, or ambiguity, should happen to arise, of this his last will, he desires it may be decided by his supervisors, or three of them; whose declaration he wills, that as well his said wife and children, as all others having interest in his will, shall stand and abide, without any contradiction, on penalty of losing their several legacies, &c. He concludes:

‘ This is the last will and testament of me, Edwin Sandes, Archbishop of York, written this first of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand five hundred fourscore and seven, and in the nine and twentieth year of the reign of our sovereign Lady, Queen Elizabeth, by the grace of God, Queen of England, &c. Whereunto I have subscribed with mine own hand, my name, and set my seal, requiring the same inviolably to be observed of my wife and children, and of all others that have any interest therein, as they will answer me before God.’

The probate bears date May 22d, 1590, and administration granted to Cicely his lady, the executrix. She was his second wife, and sister to Sir Thomas Wilford; she died <sup>o</sup>February 5th, 1610, and was buried at Woodham Ferrers, in Essex; where a monument is erected to her memory.

Before a great Bible, printed by Richard Jugge, Queen’s printer, 1574, in the Archbishop’s own hand, are the names and birth-days of his children, which he had by his said wife Cicely; and were all living, October 1st, 1576, viz.

Samuel Sandes was born on December 28th, at three of the clock in the morning, in the year of our Lord God, 1560: his godfathers, Clement Throckmorton, Esq. John Pedder, Dean of Worcester; his godmother, Mrs. Anne Berrow.

Before I treat of Sir Samuel Sandes, the eldest son, ancestor to the present Baroness Sandys, I shall give some account of the Archbishop's younger sons.

Sir Edwin, the second son, was sent to the University of Oxford, in September 1577, at the age of sixteen,<sup>r</sup> and was admitted probationer-fellow of Corpus Christi College, January 23d, 1579, being then Bachelor of Arts. In 1581, he had conferred on him the Prebend of Wetwang, in the church of York; but after the death of his father, he left his fellowship,<sup>s</sup> and travelled into France, Germany, Italy, and other parts for the space of three years; and at his return, grew famous for his learning, prudence, and virtue. A little before the death of Queen Elizabeth, he resigned his prebend, and on King James's accession to the Crown, he had the honour of knighthood conferred upon him,<sup>t</sup> viz. May 11th, 1603; after which he was employed by his Majesty in several affairs of great trust, and was very dexterous in the management, as Wood writes. He was a leading man in all parliamentary business, and esteemed an excellent patriot, faithful to King and country: but in that parliament, held in 1621, speaking in defence of the liberty of the subject, he, and the famous Selden,<sup>u</sup> were committed to the sheriff of London, June 16th, and not delivered till July 18th following; which was voted by the House of Commons, on November 8th ensuing, a great breach of their privileges. He was treasurer to the undertakers for the Western plantations, which he effectually advanced, and as my author<sup>x</sup> saith, 'was a person of great judgment, of a commanding pen, and a solid statesman.' He wrote, while he was at Paris, anno 1599, 'Europæ Speculum: or, A View of the State of Religion in the Western Parts of the World.'<sup>y</sup> Wherein the Roman religion, and the policies of that church to support the same, are notably di-played, and confuted, &c. He left 1500l. to the University of Oxford for the endowment of a metaphysic lecture; and dying in October, 1629, was buried in the church of Northbourn, in Kent, where he had a seat,<sup>z</sup> and a fair estate;<sup>a</sup> he had issue, First, Henry, born 1605, married a daughter of Sir Wm. Hammond, of St. Albans, Ob. S.P. Second, Edwin, a noted Parliamentary Colonel,<sup>b</sup> killed at Worcester, anno 1642, father of Sir RICHARD, killed by his own gun, 1663, as he was getting over a hedge; who married Mary, eldest daughter of Sir Henry Heyman, of Somerfield, Bart. and had issue Sir RICHARD Sandys, of Northbourn, who was created a Baronet by Charles II. on January 23d, 1684. He died 1726, leaving several daughters his coheirs.<sup>c</sup> RICHARD, younger son of Colonel Edwin Sandys, was ancestor of Admiral Charles Sandys, and of his elder brother, Edwin Humphry Sandys, Esq. late of Kingston, in Kent, and now of Doncaster, in Yorkshire.

Sir Miles Sandes, third son, was also a gentleman of polite parts and learning; possessed of a fair estate at Wilberton, in the Isle of Ely, and received first knighthood from King James, and afterwards the dignity of a Baronet, November 25th, 1612. He served in parliament<sup>d</sup> as one of the representatives for the University of Cambridge, in 12 Jac. I. and in 3 Car. I. was elected,<sup>e</sup> with Sir John Carleton, Bart. Knights for the county of Cambridge. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Edward Cooke, of North-Cray, in com. Cantii. Gent. by whom he had issue seven sons (of whom, Miles, the eldest, was Knt. and Bart.) and a daughter; and died in the latter end of 1644. This branch of the family is also extinct.

William, the fourth son, <sup>f</sup> died in his youth.

Thomas, fifth son,<sup>g</sup> was of London, and had a numerous issue, but I do not find any remaining.

George, youngest son, resided at Carswell, in Oxfordshire, was a most ingenious gentleman, and is famous for his travels, and poems. See his character drawn by Lord Clarendon in his own Life

I now return to Sir SAMUEL Sandes, the eldest son of the Archbishop. He inherited from his father, the manor of Ombersley, in the county of Worcester, and other estates, and <sup>h</sup> was

Of the daughters, Cecilia, the eldest, married John Brace, of Hill-court, in the parish of Dodderhill, in com. Wigorn. Esq. Wigorn, Esq.; and Elizabeth, born in 1602, was the wife of Edward Pytts, of Kyar, in com. Wigorn, Esq. and after his death espoused George Walsh, second brother of Joseph Walsh, of Abberley, in the same county.

The said Sir Samuel Sandes died on August 18th, 1623, 21 Jac. I. as appears<sup>l</sup> by the inquisition taken after his death (then customary) at Worcester, September 2d, 22 Jac. I. when the jury found that he died possessed of the manor of Wickhamford, with the appurtenances; the manor of Ombersley, and rectory of the church, and three water-mills there, called Squintemill, Tyremill and Pig-mill, and divers messuages, lands, &c. there, and in Worcestershire. ‘ Here, in Hopes of a joyful Resurrection; resteth the Body of Sir Samuel Sandys, Knt. eldest son to that famous Prelate, Edwin Archbishop of York; for Piety, and excellent Endowments of his Mind, deserving justly to be remembered by Posterity; especially for his singular Wisdom, Integrity, and Industry, in the Affairs of the Commonwealth, of whom the great and frequent Assemblies of Parliament were approving Witnesses. Being also to this County, that challengeth his birth, a principal Ornament. He changed this life for a better, in his Climacterical Year (a Year for the most Part fatal to excellent Men) having almost attained to 63. The Wife of his Youth, and his Age, was Mercey, descended of the ancient Family of the Culpepers, and the only Daughter of her Mother; a wise and prudent Woman, who, together with her Husband, was a great Advancer of her Family; with whom he lived 36 Years, in exemplary Concord; and had by her eleven Children, all of them (an extraordinary Blessing) at his Death surviving: But she having honourably interred her Husband, together with her eldest Son. Sir Edwin Sandys, a young Gentleman of great Virtues, who hardly 21 Days outlived his Father; a most sorrowful Widow, and Mother, erected this monument to their Memories, as a lasting Testimony of her Love and Affection; and hath commanded her Children, after her Death, to inter her by the Body of her dear Husband; that so her Ashes may be mingled with his, from whom, in her Life, her Desires and Affections were inseparable, which is since accordingly accomplished; for she having piously breath’d out her Soul unto God, here resteth in Peace, and assured Expectation of the second Coming of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ.’

Sir EDWIN, his eldest son, as before-mentioned, was knighted in his father's lifetime. He <sup>m</sup> married, in 12 Jac. I. Penelope,<sup>n</sup> daughter of Sir Richard Bulkeley, of the Isle of Anglesey, by whom he had four sons, and three daughters; viz.

His Lady died in 1680, and was buried near her husband: whose monument and inscription are before-mentioned.

SAMUEL, his eldest son, inherited his estate, and being young, it was very much increased by the care of his guardians, until he came to age; but upon breaking out of the civil war, in 1641, he left the parliament, and sided with the King, and had first the command of a troop of horse; with which he was in the engagement at Wickfield, near Worcester, and at Edgehill; and in the march to Brentford, under the command of the Earl of Bristol. He then raised a regiment of foot, and armed it at his own charge; and in the same year a regiment of horse, consisting of seven troops; and a good part of a regiment of dragoons. These, after some time, were scattered and broken for want of pay; but shortly after he recruited both his regiments of horse and foot, without the least charge to the King, and kept them in constant pay to the end of the war. He was, in 1642, made Governor of Evesham; in 1644, Lieutenant-governor of Worcester, under Prince Maurice, General of his Majesty's dominions of Wales, &c. He was engaged in most of the considerable designs, and undertakings, which were on foot during the war for the King's service; was frequently imprisoned, and under restraints, and his estate sequestrated, for which he was obliged to compound. He had six troops of horse, some months before the King's landing at his Restoration, ready to be drawn together. By these means, the greatest part of his estate was spent, having never received any pay or reward for his services; and upon the Restoration, he had only six thousand pounds allowed him out of the excise of Devonshire, for all his trouble and charge. He served often in parliament for the borough of Droitwich, and county of Worcester; and first married Mary, only daughter of Dr. Hugh Barker, Dean of the Arches, a younger son of the Barkers, of Great Harwood, in Buckinghamshire, by whom he had two sons, and one daughter; viz.

First, Samuel, who succeeded to the estate.

Second, Edwin, who was chosen fellow of New College, in Oxford, being by his mother related to the founder, William of Wickham, Bishop of Winchester, and Lord High Chancellor of England. He died at New College, on January 8th, 1684, and was buried in the cloisters there, and has a mural monument erected to his memory.

Mary, the only daughter, died in 1681, unmarried, and was buried at Wickhamford.

Their mother died in 1651, and was buried at Wickhamford.

He afterwards married Elizabeth, widow of Colonel Henry Washington (Governor of Worcester for Charles I.) and daughter of Sir John Packington, of Westwood, in the county of Worcester, Bart. but by her had no issue. He died in 1685, and was buried at Ombersley, where he has a monument erected to his memory, with the following inscription:

The said Elizabeth died in 1698, and was buried at Wickhamford.

SAMUEL, his eldest son, succeeded him. He served often in parliament for Droitwich, and married Elizabeth, only daughter of Sir John Pettus, of Cheston-hall, in the county of Suffolk, Knt. by whom he had three sons, and four daughters; viz.

First, Edwin, of whom hereafter.

Second, Henry, who died young.

Third, Martin, Fellow of New College, and Barrister at Law, who married Elizabeth, daughter of John Burton, of the city of Worcester, Gent. by whom he had five children, of whom, Catherine married, 1740, Martin Wall, M.D. who died at Bath, June 27th, 1776.<sup>n</sup>

Of his four daughters, Elizabeth, died young; Penelope, was married to Henry Townshend, of Elmly-Lovett, in the county of Worcester, Esq. but died without issue; Mary, was wedded to Price, Viscount Hereford; Frances, married to Samuel Pyts, of Kyre, in the county of Worcester, Esq.

He died in 1701, and she in 1724, and were both buried at Ombersley, and have a monument erected to their memory, with this inscription:

EDWIN, his eldest son, died before him in 1699, and was buried at Ombersley. He represented the county of Worcester in the parliament called in 1695; and married Alice, daughter of Sir James Rushout, of Northwick, in the parish of Blockley, in the county of Worcester, Bart. and by her (who died in 1701, and was buried near her husband) had one daughter, Alice, who died unmarried, and two sons;

First, Samuel, created Lord Sandys.

Second, Edwin, who was bred to the sea, and died young.

SAMUEL, FIRST LORD SANDYS, the eldest son, after having spent some time at New College, in Oxford, and in foreign parts, was, on March 4th, 1717, chosen to represent the city of Worcester in parliament; which city he continued to represent, till he was called to the House of Peers.<sup>o</sup>

On February 11th, 1741, he was made CHANCELLOR AND UNDER-TREASURER OF HIS MAJESTY'S EXCHEQUER, and one of the Commissioners for executing the office of Treasurer of the Exchequer; and five days after (February 16th), was sworn of his Majesty's most honourable Privy-council, at St. James's, and took his place at the board accordingly.

Resigning those places on December 20th, 1743, he was created a Peer of Great Britain, by the style of LORD SANDYS, Baron of Ombersley, in the county of Worcester, and made Cofferer of his Majesty's Household; from which he was removed on December 22d, 1744.

However, in January 1756, he was vested with the offices of Warden and Chief Justice in Eyre of all his Majesty's forests, parks, chases, and warrens, south of the river Trent; which he resigned in December following, when he was chosen Speaker of the House of Peers: but on February 13th, 1759, he was declared Warden and Chief Justice of all his Majesty's forests, parks, &c. north of Trent. His Lordship was continued a member of the Privy-council, at the accession of the present King, on October 25th, 1760, and likewise in the said offices of Warden and Chief Justice of the forests, &c. beyond the Trent, until March,

<sup>o</sup> He was the active opponent of Walpole; and by Smollet called "the motion-maker."

1761, when he was appointed first Lord of Trade and the Plantations, but gave up that place in February, 1763.

His Lordship, in 1724, married Letitia, eldest of the two daughters and coheirs of Sir Thomas Tipping, of Wheatfield (or Whitfield), in the county of Oxford, Baronet, by Anne his wife, daughter, and at length heir of Thomas Cheek, of Pirgo, in the county of Essex, Esq. (lineally descended from Sir John Cheek, Preceptor and Secretary of State to King Edward VI.) by Letitia his wife, eldest of the two daughters, and at length sole heir, of the Honourable Edward Russell, fourth son of Francis, fourth Earl of Bedford, and brother of William, the first Duke of Bedford, and sister to Edward Earl of Orford. Her Ladyship died in May, 1779, and was buried at Ombersley.

By her he had seven sons, and three daughters:

First, Edwin, the late Lord Sandys.

Second, Cheek, who died in 1737, unmarried.

Third, Thomas, who died young, in 1728.

Fourth, The Hon. Martin Sandys, who on February 19th, 1762, ranked as a Colonel in the army, being then made Major in the second regiment of foot-guards; was one of the Grooms of the Bedchamber, and Equerry to the late Duke of Cumberland; and on June 7th, 1760, wedded Mary, only child and heir of William Trumbull (alias Turnbull), of Hamstead park, in Berkshire, Esq. who died on May 24th, 1760; and was the only son and heir of Sir William Trumbull (Secretary of State in the reign of King William) by Lady Judith, his wife, daughter of Henry Alexander, fourth Earl of Stirling, in Scotland, by whom he had issue two sons, William and Edwin, who died young, and a daughter, MARY, married to the late Marquis of Downshire, and now BARONESS SANDYS. He died in 1769,<sup>n</sup> and his Lady a few months after him.

Fifth, Letitia.

Sixth, William, who died on October 31st, 1749, and was buried at Ombersley.

Seventh, Anne, married, at Ombersley, 21st July, 1768, to Christopher Bethell, Esq.

Eighth, John, who died in Germany.

Ninth, Catharine, who died in 1736; and,

Tenth, Henry, who died in 1737.

His Lordship departed this life April 21st, 1770, and was buried at Ombersley; being succeeded by his only surviving son,

EDWIN, SECOND Lord SANDYS, who was chosen member for Droitwich, in Worcestershire, in 1747; was elected for Bossiney, in Cornwall, in 1754; and on April 27th, 1762, was chosen representative for the city of Westminster. In April 1757, was appointed one of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, but resigned soon after. He was also one of the Vice-Presidents of the Westminster Infirmary.

On January 26th, 1769, his Lordship was married to Anna-Maria, daughter of James Colebrooke, of Southgate, in the county of Middlesex, Esq. sister to Sir James and Sir George Colebrooke, Barts. and relict of William Paine King, of Fineshade, in Northamptonshire, Esq. He died without issue 1801.

Dr. Nash having observed of his father, that he was "a very useful, diligent senator, a warm, steady friend, a good neighbour, a most hospitable country gentleman, and provincial magistrate;" adds of the son, Edwin, second Lord Sandys, that he was born in 1725, and was educated at Eton, where he was one of the best scholars of his time, especially in the Greek language, which he read when he was near seventy. He was a Lord of the Admiralty, during Lord Granville's short administration in 1746; and though he was closely attached to Lord North, during the whole of his time, and constantly voted with him, yet he never obtained any employment: he might have been useful in a post of diligence and form, and would have been pleased to be employed. He had no great judgment of his own, but was easily guided; very conversant in English history, and forms of parliament, especially of the House of Commons, which he constantly attended while a member; namely, from the time he came of age to his father's death, either for Droitwich, a Cornish borough, or Westminster. In private life he was perfectly good-humoured, and obliging; a great lover of anecdote, and an agreeable companion. He came late into possession of his estate, and during the lifetime of his father was confined to a very narrow allowance, which he bore with great patience, and true filial piety. His make was large and corpulent; his appetite great, though he was not intemperate. He married a sister of Sir George Colebrooke, widow of Mr. King, of Northamptonshire, who left her his whole estate, by which means she was a great fortune to her second husband. This, together with what he inherited from his mother (the daughter and coheir of Sir Thomas Tipping, of Wheatfield, in Oxfordshire, Bart.) who had a fortune of above 170,000*l*. enabled Lord Sandys to live very handsomely, hospitably, and charitably, which he always did. Although the family estate of the Sandyses was not 1500*l.* a year, all together would have been a very ample fortune, if his father had not impaired it by Worcester elections, and, perhaps, by a considerable sum lent to Frederick, Prince of Wales."<sup>a</sup>

HOLROYD, LORD SHEFFIELD.

THE name of HOLROYD is of great antiquity in the West Riding of the county of York, and is derived from the hamlet or estate of Holroyd, or Howroyd, as it is pronounced in Bark-island, six miles from Halifax, which they formerly possessed. The name has been differently spelled; viz. Howroyde, Howlefoyde, Hooleroid, Holerode, Holroide, Holroid, Holeroyd, Holroyd, &c. The origin of which has been derived by antiquaries from the Anglo-Saxon How, an hill, ford, which word signifies, when applied to land, such as was barren and uncultivated, and which on that account paid only twopence per acre, and was freed from the service of grave, and other taxes. This origin well suits the soil and situation of Holroyd (now the property and seat of Joshua Horton, Esq. uncle to Sir Watts Horton, of Chadderton, in county of Lancaster, Bart.) which joins to the mountainous country separating Lancashire from Yorkshire, called Blackstone-edge. The name Holdenroid is also to be found in Holstein, &c. whence the Anglo-Saxons came.

It appears from grants, ancient deeds and records, that WILLIAM de Howroyde possessed the lands of Howroyde in the reign of King Edward I.

JOHN, his son, was living 8 Edward III. 1335.

HENRY de Howloide, 2 Richard II.

THOMAS de Holroide, 9 Richard II.

JOHN de Holroid, in the same King's reign.

JOHN, his son, 3 Henry IV.

HUGH de Holroid, of Barkisland, and Gracia his wife, granted two oxgangs of land in Barkisland to John Faber, 8 Henry IV.

1407, to which deed a seal is appendant, being a rose, encircled with the words "S. Hugonis de Holroid," which was afterwards increased to five roses in saltire, now borne by the family, and shows the antiquity of the coat.

JOHN Holroyd, of Barkisland, was living in the time of Henry V.

THOMAS Holroid, 7 Henry VII.

JOHN Holroid, 12 Henry VIII.

JOHN Holroid, 18 Elizabeth.

HENRY Holroid, 40 Elizabeth.

GEORGE Holroyd, 3 James I.

JOHN Holroid, 20 James I.

ISAAC Holroid, 15 Charles I. Which Isaac had several children, and his son Benjamin left a son, Isaac; another son, Nathaniel, left a daughter named Elizabeth; but these elder branches ended in a female.

ISAAC Holroid, Esq. his younger son, went into Ireland in the reign of Charles II. and acquired considerable possessions in that kingdom. He distinguished himself as a strenuous friend to the Revolution, and died in the year 1706. He married four wives, but had issue only by Mary Holroyd, his first cousin, one son, John, and one daughter, Mary, who married Isaac Ambrose, Esq. Clerk of the House of Commons in Ireland, and left an only child, Elizabeth, who married Hugh Eccles, Esq.

JOHN Holroyd, Esq. born in 1680, only son and heir to Isaac abovementioned, resided occasionally in England and Ireland, and married Sarah, the daughter of William Elwood, Esq.<sup>a</sup> and sister and coheir to John Elwood, Vice-Provost and Representative in Parliament for the University of Dublin; he died in 1729, leaving issue two sons and one daughter. The sons were

First, Isaac, his successor

Second, William, the second son, born in London in 1712, was beneficed in the county of Wicklow, and died in 1768, leaving two daughters; Sarah, married to Rev. Moore Smyth; and Mary, to Rev. J. Alley, and is since deceased, leaving one son.

ISAAC Holroyd, Esq. the eldest son, was born in July, 1708. He was educated at Hackney school, and afterwards at Doctor Sheridan's in Dublin. He was entered at the University of Dublin, and afterwards studied the law at the Middle Temple, London; but did not pursue that profession, preferring the private walk of life.

He married Dorothy, the youngest daughter of Daniel Baker, of Penn, in county of Bucks, Esq. (by Martha, daughter of Samuel Mellish, of Blyth, in the county of Nottingham, Esq. by his wife, Jane, daughter and coheir to Thomas Prouse, of Hillersdown, in the county of Somerset, Esq. widow of Tobias Harvey, ancestor to Stanhope Harvey, of Womersley, in county of York, Esq.); and deceasing at Bath 11th May, 1778, in the seventieth years of his age, was interred at Fletching, in Sussex, in a gothic mausoleum, adjoining the church, which was erected for the family. On the front of the monument are the following inscriptions:

The issue of the said Isaac, by his wife Dorothy (who died in Sheffield Place, 29th August, 1777, and was interred at Fletching), were four sons, and four daughters; viz.

First, Isaac, who died in the eighth year of his age.

Second, John, the present Lord Sheffield.

Third, Daniel, who distinguished himself on the breaking out of the war with France; in 1756 he was appointed Ensign in the 18th or royal Irish regiment of foot, and in 1759, Lieutenant in a new raised regiment of infantry, the 90th, under the command of Colonel Morgan. He distinguished himself at the capture of Belleisle, and at Martinico, where he commanded the grenadiers of the regiment, particularly on the 24th of January, at the bold attack of the heights, which were thought impregnable, and commanded St. Pierre. From Martinico the regiment went to the siege of the Havannah; the difficulties and success of which are well known. Four officers, of which he was one, and thirty-six men of the regiment, on an out post, repulsed a body of five hundred Spaniards, by whom they had been attacked on the 24th of July, just before day-break; for which service they were thanked in orders by General Lord Albemarle. At last, through the length of the siege, and the ravages of the climate, the army being greatly weakened, and its situation become desperate, it was resolved, as a last resource, to storm the Moro Fort. Notwithstanding the health of the gallant officer, of whom we have been speaking, was at that time much impaired by fatigue and the disorders incidental to the climate, yet he offered himself to command a detachment of the regiment, to act as a forlorn hope. He was obliged to pass to the breach (which would admit only one man a-breast) along a narrow ridge of rock, hanging over the sea on one side, on the other side was the ditch, upwards of sixty feet deep. The Spaniards had placed a thirty-two pounder opposite to the breach, behind a traverse, loaded with the parings of ball, &c. which being fired, killed about ten men; the detachment forced its way into the fort; Velasco, the Governor, was mortally wounded; the garrison gave way, but a priest with a dozen men, got into a tower, and firing from thence, this promising young man was shot dead on the spot; he fell highly regretted by the whole army. Of the forlorn hope, which consisted of about forty, two of the three officers, and two-thirds of the men, were killed; but they were the whole that fell in this extraordinary attack, the boldness of which entirely confounded the Spaniards. The sustaining party followed the forlorn hope, and four hundred of the eight hundred Spaniards in the fort were put to the sword. It is well known, the Havannah being commanded by the Moro, surrendered in consequence of this successful attack. Daniel Holroyd was buried on the glacis of the Moro Fort.

Fourth, Elwood, the fourth son, died young.

The daughters were, ———, who died soon after her birth; Sarah-Martha, lately living, unmarried, at Bath; Martha, who died young; and Dorothy, who died in 1770, in the twenty-fourth year of her age, unmarried, and was buried at Fletching.

JOHN Holroyd, the only surviving son, now LORD SHEFFIELD, entered into the army in 1760, when the regiment of light dragoons, called the Royal Foresters, was raised, under the command of the Marquis of Granby, in which corps he was Captain of a troop. When the peace was concluded in 1763, and the regiment was disbanded, he travelled three years over the principal parts of Europe, visiting the several courts of France, Italy, and Germany, and returned to England in 1766.<sup>b</sup>

In 1768, in default of issue male of his mother's family, he succeeded to their estates in Yorkshire, Buckinghamshire, and Middlesex, and at the same time added the name of BAKER to his own, in conformity to the will of his uncle.<sup>c</sup>

<sup>c</sup> The Family of BAKER, originally of Kent, was seated at Penn, in the county of Buckingham, about a century ago; and DANIEL Baker, who lived in the time of Queen Elizabeth, married Sarah, daughter of Thomas Richardson, Esq. brother to John Richardson, Alderman of London, and to Richard Richardson, who was a Judge; and by her (who died 15th February, 1660) he left issue two sons, Daniel, his heir; and John, who died unmarried.

DANIEL was born in 1627, and married 20th May, 1657, Barbara, daughter of John Steele, Alderman of London (by his wife Anne, daughter of — Nicoll, Esq.); he died in 1700, and was buried at Penn, having had issue seven children; John and James, and two daughters named Anne, died in their infancy. The survivors were, Daniel; Sarah, born 12th March, 1658, married Narcissus Luttrell, Esq. of the family of Dunster-castle, in Somersetshire, and left an only son, Francis, who died without issue; and Elizabeth, born 10th November, 1678, and married to John Verney, Viscount Fermanagh, grandfather to Ralph, Earl Verney.

DANIEL, the only surviving son, succeeding his father, resided many years at Penn, in Buckinghamshire; and in the year 1711, was High Sheriff of that county. By his wife, Martha Mellish (abovementioned) whom he married in the year 1680, he had nine sons, and eight daughters, four of whom died in their infancy. The survivors were,

First, Daniel, his heir, who was born in 1688; he resided at Penn, and died in 1738, unmarried.

Second, Samuel, born in 1689, D. D. Chancellor and Canon Residentiary of York, also Rector of Tettrington and Dunnington, in that county; he died in 1749, unmarried.

Third, John, born in 1690, a Portugal merchant; on the death of his elder brother he retired, resided several years at Penn, and died in 1759, unmarried.

Fourth, James, born in 1693, Vicar of Stamfordham, in Northumberland, died in 1768, unmarried.

Fifth, William-Mellish, born in 1708, resided in Portugal as a merchant, and died in 1730, unmarried.

First, Anne, eldest daughter, born in 1686, married to Thomas Mead, Commander of a squadron of ships of war in the West Indies, in Queen Anne's reign, and by him had an only daughter, who married Sir Fitz-Williams Barrington, Bart.

Second, Sarah, born in 1695, married to Henry Long, of Totteridge, Herts, who was Captain of Admiral Wager's ship when he took the galleons in the West Indies; and she died in childhood, but left no issue.

Third, Elizabeth, born in 1697, died in 1766, unmarried.

Fourth, Martha, born in 1698, married Henry Faure, of Egham, in Surrey, Esq. and left three daughters; viz. Margaret, who died unmarried; Anne, married to Denis Farrier Hillersdon, of Elstow, in Bedfordshire, Esq. and left two daughters; and Dorothy, married to Daniel Falkiner, of Abbotstown, in county of Dublin, Esq.

From the year 1767 he resided at Greave-hall, in Yorkshire, and principally at Sheffield-place,<sup>d</sup> in Sussex; where he distinguished himself as an active magistrate, and useful country gentleman.

Fifth, Barbara, born in 1699, married to Richard Andrews, of West Sheene, Esq. and left one son, John, who died in 1768, unmarried.

Sixth, Maria-Josepha, born in 1701, married to Thomas Atkinson, of Grove, in the county of York, Esq. and died in 1778, leaving no issue.

Seventh, Joanna, born in 1703, married to Thomas Carter, of Westowe, in Cambridgeshire, Esq. and left three daughters; viz. Martha, who died unmarried; Elizabeth, living and unmarried; Harriet, married to Sir Henry Clinton, K. B. Commander in Chief in America, &c. and died, leaving two sons (one of whom has married Lord Sheffield's youngest daughter), and two daughters. And, Eighth, Dorothy, born in 1704, who married Isaac Holroyd beforementioned.

Daniel the father, died in 1727, and was buried at Penn, as was also his wife, Martha, who died in 1752. In memory of the family of Baker are two elegant monuments of marble in the church of Penn, with the following inscriptions:

<sup>d</sup> The estates and manor of Sheffield, in Sussex, from which his Lordship takes his title, are very considerable, and give name to the Hundred. The house is large and elegant, and situated in an extensive park, mid-way between East-Grinstead and Lewes. The first foundation is not known, but it has undergone great alterations, especially within these few years. It is in the best gothic style, and in a battlemented frize, which goes round the house, are introduced the arms of the possessors of the Lordship or Manor of Sheffield, from Edward the Confessor's time, when, as appears from Domesday-book, it belonged to Earl Godwin. In 1068, William the Conqueror granted it to his half brother, Robert de Mortaigne, Earl of Cornwall. 25 Edward I. 1296, it belonged to Laurence de St. Maur. 32 Edward I. 1304, to John de Ratiden. 35 Edward I. 1306, to Thomas, Earl of Lancaster. 35 Edward III. 1360, to Henry, Duke of Lancaster. 48 Edward III. 1375, to Roger Dalyngrigg. 2 Richard III. 1484, to John, first Duke of Norfolk. 13 Elizabeth, 1570, to Thomas, third Duke of Norfolk, who in 1571, the year before he was beheaded, sold the manor, &c. of Sheffield to Thomas, Lord Buckhurst; whose grandson, Richard, Earl of Dorset, sold the same 21 James I. 1623, to Sir Christopher Nevil, son of Edward, Lord Abergavenny, and ancestor to the present Lord. Anne, Baroness Dowager of Abergavenny, marrying to her second husband John, Lord Delawar, this manor passed into that family in 1744, and from the said Lord Delawar, to John Baker Holroyd, by purchase.

In the year 1778, when the war with France broke out, the militia of the county of Sussex being embodied, for the first time, in the month of March that year, under the command of the Duke of Richmond, he entered into it as Major, and was indefatigable in his attention to the regiment.

In the Summer of 1779, when the combined fleets of France and Spain were upon the coast of England, he offered to raise a regiment of light dragoons without expense to the public, which offer was graciously accepted by his Majesty, and he was permitted to nominate all his officers. The regiment was completed in a few weeks, and called the Sussex, or 22d regiment, as much distinguished by its men, horses, and appointments, as by its military discipline.

In February, 1780, he was elected to parliament for the city of Coventry without opposition, and soon distinguished himself by his spirit, his clearness of judgment, and a manly boldness of expression. In June, the same year, during the very extraordinary insurrection and disturbances in London, he was eminent for his activity.<sup>c</sup> At the head of a detachment of the Northumberland militia, he was the first to put a stop to the outrageous violences of the mob at Mr. Langdale's in High Holborn, and at Holborn-bridge, where he had an opportunity of displaying courage, coolness, and humanity.

His Majesty, by privy seal at St. James's 10th December, 1780,<sup>f</sup> and by patent at Dublin 9th January, 1781,<sup>g</sup> advanced him to the Peerage of Ireland, by the name, style, and title of <sup>c</sup> When Parliament was besieged and insulted by an intoxicated multitude, and when the person who brought together that multitude, had frequently gone out to the people, and represented, or rather misrepresented, to them what was passing in that House, to which he belonged, it is said that Mr. Holroyd stopped him with some threats; adding, "that heretofore he had imputed his conduct to madness, but that now he was convinced there was more malice than madness in it."

Lord Sheffield, Baron of Dunamore,<sup>h</sup> in the county of Meath. And by letters from St. James's,<sup>i</sup> 17th September, 1783, his Majesty was pleased further to create him Baron Sheffield, of Roscomon, entailing the honour, in failure of heirs male, on his issue female; the patent passed accordingly 19th October same year.<sup>k</sup>

At the general election the preceding September, through the flagitious conduct of the corporation of Coventry, and the sheriffs, his re-election was prevented, and no return made; after a long hearing before the House of Commons, the sheriffs were committed to Newgate for their proceedings, and a new election was ordered, which began the latter end of November following: through the same management of the corporation, the poll was continued four weeks and two days; and notwithstanding a great majority in favour of Colonel Holroyd and Mr. Yeo, Sir Thomas Halifax and Mr. Rogers were returned; but on a second petition to the House, the two former members, viz. Colonel Holroyd and Mr. Yeo, were declared duly elected.

Soon after the conclusion of the war in the beginning of 1783, he had an opportunity of shewing still further the variety and extent of his abilities, by the opposition which he almost singly made to a bill brought into parliament during the Marquis of Lansdown's administration, for the regulation of the trade and intercourse with the American States. He pointed out the mischievous tendency of the system, and by perseverance and unremitting attention to the bill in every stage, it was at length stopped, and a temporary power given to the King in Council, to regulate the intercourse with the new States; but the system was only suspended, the subject led to an inquiry the most extensive that could be conceived, and it was not likely to be understood, if his Lordship had not thrown together in a pamphlet a most extraordinary body of information, with his observations thereon; the title of the pamphlet was, Observations on the Commerce with the American States; and in the year 1785, his Lordship published a Tract on the Manufactures, Trade, and present State of Ireland.<sup>l</sup>

His Lordship afterwards sat in parliament for Bristol, for many

ADMIRAL CUTHBERT COLLINGWOOD, LORD COLLINGWOOD, who was rewarded with that title on November 20th, 1805, for the immortal victory of Trafalgar, died without issue male on March 7th, 1810, aged sixty, before the present work could be finished at the press. He does not properly therefore belong to the present place. But it would be unjust to deprive him of a memorial in these volumes. His pedigree therefore, his services, and his character, shall have a place in an Appendix.

ERSKINE, LORD ERSKINE.

ALTHOUGH it is not above four hundred years since the ERSKINES had any title to the Earldom of Marr, yet this illustrious family, considered in itself, is very great and eminent, if we respect either its antiquity, or the many great employments and preferments they have been honoured with these four hundred years past; and though we cannot show the precise time when, or by whom the name was first assumed, yet it is certain, it was derived from the Barony of ERSKINE, in the shire of Renfrew, and so being a local surname, is of consequence very ancient; though the first mention found of them, is no higher than the time of King Alexander II. in the twelfth of whose reign

HENRY DE ERSKINE is witness in the gift which Amelick, brother of Maldwin, Earl of Lennox, made to the chanons of Paisly of the patronage of the church of Roseneth, with the tithes thereunto belonging, for the welfare of the King his sovereign lord.<sup>a</sup>

Sir JOHN de Erskine, Knight, his successor, is a witness to that donation, which Walter Stewart, Earl of Monteith, made to the Abbot of Paisly, of the church of St. Colmonel, for the good of his soul, according to the devotion of those days.<sup>b</sup> He was the father of

Sir JOHN de Erskine, and he of

First, WILLIAM, who succeeded him in the Barony of Erskine, and of,

Second, John, who obtained a grant from James, High Steward of Scotland, of sundry lands within his tenement of Largis; in which deed he is designed Joannes de Erskine, filius Joannis de Erskine, filii & heredis Joannis de Erskine Militis,<sup>c</sup> reserving the lands which William, the son of Sir John Erskine, held of him there.

Sir WILLIAM Erskine, the next of this noble family, was a forward asserter of the right of King Robert Bruce, to whose interest faithfully adhering, he was one of those patriots, who in the year 1322, joined the Earl of Murray and Sir James Douglas, when they made an expedition into England, where his gallant behaviour procured him the honour of Knighthood,<sup>d</sup> and other marks of the royal favour. He left behind him two sons.

First, Robert, his successor. And,

Second, Sir Alan Erskine, who obtained the barony of Inchmartine, in Perthshire, by the marriage of the heir of Sir John, of Inchmartine, Knight, which came the same way to the Glens, and so to Sir Andrew Ogilvy, ancestor to the Earl of Finlater, in the reign of King James II.

Which Sir ROBERT Erskine, of Erskine, being a person well versed both in peace and war, was no less conspicuous for his firm and steadfast loyalty to King David, than his father had been to King Robert, even when his interest was at the very lowest, and the usurper Baliol upon the throne; for as soon as the loyalists took the field, and declared for their lawful Sovereign, Sir Robert Erskine joined the Lord High Steward, and other patriots, who fought with, and defeated the rebels, and thereby recovered a great part of the country to the King's obedience, for which he was afterwards rewarded as his singular merit deserved.

When a treaty was set on foot for redeeming King David from captivity, when he was taken prisoner at the battle of Durham, anno 1346, Sir Robert Erskine, Lord of Erskine, as he is called in the record, was one of the commissioners employed in that honourable negociation;<sup>e</sup> but that treaty not taking effect, he was always one of the plenipotentiaries that were appointed for the same purpose, and renewed every year, though all of them were unsuccessful till the year 1357, that Robert, Lord High Steward, guardian of Scotland, then commissioned Sir Robert

<sup>c</sup> This charter is a noble document for the family of Marr, for it distinctly instructs three distinct generations; and though it be without date, yet it is certainly before 1309 that the granter died; it is apprehended its date is about 1300 from the witnesses, viz. Erskine, and other noble persons, to treat about the redemption of the King, and a final peace with the English nation, who at length agreed, that King David should be released, set free, and ransomed for 100,000 merks sterling money, to be paid yearly by 10,000 merks, till the whole sum was paid; to which no man seems to have contributed more frankly than Sir Robert, and gave his eldest son one of the hostages for performance of the treaty.<sup>f</sup> This signal loyalty to his distressed Sovereign could not fail to be nobly rewarded; and therefore his Majesty no sooner returned home, than he constituted him Justiciary for the northern district of Scotland, anno 1359,<sup>g</sup> and the same year he was appointed to go upon a solemn embassy to France, to renew the ancient league betwixt the two Crowns, Sir John Grant, and Norman Lesly, Esq. being his colleagues.<sup>h</sup> Also, in 1364, he was appointed one of the Commissioners to treat about a final peace with those named by the King of England for the same effect, when a truce was prorogued betwixt the two nations;<sup>i</sup> not long after which, Sir Robert Erskine was constituted Lord High Chamberlain, in place of Mr. Walter Biggar, Parson of Errol,<sup>k</sup> in the 40th of his reign, and made High Sheriff of the county, and Governor of the castle of Stirling during life,<sup>l</sup> likewise of Edinburgh and Dumbartoun. All which he had under his command at the death of the King, 1371,<sup>m</sup> when he declared for King Robert II. which contributed not a little to bring that Prince peaceably to the throne, and to extinguish the hopes of any other pretender to the crown. Having done all the service he could for King Robert II. toward his advancement to the throne, his Majesty did not then forget to dispense his royal favours to him, and more particularly he made him a grant of an annuity of forty merks sterling, formerly payable to the crown, out of the barony of Cadzow, which he exchanged with Sir David Hamilton for his lands of Alands, Barns, and Barnhill, within the barony of Renfrew.<sup>n</sup>

But his Majesty's bounty did not stop to him here, for soon thereafter he bestowed on him a third part of the revenue accruing to the crown out of the borough of Dundee, together with a third of the lands of Pitcarach,<sup>o</sup> then in the crown, by the demise of John Campbell, Earl of Athole.

He was a great benefactor to the church; for to the cathedral of Brichen, he gave a yearly rent out of the barony of Dundee, for the support of two priests, to celebrate divine service for the good estate of himself and his wife during their lives, and for the health of his soul after his departure hence, and the souls of his ancestors and successors for ever. Also to the monks of Cambuskenneth, he made over his right to the patronage of the church of Kinnoul, with the lands of Fintalach, pro salubritate status nostri & Christianæ Keith spousæ nostræ dum vixerimus, & pro salute animarum nostrarum, cum ab hac luce migraverimus; nec non pro salute animarum omnium antecessorum, & successorum nostrorum, & omnium fidelium defunctorum.<sup>p</sup>

First, Sir 'Thomas, his successor.

Second, Sir Nicol Erskine, of Kinnoul.<sup>r</sup> Which branch in the reign of King James II. determined in an heir female, Christian, daughter and sole heir of Sir John Erskine, of Kinnoul, married to Sir Robert Crichton, of Sanquhair, ancestor to the Earl of Dumfriesshire.

Third, Marion, married to Sir Maurice Drummond, of Concreig.<sup>s</sup>

Sir THOMAS Erskine had a large share of favour with King Robert II. by whom he was raised to the honour of Knighthood, and in 1384, appointed to go to England upon a solemn embassy, to treat about the prorogation of a truce betwixt the two realms. He was no less valued and esteemed by Robert III. for his wisdom, prudence, and experience: for in 1392, that King sent him his ambassador into England, to treat with that state upon affairs of the highest consequence.<sup>t</sup> It is not unworthy our remark, that in both the commissions the King calls Sir Thomas Erskine consanguineus noster.

He married, first, Janet, daughter of Sir Edward Keith, of Sinton, Knight, by Christian his wife, daughter and heir of Sir John Monteith, and of Helen his wife, daughter of Gratney, Earl of Mar,<sup>u</sup> by whom he had Robert, his successor.

ROBERT, Lord of Erskine, the next of this noble family, in imitation of his ancestors, signalized his loyalty to King James I. when that Prince was a prisoner in England, and as soon as an attempt was made by the Governor toward effecting his Majesty's freedom, anno 1421,<sup>z</sup> Robert, Lord of Erskine, was one of the Commissioners appointed to go to England, to ascertain the faith of the treaty: and as soon as it was finally concluded in the year 1424, he was one of the hostages sent into England for the security of the ransom.<sup>a</sup> But the King being unwilling to be deprived of Sir Robert's services, upon the payment of the first moiety of 2000 merks, he was by the King of England's order set at liberty upon the 19th of June, 1425.<sup>b</sup>

Upon the death of Alexander, Earl of Mar, anno 1436, he laid claim to the half of that Earldom, in right of his mother; and accordingly was served heir to Isabel, Countess of Mar, his cousin, before the Sheriff of Aberdeen, on the 22d of April, 1438,<sup>c</sup> and thereupon assumed the title of Earl of Mar.<sup>d</sup> But the ministry in the minority of King James II. instituting a process against his Lordship in reference to his right, and the case coming to be tried, it continued a long plea with the Crown, which was not determined in his days, death putting a period to his life, anno 1453.<sup>e</sup> Leaving issue by — — Stewart, his wife, daughter to the Lord Lorn, Thomas, his successor, and a daughter, Agnes, married to Henry Douglas, of Lochleven, ancestor to the Earl of Morton.

In that high trust he approved himself with so much fidelity, that the King, when he came to age, highly valued him, insomuch that he sent him upon a solemn embassy into France, anno 1534, to propose a match betwixt the King and a daughter of that Crown; which having performed to his Majesty's satisfaction,<sup>p</sup> he soon thereafter employed his Lordship in the same quality to Henry VIII. of England, to congratulate that King for their joint prosperity, and to consult with him about a marriage betwixt his nephew, King James, and a daughter of the Duke of Vendosme, whom the French king had offered him, his own daughter being of a weak

JOHN, thirteenth Lord Erskine, and Earl of Mar, was a person of such noble nature, generous disposition, and other bright qualities, as rendered him very capable of acting the part of a most consummate statesman, which he did afterward in the highest and most eminent stations a subject could attain to. Being at first a younger brother, his father judged the best way was to provide for him in the church, and therefore having given him education accordingly, he was in due time made Commendator of Inchmachomoe in the end of King James V's reign, no doubt for his better support in the prosecution of his studies to qualify him for a higher office in the church; but both his brothers dying without heirs of their bodies, he was obliged to quit the character of a churchman and marry, in order to raise up heirs to the family: which he did, and matched with Annabella, daughter of William Murray, of Tillibardin, paternal ancestor to the present Duke of Athol, by whom he had John, his successor, and a daughter, Margaret, married to Archibald, Earl of Angus.

Upon his accession to the honour, through the demise of his father, though he was but then a very young man, he had so fair a reputation, and was so generally well esteemed, that the Queen Regent thought fit, in the year 1553,<sup>b</sup> to give his Lordship the command of the castle of Edinburgh, in which station he behaved so well, that he preserved himself in the good opinion of the Queen's Majesty, and the whole nation.

When Queen Mary returned from France, anno 1561, her Majesty having made choice of a new Privy-council, my Lord Erskine was named one of that number; in which station he soon rendered himself very gracious to the Queen, insomuch that she made him a grant of the Abbey of Inchmachomoe, and diverse other church lands then newly dissolved. His interest at Court now being very great, he thought it a favourable opportunity, and a proper season for him to renew his claim to the Earldom of Mar, and having made a good title through a long deduced pedigree from Gratney, Earl of Mar, his pretensions being supported by the Queen's countenance, his claim was allowed and ratified by act of parliament. And though my Lord Mar was a very zealous Protestant, it is worthy our remark, Queen Mary trusted him as much as she could have done any of her own profession, which she did eminently manifest by the confidence she reposed in him; for as soon as she was happily delivered of the Prince, James VI. her Majesty committed him to the tuition and custody of the Earl, in the castle of Edinburgh, then under his command, and he discharged that great trust so well, and was so much superior to all temptations of infidelity, that when the Earl of Bothwell had married the Queen, he could not prevail with my Lord Mar, either by promises or menaces, to deliver up the Prince to him, which was the thing in the world, that wicked Earl had set his heart most upon, when it is known his Lordship could have made his own terms: in the end, when Bothwell found all his offers rejected, he was glad to allow the Earl to carry the Prince to Stirling castle, of which he himself was heritable governor, and then delivered up Edinburgh castle to Bothwell, on the 21st of May, 1566, who immediately placed a creature of his own, Sir James Balfour, in it, by which means, the Earl of Mar became, under God, the happy instrument of the Prince's miraculous preservation during his long minority: however, he still retained great duty and affection to the Queen, even after things came to an extremity; so it would appear, that nothing but a pure principle of conscience for the preservation of the heir of the kingdom, first engaged his Lordship in the company of those who set the crown upon the head of the Prince, when he was an infant little more than one year old. When the civil war began, I do not find this generous and prudent Lord much engaged on either side; for his particular province being to take care of his royal pupil, he staid himself much with him, and as he grew up in years, gave him a princely education, appointing the famous Mr. Buchanan, Mr. Peter Young, Mr. David Erskine, Commendator of Cambuskenneth, and Mr. Adam Erskine, Commendator of Dryburgh, to be his instructors; gentlemen who wanted none of those qualities which were to be wished to be in the persons to whom the education of a great and hopeful Prince was committed, and for framing his mind and manners in his young and tender years.

My Lord Mar bore no public office in the state till 1571, when, upon the death of Matthew, Earl of Lennox, the Regent (the Earl of Mar was a nobleman so generally well esteemed), he was, on September the 5th, by the unanimous consent of the King's party, chosen REGENT OF SCOTLAND in his room. In which great office he had, says one, " Less satisfaction than he expected, for when he had struggled no less under the turbulent councils of his own party, than the insolencies of his adversaries, he died for very grief,<sup>c</sup> after he had governed only thirteen months, upon the 28th of October, 1572, and left behind him so unblemished a reputation, as cannot be very easily paralleled in the like circumstances." He was interred in the vault of his family, among his ancestors, in the parish church of Alloa, under a plain monument, without any other inscription, than signifying him to be the person there interred.

To him succeeded JOHN, his son, second Earl of Mar, then under age, of whom I have found little memorable, till 1582; his Lordship being then very young, he was induced to join with others of the discontented nobility, who seized on the King at Ruthven castle, and petitioned his Majesty, that he would remove Sir James Stewart, who then styled himself Earl of Arran, from his councils, being a person of evil fame, and disaffection to the public peace of the kingdom, and an instrument of discontent between the King and his nobility: but the way and manner of that enterprise being afterwards adjudged treasonable, the Earl was obliged to give up the command of Stirling castle, and to leave his Majesty's dominions, which he did, and transporting himself into Ireland, from thence he came over to England, and joined the Lord Hamiltoun, and others, who had been outlawed during the regency of the Earl of Morton, with whom he returned to Scotland, anno 1585, when he obtained his Majesty's pardon, was restored to his command of Stirling castle, and to a more than ordinary share of his Majesty's favour, which his Lordship never afterward forfeited by any undutiful behaviour.

In 1593, when it pleased God to bless his Majesty with a son, Prince Henry, the King reposing full confidence in his Lordship's fidelity, committed the tuition of his Royal Highness to him, and his Majesty was at the same time pleased to write with his own hand the following letter to his Lordship:

" My Lord of Mar,

" Because in the security of my son consisteth my security, I have concredited to you the charge of his keeping, upon the trust I have in your honesty. This I command you out of my own mouth, being in the company of those I like, otherwise from any charge that can come from me, you shall not deliver him; and in case God call me at any time, see that neither for the Queen, nor estates, their pleasure, you deliver him, till he be eighteen years of age, and then he command you himself."

How the Earl discharged this great trust, will best appear from the exoneration which his Majesty gave him under the great seal, when his Lordship carried the Prince to London, upon his father's accession to the English crown, a copy of which shall be here inserted.

" JAMES, by the Grace of God, King of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, &c. Whereas it is not unknown, that upon just and necessary considerations, we did commit in the year of our Lord 1596, the custody of the Prince our son, to our right trusty and well-beloved cousin and counsellor, the Earl of Mar, as well in regard of our security, which consisteth in his security, as in respect there was none more fit to take that charge than the Earl, of whose sincerity in religion, affection and fidelity to our person, to our state, together with his discretion and judgment, we have had so good experience, having now otherwise resolved to dispose of him, and considering how just and necessary it is for us to give as ample a discharge to our cousin, the Earl of Mar, as may be. We do therefore first declare to all persons whatsoever, by these presents, That we have very great cause most graciously to allow of that great care which he hath shewed in providing for his virtuous education. Next, that he hath observed our directions for his delivery. And, lastly, that he hath been received in so good state of health and constitution, of body and mind, that we have occasion not only to take comfort in God's favour thereby, so confirmed to us, but do now testify and declare by virtue of these present letters, that we do discharge, acquit, and exonerate against us, our heirs, and successors, our said cousin, the Earl of Mar, concerning the education and delivery of our son, as foresaid, and do hereby notify to the world, that we have received full and intire satisfaction, answerable to the trust reposed in him, and are resolved to lay it up in memory, as a record of his constant love and duty towards us, and taking ourselves bound on the honour and gratitude of a Prince, not only to give him acquittance; but to reward him in time coming, for so great and memorable a service. 28th June, 1603."

Neither are we to forget, that in 1601, his Majesty sent him ambassador to Queen Elizabeth, to congratulate that Princess, upon her suppressing the audacious attempt of the Earl of Essex : in which negotiation, his Lordship deported himself with such prudence and conduct, that he brought the principles of the English ministry to favour his Majesty's succession to that crown, which took effect in less than two years thereafter; which, upon another occasion, his Majesty did very gratefully acknowledge, and own, " that next to the goodness of God, he ascribed to the Earl of Mar's last negotiation in that kingdom, his peaceable accession to the crown of England."

His Majesty, upon his accession to the crown of England, did not forget to dispense his royal favours to his Lordship: more particularly, he began with conferring the Garter upon him, the ensigns of which he was invested with on St. George's day, April 23d, 1603, and shortly thereafter caused him to be sworn of his Majesty's most honourable Privy-council of England, and made him a grant of sundry abbacies, and other church lands then dissolved from the crown. But his Majesty being still more and more desirous to confer greater honours on his Lordship, was graciously pleased to constitute him Lord High-Treasurer of Scotland, upon the removal of Sir Robert Ker, Earl of Somerset, and had the white-staff delivered to him, on the 2d of December, 1615, in which office he demeaned himself so well, that he did his master much service, and preserved himself in the good opinion and acceptation of the whole nation; and he had the treasury so full at the King's coming down to Scotland, in 1617, that the court were entertained with the greatest magnificence imaginable, out of the profits of the crown; and it was observed by the English nobility, who attended the King in that progress, that his Majesty appeared with no less lustre at Holy-Rood-House than at Whitehall. He continued in the Treasurer's place till 1630; his Lordship being grown aged and infirm, he resigned the office, which was immediately put into the hands of the Earl of Morton, and declining to be put into any other public employment, he retired to his seat in the country, where death put a period to his days, on the 16th of December, 1635, aged seventy-nine.

He married, first, Anne, daughter of David, Lord Drummond, by whom he had

John, his son and heir.

Next, the Lady Mary Stewart, Daughter of Esme, Duke of Lennox, by whom he had a numerous issue; viz.

First, Sir James Erskine, who, in right of Christian his wife, daughter and sole heir of Robert Douglas, Earl of Buchan, came to enjoy that honour, the King bestowing the title de novo, upon him and his heirs male.

Second, Henry, Commendator of Dryburgh, Lord Cardross, ancestor to the present Earl of Buchan, and to Lord Erskine, of whom presently.

Third, Sir Alexander Erskine, Commendator of Cambuskenneth, and one of the Senators of the College of Justice, in the reign of King Charles I.

Sixth, Sir Arthur Erskine of Scots-craig.

Seventh, William Erskine, Esq.

Lady Mary, eldest daughter, married to William, Earl Marishal; and next, to Patrick, first Earl of Panmure.

Lady Margaret, to John, Earl of Rothes.

Lady Martha, to John, Earl of Kinghorn.

Lady Catharine, to John, Earl of Haddingtoun.

JOHN, third Earl of Mar, was made one of the Knights of the Bath, at the creation of Henry, Prince of Wales, on the 30th of May, 1610, and thereafter, July 20th, 1615, he was sworn of his Majesty's most honourable Privy-council, and named one of the Senators of the College of Justice: which station he prudently and faithfully discharged till, 1626, his Lordship was removed upon a general statute, that no Peer could be an Ordinary Lord of the Session. Whether it was this, or any other act of unkindness he met with from the court, I cannot say, but it is certain, upon the first appearance of the troubles in 1638, his Lordship being then Governor of Edinburgh castle, his Majesty did not seem to be absolutely satisfied of the affection of the Earl to his service, and therefore removed him from that command, and put the castle into the hands of Major-general Ruthven, as a person on whom he could firmly rely, and yet his Majesty was willing that his Lordship's remove might not be attended with any act of disobligation, and therefore gave him 3000*l.* which the Marquis of Hamilton gave security for. When the civil war broke out, he applied himself with great resolution and fidelity to the King's service, and therefore was reckoned among the first rank of Malignants, and suffered accordingly.

He married Jean, daughter of Francis, Earl of Errol, by whom he had John, his successor in the honour, and a daughter, Elizabeth, married to Archibald, Lord Napier; and departing this life in 1654, was succeeded by JOHN, his son, fourth Earl of Mar, who, during the whole course of the civil war, most eminently signalized his loyalty to King Charles I. He was one of the Peers who joined the Marquis of Montrose at the battle of Philiphaugh; after which, he had the General's leave to capitulate, which he did upon no other terms, than laying down his arms, and living quietly at his own house, retaining always his affection and fidelity to the crown, to his dying day.

He married, first, Mary, daughter of Walter, Earl of Buccleugh; and again, Mary, daughter of George, Earl of Seathorn. By her he had Charles, his son and heir, likewise three daughters.

Barbara, married to James, Marquis of Douglas.

Mary, to John, Earl of Glencairn.

Sophia, to Alexander, Lord Pittligo.

CHARLES, fifth Earl of Mar, his son, was one of the Lords of the Privy-council to King Charles II. and King James VII. During whose reign he was Colonel of a regiment of foot. He died in the flower of his age, April 23d, 1689, leaving issue by Mary his wife, daughter of George, Earl of Panmure,

First, John, his son and heir, a man of extraordinary abilities.

Second, James Erskine, of Grange, who was by the special favour of her Majesty Queen Anne, promoted to be one of the Senators of the College of Justice, in 1706, and thereafter made Justice Clerk.

Third, Colonel Henry Erskine, who was killed at the battle of Almanza, in Spain, anno 1707, to the great grief of his noble relations.

Fourth, Jean, married to Sir Hugh Paterson, of Bannockburn, Bart.

JOHN, sixth Earl of Mar, being the heir of a noble and illustrious family, as soon as he came to age, her Majesty Queen Anne took him into her immediate care, made him first a Privy-counsellor, gave him the command of a regiment of foot, and made him a knight of the order of St. Andrew, in the beginning of her reign.

In 1705, her Majesty promoted him to be Secretary of State in the room of the Marquis of Annandale; and the next ensuing year, his Lordship was named one of the Commissioners to treat of an union betwixt the two nations; which being agreed to by the respective parliaments of both kingdoms, his Lordship, throughout the whole affair, merited so well of the court, that he had a pension settled on him as an equivalent for his Secretary's place; which was then suppressed, and consolidated into the Secretary-office of Great Britain.

In 1708, the Queen named his Lordship of her most honourable Privy-council, and striking in with the Earl of Oxford, on the change of the ministry, he was in 1713, preferred to be Third Secretary of Great Britain, which had been vacant from the death of the Duke of Queensberry; in which eminent station his Lordship continued till after the death of his mistress, the Queen. Upon the arrival of King George in Britain, his Majesty was pleased to acquaint the Earl a few days thereafter, that he had no longer occasion for his service in the quality of Secretary of State; to which his Grace the Duke of Montrose was preferred on the 24th of September, 1714. Disgusted at this treatment, he retired to his estate in Scotland, where unhappily for his country, he raised a rebellion, and proclaimed the Pretender, at Kirk-Michael, in Perthshire, September 11th, 1715; but having made an attempt on the King's troops at Perth, in which his horse was shot under him, he made his escape beyond seas, and in 1716, was attainted of high treason. He followed the Pretender to Rome, and remained in his service till 1721. He then removed to Paris, where he remained till 1729; and thence retired to Aix-la-Chapelle for his health, where he died in May 1732.

He married, first, Margaret, daughter of Thomas, Earl of Kinnoul,<sup>c</sup> by whom he had only two sons;

Second, Thomas, Lord Erskine.

Secondly, Frances Pierpont,<sup>d</sup> daughter of Evelyn, Duke of Kingston, by whom he had one daughter, Lady Frances Erskine, on whom King George I. settled the same fortune as she would have been entitled to under her mother's settlement. She married Mr. James Erskine, son of her uncle, Mr. Erskine, of Grange, by whom she had two sons; John Francis, and James Francis, both officers in the British service.

THOMAS, Lord Erskine, enjoyed his father's forfeited estates, which were conveyed in 1739 by his uncle, Mr. Erskine, of Grange, who bought them of the Commissioners for the benefit of the nephew.

He married Lady Charlotte Hope, daughter of Charles, Earl of Hopetoun, and was living 1764.

We now return to JAMES Erskine, eldest son of the second marriage of John, second Earl of Mar, Lord High Treasurer of Scotland, and Knight of the most noble Order of the Garter, by the Lady Mary Stewart, second daughter of Esme, Duke of Lennox. He married MARY DOUGLAS, Countess of Buchan: upon which marriage,* the right of succession to the Earldom of Buchan (which before had been to the heirs whatsoever), was by a charter under the Great Seal, proceeding upon a resignation, limited to the said Mary, Countess of Buchan, and the said James her husband, and the heirs male of the said marriage, which failing, to the said James's nearest lawful heirs male whatsoever.

Which JAMES, Earl of Buchan, being a person of great merits and accomplishments, and much in the favour of King Charles I. (to whom he was a Gentleman of his Bed-chamber), lived most of his time in England, where he had issue by his said wife, James, his eldest son and heir, and John, who died unmarried; as also two daughters.

Mary, married to Alexander, Lord Pitsligo, and had issue; and Margaret, married to Sir James Graham, son to the Earl of Monteith.

* Sir James Stewart, second son of Sir James Stewart, called the Black Knight of Lorn (son of John Stewart of Innermeath, son of Robert of Shanborthy, son of Sir James Stewart, fourth son of Sir John Stewart, of Bonkyll, younger brother of James, seventh Lord High Steward of Scotland, who was grandfather of King Robert II.), was raised to the dignity of the Peerage, by the title of Earl of Buchan, Lord Auchterhouse, &c. 1469: he died before 1499. His son, Alexander, second Earl, died before 1505, and was succeeded by his son, John, third Earl, who was one of the Privy-council to King James V. with whom he was in great favour. His son, John, Master of Buchan, died before him, being killed in the battle of Pinkie, 1547, and the Earl himself dying 1551, his honours devolved on his granddaughter and heir, Christian, Countess of Buchan.

This Christian married Robert, second son of Sir Robert Douglas, of Lochleven, brother of William, Earl of Morton, and he became in her right fourth Earl of Buchan. They were succeeded by their son, James Douglas, fifth Earl, who was served heir to his father, in 1583, and died August 24th, 1601. He left an only child, Mary Douglas, Countess of Buchan, so designed, in 1606.

She married James Erskine, eldest son of the second marriage of John, Earl of Mar, as above said.

After the death of whom, he married, secondly, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Philip Knevit, of Buckenham Castle, in the county of Norfolk, Bart. by whom he had issue, Dorothy, married in England to — Walker, in the county of Middlesex, Esq. and several other children, who died young.

To whom succeeded JAMES, second Earl of Buchan, his eldest son and heir, who by his wife Mary, daughter of William, Earl of Dalhousie, had issue one son, William, who succeeded him, and five daughters; Marjory, the eldest, married, first, to — Fraser, of Inderalachie, Esq. and, secondly, to Charles, Lord Fraser; Anne, the second, to James Canaries, D. D. Henriette, the third, to Thomas Forbes, of Tolquhoun, Esq. and Jean, the fourth, to George Gray, of Hackerton, Esq.

Which WILLIAM, third Earl of Buchan, having joined himself at the Revolution, in 1688, to those who took up arms in Scotland against the late King William, brought himself thereby into much trouble: for being soon after taken by that King's troops, he was committed prisoner to the castle of Stirling, where, though by the intercession of his friends his prison was at last much enlarged, he continued to his death, which happened anno 1695, without leaving any issue, having never been married.

To whom succeeded DAVID, Lord Cardross, his nearest heir male, being great grandson and heir to Henry, the first Lord Cardross, who was brother to James, Earl of Buchan, grandfather to the said William last deceased.

The honour and title of Lord Cardross, had its beginning in anno 1604, when James VI. of Scotland, and I. of Great Britain, by his charter under the Great Seal, bearing date on March 27th in the said year, erected the said Lordship in favour of John, Earl of Mar, Lord Treasurer of Scotland, and Knight of the most noble Order of the Garter, his heirs and assigns; in pursuance whereof, the said Earl, in anno 1615, assigned and disposed the same, and whole rights thereto belonging, to Henry Erskine, his second son, by the Lady Mary Steuart, his second wife, daughter of Esme, Duke of Lennox, a Lady near in blood to his said Majesty; who, as a further mark of his royal favour, was also pleased to bestow on the said Henry, the abbey of Dryburgh, in Teviotdale, formerly a seat of monks of the order of Promontre; the said abbey, with the lands and tythes thereto belonging, being, by a special act of parliament for that purpose, dissolved from the crown.

Which HENRY, first Lord Cardross, married Margaret, only daughter of Sir James Ballanden, of Broughtoun, and sister of William, first Lord Ballanden, by whom he had David, his only son and heir, and one daughter, Mary, who was married to Sir John Buchanan of that Ilk, in the county of Stirling, and had issue; and dying anno 1636, was succeeded by DAVID, second Lord Cardross, his only son, who, anno 1645, married Anne, daughter of Sir Thomas Hope, of Craighall, Lord Advocate, great grandfather to the present Earl of Hopeton, by whom he had issue,

Henry, who succeeded him, and a daughter, Margaret, married to William Cunningham, of Boquhan, in the county of Stirling, mother, by him, of Henry Cunningham, of Boquhan, Junior, representative of the burgh of Stirling, and district thereof, in the parliament anno 1712.

His Lordship married, secondly (anno 1655), Mary, second daughter of George Bruce, of Carnock, and sister of Edward and Alexander, both Earls of Kincardin, by whom he had issue four sons, and three daughters.

Alexander, the eldest son, died young.

William, the second, Deputy Governor of Blackness castle, a person of great integrity and honour, married Magdalen, daughter of Sir James Lumsden, of Innergelly, in the shire of Fife, and had issue by her, William, his eldest son and heir, and James.

John, the third, who, upon all occasions, appeared with great zeal in the cause of religion and liberty, and thereby acquired an universal esteem, retired into Holland some years before the Revolution, in 1688, when he accompanied the Prince of Orange in his expedition into England, a little before which, he had a company of foot bestowed upon him in Holland; and soon after, upon that Prince's accession to the throne, was made Lieutenant Governor of Stirling castle, and afterwards Governor of Dumbarton, and a Lieutenant-colonel of foot. In 1695, he was chosen a Director of the Company of Scotland trading to Africa and the Indies, and by them sent, with others, in 1696, into Holland, and other foreign parts, to manage the affairs of that company. In pursuance whereof, such progress was made at Hamburgh, and encouragement given from other parts, as had, in all appearance, been attended with the desired success, had it not been for things very unexpected and surprising, and too well known to need mentioning. He married, first, Jean, daughter and heir of William Muir, of Caldwell, in the shire of Renfrew; but she dying soon after, without issue, he married, secondly, Anne, eldest daughter and coheir of William Dundass, of Kincavill, in the county of Linlithgow, Advocate, by whom he had John, his eldest son and heir, and several other sons; also one daughter, Mary, yet unmarried.

Charles, the fourth son, being a Captain of foot in the Low Countries, in the service of the late King William, was killed there, at the battle of Stenkirk, the 24th of July, 1692.

Veronica, his eldest daughter, married to Walter Lockhart, of Kirtoun, in the county of Lanerk, and had issue.

Magdalen, the second, to Alexander Monypenny, of Pitmilly, in the shire of Fife, and had issue.

And, Mary, the third, died young.

To which David, Lord Cardross, succeeded, anno 1671,

HENRY, his eldest son and heir, third Lord Cardross, who, being a person of universally acknowledged merit, and, upon all occasions, a strenuous asserter of the rights and liberties of his country, met with many hardships in the late reigns, with which having struggled long, with great firmness and constancy, he at last withdrew into Holland, where he was kindly received by the Prince of Orange, afterwards King of Great Britain, whom he accompanied in his expedition into England, in 1688. And upon that Prince's accession to the throne (of which he was a zealous promoter) had several marks of his favour bestowed upon him, being soon after made a Privy Counsellor, General of the Mint, and Colonel of a regiment of dragoons. He was, at the same time, appointed by parliament one of the Commissioners for treating of an Union with England. Upon all which occasions he behaved himself so as to maintain the character he had all along had, of a person of untainted integrity and honour.

He died at Edinburgh the 21st of May, 1693, and forty-fourth year of his age, having, in 1671, married Katharine, second daughter, and at length sole heir, of Sir James Steuart, of Strabrock, in the county of West Lothian; by which Katharine he had issue,

First, David, who succeeded him, and was afterwards Earl of Buchan.

Second, Charles Erskine, Advocate.

Third, William, Deputy-governor of Blackness castle, who married Margaret, daughter of Lieutenant-colonel John Erskine, Deputy-governor of Stirling castle, and had issue by her, one son, John, and a daughter, Jean.

Fourth, Thomas, and five more; who all died young.

Also three daughters;

Katharine, the eldest, married to Sir William Denham, of Westshields, in the county of Lanerk, Baronet, but had no issue by him; secondly, to Daniel Campbell, of Shawfield.

Mary, the second, married James Nimmo, Esq.

And Anne, the third, married to Archibald Edmonston, of Duntreth, in vice comitatu de Stirling.

DAVID, fourth Lord Cardross, his eldest son and heir, succeeded, and upon the death of William, Earl of Buchan, anno 1695, without issue, became also fourth Earl of Buchan.

This David, fourth Earl of Buchan, in anno 1697, married Frances, eldest daughter, and since sole heir of Henry Fairfax, of Hurst, in the county of Berks, Esq. only son and heir of Henry Fairfax, Esq. second son of Thomas, Viscount Fairfax: by the which Frances, Countess of Buchan, the said Earl had nine sons;

First, Henry David, Lord Auchterhouse, born in September 1699, who died very young.

Second, David, Lord Auchterhouse, born in April 1703, who died an infant.

Third, Henry David, Lord Cardross and Auchterhouse, born 17th April, 1710.

Fourth, Fairfax, born February 8th, 1712.

Fifth, George Lewis, on January 30th, 1714, born deaf and dumb. And, Sixth, George Augustus, on December 27th, 1715, who died very young, and three more, who died soon after they were born.

Also seven daughters;

Lady Katharine Anna, married to William Fraser, of Fraserfield, son of Alexander, Lord Saltoun.

Lady Frances, married to the celebrated Colonel Gardner, for whom, see Doddridge's Life of that pious man.

Lady Alethea, and Lady Willelmina Carolina, who both died infants; and three others, who died soon after they were born.

His Lordship was one of the Council of Trade appointed by parliament in anno 1705, when by an act passed in England, the importation of Scots linen cloth and cattle into that kingdom was prohibited, and matters seemed to run high betwixt the two kingdoms, in which commission his Lordship behaved himself so as to gain universal esteem, as he did upon all other occasions, when employed in the public service, wherein he always eminently distinguished himself by his unshaken zeal and constant appearance for the honour and interest of his country, as well during the reign of King William, in which he was a Privy Counsellor from the year 1697, till the death of that Prince, as during that of her Majesty Queen Anne, by whom he was also constituted of the Privy-council; as also one of the Commissioners of the Exchequer, and Governor of Blackness castle; in all which he continued till after the conclusion of the treaty of Union, anno 1707, which he opposed in parliament to the very last, being of opinion, as his Lordship then declared, that several of the articles agreed upon were inconsistent with the honour of his country, especially of the Peerage, against which he therefore entered his protest, and was soon after removed from all public trust.

But on the accession of his Majesty King George to the crown, for the security of whose succession his Lordship had on all occasions exerted himself with the utmost zeal, he had again several marks of favour bestowed on him; having been appointed one of the Lords Commissioners of Police, and Lord Lieutenant of the shires of Stirling and Clackmannan, as he was also, to the general satisfaction, elected one of the Sixteen Peers for Scotland to the first parliament of Great Britain called after his Majesty's arrival in this kingdom. He was also elected one of the Sixteen Peers 1722, 1727.

Dying in London, October 15th, 1745, he was succeeded by his son,

HENRY DAVID, fifth Earl of Buchan, who died December 1st, 1767, having married Agnes, daughter of Sir James Stewart, of Goodtrees, Bart. and by her, who died December 11th, 1778, had issue,

First, DAVID STEWART, sixth and present Earl of Buchan.

His Lordship commenced his political career under the patronage of the late Earl of Chatham, while Lord Cardross, in the diplomatic department. But he has passed the larger portion of his time in literary retirement, cultivating the Muses, and occasionally laying before the public the fruits of his acquirements. More than twenty-five years ago he published a pamphlet on the state of the Scotch Peerage; and has since given the Lives of Fletcher of Saltoun, and others: and frequently been a correspondent of the various periodical works of the day.

He married, October 15th, 1771, Margaret, daughter of William Fraser, of Fraserfield, Esq. nephew to the late Earl of Buchan, but has no issue.

Second, Henry, a man celebrated at the Scotch Bar, who, in 1783, was appointed Lord Advocate of Scotland, which he retained only till the commencement of the following year; but to which he was again appointed in 1806; but held it as short a time. In March 1806, he was returned M. P. for the boroughs of Haddington, &c. and at the general election the same year, for the borough of Dumfries, &c. and again for the same in 1807. He married Christiana, daughter of George Fullarton, Esq. and by her, who died in May 1804, has issue, first, Henry. Second, George. Third, Elizabeth Crumpton, who married in September 1801, Colonel Callender. Fourth, Henrietta.

Fourth, Lady Anne-Agnes, who died October 5th, 1804:

Fifth, Lady Isabella, married, January 21st, 1770, William Leslie Hamilton, Esq. who died October 1780, Attorney-general of the Leeward Islands, without issue; and married, secondly, April 23d, 1785, the Hon. and Rev. John, the last Earl of Glencairn, who died September 24th, 1796, without issue.

THOMAS, third son, now LORD ERSKINE, a man, whose splendid career at the English Bar is familiar to the nation, originally embraced the military profession; but left it young, for a sphere for which his brilliant talents were adapted; and retiring to Cambridge, and studying there for a short time, went from thence to Lincoln's Inn, qualified himself for an advocate in the Court of King's Bench; and being admitted to the Bar in 1778, immediately distinguished himself by his oratory, at the trial of Admiral Keppel, whence he rose almost instantly into full practice, and led the Bar, in all appeals to juries, for nearly five and twenty years.

It is impossible to describe the grace, beauty, and copiousness, of his eloquence; it was totally unlike any thing in the same sphere, either at the time, before, or since. The silver tones of his voice, the lightning of his eye; the incessant blaze of his imagery; his touching appeals to the heart; and his profuse command of language, overwhelmed every feeling and cultivated mind with delight and astonishment.

Nor was his judgment less correct, than his talents were brilliant. I have heard those who are best capable of forming an opinion say, that his prudence and sagacity as an advocate, were as decisive as his speeches were splendid. He could discriminate with as much labour and niceness, as he could illumine by the stores of his inexhaustible fancy. His inclination, no doubt, led him to give the excursive powers of his mind full play; but he had the ability of the most minute discernment and profound investigation, whenever the occasion required it. In short, he is a man formed in the prodigality of nature; and, to whomsoever honours be grudged, they cannot be said to have been unjustly won by Lord Erskine.

On February 8th, 1806, he was appointed LORD HIGH CHANCELLOR OF ENGLAND, and created LORD ERSKINE, of Restormel Castle, in Cornwall.

He resigned the chancellorship in the following year, when Lord Eldon was re-appointed.

His Lordship married, March 29th, 1770 (being then an officer of the first regiment of foot), Frances, daughter of Daniel Moore, Esq. M. P. for Great Marlow (who died December 26th, 1805), and by whom he had issue,

First, Frances, who married, January 20th, 1802, to the Rev. Dr. Holland, Rector of Poynings, in Sussex, and of Beaudesert, in Warwickshire; and has issue, first, Thomas Agar. Second, Erskine-William. Third, Frances-Elizabeth.

Second, Elizabeth, who was married, November 17th, 1798, to her cousin, Captain David Erkin, of the 31st regiment, and died August 2d, 1800, without issue.

Third, David Montague, who married January 1800, Fanny, daughter of General Cadwallader, of Philadelphia, in North America, and has issue, first, Fanny. Second, Thomas. Third, John. He is a Barrister at Law, and Commissioner of Bankrupts; was elected M. P. for Portsmouth, 1806; and appointed Envoy Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary to the United States of America the same year.

Fourth, Margaret.

Sixth, Henry David.

Seventh, Thomas.

Eighth, Esme-Stewart, in the army.

Whilst a Commoner, his Lordship represented Portsmouth in parliaments 1783, 1790, 1796, 1802.

Titles. Thomas Erskine, Lord Erskine, of Restormel Castle, in Cornwall.

Motto. TRIAL BY JURY.

BROWNE, LORD MOUNTEAGLE.

[Marquis of Sligo, in Ireland.]

THIS noble Lord is said to derive his descent from Sir Anthony, the first Viscount Montague of England, who was seated at Cowdray-castle, in the county of Sussex, and of whose family a younger branch,

RICHARD, is reported to have come<sup>a</sup> into Ireland at the head of an independent company in the service of Queen Elizabeth.<sup>b</sup>

On the division of Conaught into counties by Sir Henry Sydney, L.D. in 1565,<sup>c</sup> CAPTAIN BROWNE fixed his residence at the Neale, in the county of Mayo, of which county he was appointed the first high sheriff; and having strenuously endeavoured whilst in office to inculcate civility, industry, and obedience to the laws, he lost his life by the hands of the then uncultivated natives.<sup>d</sup> He was succeeded by his son

JOSIAS, who was living in 1636, and was then denominated of the Neale, in the county of Mayo, where he was succeeded by his eldest son

Sir JOHN, created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, by Sir William Alexander, Earl of Sterling, in Scotland, 17th June, 1636.<sup>e</sup> In June 30th, 1722, he married, first, Margaret, one of the three daughters and coheirs of Henry Dodwell, of Athlone, in the county of Roscommon, Esq. ## MONTGOMERY, LORD ARDROSSAN.

[Earl of Eglintoun, in Scotland.]

EGLINTOUN is the name of a lordship and castle in Airshire, from whence its owner took a denomination, tempore regis Malcolm. Bryce de Eglintoun, son and heir of Eglun, Lord of Eglintoun, acquired certain lands from the community of the village of Irvine, quas Radulphus filius & hæres quondam Hugonis de Eglintoun, dedit Communitati & Burgensibus dicte villæ datum in vigilia sancti Matthei, anno gratiæ millesimo ducentesimo quinto,<sup>a</sup> from whom in a continued series descended

Sir HUGH EGLINTON, of that Ilk, who was Justiciary of Lothian, anno 1361.<sup>b</sup> He married Giles, daughter of Walter, Lord High Stewart of Scotland, sister to King Robert II. upon whose advancement to the throne, he obtained diverse grants of lands, and several employments, but leaving no male issue, his estate went to his daughter and heir, married to Sir John de Montgomery, of Eaglesham, Knt. whose ancestor

ROGER DE MONTGOMERY, son to Hugh de Montgomery, a noble Knight of French extraction, nearly allied to William, Duke of Normandy, was one of those nobles who accompanied this victorious Duke into England, and commanded the body of his army in the memorable battle of Hastings, in Sussex, anno 1066, where King Harold was slain, and the victory and crown of England accrued to the Conqueror, for which signal service King William bestowed on him very large gifts, and both gave him the territory and honour of Earl of Arundel, with the Earldom of Salisbury.<sup>c</sup> Being also a person of singular devotion, he founded, and most amply endowed the abbey of St. Peters, at Salisbury, where he at length took upon him the habit of a monk, and died 1094, leaving issue by Mable his wife, daughter of William de Talvaise, a great baron in Belesm, five sons; first, Hugh, died without issue. Second, Robert. Third, Roger. Fourth, Philip. And, Fifth, Arnulph.

Which ROBERT was knighted by the Conqueror the sixth of his reign, and always enjoyed his favour, but upon his death he adhered to Robert Curthose, against Henry I, and assisted him in the battle, where he was routed and taken prisoner. This exasperated King Henry so much, that he banished this Earl, and discountenanced his friends.

Then it is, and with much probability supposed, that PHILIP de Montgomery came for Scotland, and fixed his residence in the county of Tiviotdale, upon the Border, where he became a powerful man.

In the time of Malcolm IV. frequent mention is made of Robert de Mundegumery, i. e. Montgomery, who is one of the many witnesses to Walter, High Stewart of Scotland's foundation charter of the monastery of Paisly, anno Christi 1160.<sup>d</sup>

The next in order of succession taken notice of, if not his son, is ALLEN* de Mundegumbri, Knight, who held diverse lands in the tenement of Innerwick, of the Lord High Stewart of Scotland:<sup>e</sup> he is a witness to the charter of Robert Avenel, of his wood of Polwarth, to Arnold, Abbot of Kelso, anno 1221,<sup>f</sup> with whom he himself settles about the tithes of his lands of Innerwick, which had been in dispute between him and the convent; he left issue,

Sir JOHN* de Montgomery, Knt. his son, who shared the inheritance with William de Haukerstoun, which he obtained by Helen his wife, daughter and coheir of Robert de Kent, in Innerwick;<sup>g</sup> but more of this Sir John I have not discovered, saving, that jointly with the foresaid William, he was a benefactor to the Monks of Kelso for the health of his soul.<sup>h</sup> to the crown, both in the wars and otherways, this family became possessed of diverse fair lordships.

But omitting some traditions, I descend to Sir JOHN<sup>i</sup> Montgomery, of Eglesham, Knight, who married the daughter and heir of Sir Hugh Eglintoun, of that Ilk; which Sir John was in that expedition made against the English at the battle of Otterburn, anno 1388, where James, Earl of Douglas was slain. Here he behaved very valiantly, and took Henry Percy, son to the Earl of Northumberland, prisoner, and for his ransom obliged him to build the castle of Punoon, the chief messuage of the Lordship of Eglesham; he had issue three sons; Sir Hugh, Sir John, and Alexander.

First, Sir HUGH, a brave and gallant youth, lost his life in the service of his country, at the field of Otterburn, where his death is particularly remarked in this old heroic poem,

He had a bow bent in his hand,
Made of a trusty tree,
An arrow of a cloath-yard long
Into the head drew he.
Against Sir Hugh Montgomery,
So right his shaft he set,
The gray goose wing that was therein,
In his heart-blood was weet.

Sir JOHN, the second son, first Peer, succeeded to the estate; he was sent into England one of the hostages for the ransom of King James I. anno 1423;<sup>k</sup> and at the solemn inauguration of the said Prince, he was one of the Barons on whom the honour of knighthood was conferred in 1424, and one of the Peers who sat upon the trial of Murdo, Duke of Albany, where we find that unhappy Duke condemned to lose his head, though the records are wholly silent as to his crime. This Lord, who was raised to the Peerage in 1427, married Agnes, daughter to the Lord Maxwell, by whom he had,

ALEXANDER, his son and heir, second Peer, who indeed first raised the grandeur of the family, being a man of great parts. King James I. chose him a Privy Counsellor, and in 1430, constituted him jointly in commission with Sir Alexander Cuninghame, to be Governor of Kintyre and Knapdale; and the next ensuing year he was, with Alexander, Lord Gordon, and Mr. John Methven, Secretary of State, sent to England to treat of the continuing a peace betwixt the two realms, which was at length concluded by them, having survived the many difficulties and factions of King James I's reign. I find he was of the Privy-council to his son, King James II. anno 1440, from whom he obtained several beneficial grants from the crown, in consideration of his good and laudable services, not only performed to himself, but to his father of blessed memory. This Lord was twice sent Commissioner into England;<sup>k</sup> the first time in 1444, and the other in 1457. In both commissions he is designed, Alexander, Dominus Montgomery. He took to wife, Margaret, daughter of Thomas Boyd, of Kilmarnock,<sup>l</sup> by whom he had issue,

First, Alexander.

Second, George Montgomery, of Skelmurly, ancestor to the Montgomerys of Skelmorley, Baronets.

Third, Mr. Thomas Montgomery, the third son, was Parson of Egelsham.

He had likewise several daughters: first, Margaret, married to John, first Earl of Lennox. Second, Janet, to Sir Robert Cunningham, of Kilmaures, ancestor to the late Earls of Glencairn. Third, ———, to Alexander Hume, of that Ilk. Fourth, Jean, to John, Lord Kennedy. Fifth, Agnes, to William Cuningham, of Glengarnock.

The precise time of this Lord's death, which happened between 1451 and 1454, I have not found. He was succeeded in his estate and honour by ANDREW, eldest son, third Peer, Warden of the Marches 1457, who died before 1459. By Elisabeth his wife, daughter of Sir Patrick Hepburn, of Hales,<sup>n</sup> he had three sons; Alexander, Robert, and Hugh.

Alexander, the eldest, after his grandfather's death was Lord Montgomery. And,

Robert, the second son, first of the Montgomerys of Broadstone,<sup>o</sup> of whom, Hugh, Earl of Mount-Alexander, of the kingdom of Ireland, was the lineal heir.

ALEXANDER, succeeded as fourth Peer, and was Warden of the Marches July 25th, 1459. He died 1487, having married Catherine,<sup>p</sup> daughter of Gilbert, Lord Kennedy, by whom he had Hugh, his successor. Second, James Montgomery, of Smeithston. Third, John.

Which HUGH, first Earl, upon the accession of King James IV. to the crown, was named of his council, and in 1489, he obtained a grant of the Constabulary of his Majesty's castle of Rothesay,<sup>4</sup> the King ever treating him with particular marks of his favour, and at last was pleased to create him to the dignity of Earl of Eglintoun, anno 1503.<sup>5</sup> He married Helen, daughter of Colin, first Earl of Argyle, by whom he had three sons, and several daughters.

First, John, called Master of Eglintoun.

Second, Sir Neil Montgomery, of Lainshaw, who had a grant from his father of the lands of Lainshaw, Galowbery, Crevoch, Kilbryde, Milstonflet, Bradfurow, the temple land of Stewartoun, Holowchapple, Langanfee, Charlewraik, Longford, Crochdow, and Lochdernell, in Airshire;<sup>6</sup> the lands of Airdoch, and Nether-Craig, in Renfrewshire. Moreover, by marriage of Margaret, daughter and sole heir of Quintine Mure, of Skeldon, he considerably increased his fortune, his estate in all amounting to 100 merk land of old extent, and thereupon he added to his coat of arms Argent, three mullets Azure. He was killed in a feud by the Lord Boyd, in June 1547, having had two sons by the said Margaret his wife. First, John, who married Margaret, daughter of Robert, Lord Boyd, but died without succession. Second, Sir Neil, who succeeded him, whose descendants were the Montgomerys of Linshaw, and Lords Lyle, he marrying Jean, daughter and sole heir of John, last Lord Lyle.

The third son was William Montgomery, of Greenfield, who acquired the lands of Stane, in Airshire, by marriage of Elisabeth, daughter and sole heir of Robert Frances, of Stane.<sup>7</sup> This branch divided itself afterwards by means of Hugh, a younger son, who became the root of the Montgomerys of Auchinhood, and his cadets.

Margaret, first daughter, married to William, Lord Semple. Second, Marjory, to William, Lord Somervell. The third, Maud, to Colin Campbell, of Arkinglass, but had no issue. Fourth, Isabel, to John Mure, of Caldwell, in Vicecomitatu de Renfrew, and had issue. Fifth, Elisabeth, to John Blair, of that Ilk. Sixth, Agnes, to John Ker, of Kersland, in Vicecomitatu de Air, and had issue.

Here it is requisite to observe, that JOHN, son and heir apparent to this Earl, when the feuds run high betwixt the contending parties of the nobility in the minority of king James V. was killed in a scuffle between the Earls of Arran and Angus, on the street of Edinburgh, 30th of April, 1520,<sup>u</sup> leaving behind him a son and a daughter, by Elisabeth his wife, daughter of Sir Archibald Edmonston, of Duntreath;<sup>x</sup> viz.

Hugh, who succeeded his grandfather.

And Christian, wife of Sir William Douglas, of Drumlanrig, ancestor to the late Duke of Queensberry, who died in December 1810.

Which HUGH, second Earl of Eglinton, was of the Privy-council to King James V. as he had been before to John, Duke of Albany, Governor of Scotland in the said King's minority, and was one of the Lords to whom his Grace committed the tuition of that Prince, upon his going to France to concert measures with that court for carrying on a war with England, anno 1520:<sup>y</sup> yea, the said King had such an esteem of this Lord, that when he went to France in order to espouse Magdalen, daughter of Francis I. anno 1536, he appointed him one of the Governors of Scotland, the Earl of Huntly being joined in commission with him. His wife was Marion, daughter of George, Lord Seton, by whom he had only a son,

HUGH, third Earl, his successor in the honour, who, as soon as he came to man's estate, married the Lady Jean Hamilton, daughter of James, Duke of Chattelrault, Governor of Scotland, which marriage was dissolved in 1562, they standing in the fourth degree of consanguinity, the Pope's dispensation not being obtained;<sup>z</sup> and then by the permission of the Bishop of Rome, he is allowed to marry Agnes, daughter of Sir John Drummond, of Innerpeffrey, widow of Sir Hugh Campbel, of Lowdon: by her had four children:

First, Hugh, Earl of Eglintoun.

Second, Robert Montgomery, of Giffen, who married Margaret, daughter of Sir Matthew Campbel, of Lowdon, by whom he had one daughter, Elisabeth, his sole heir, married to Hugh, Earl of Eglintoun.

This Earl stuck close to Queen Mary in the time of her greatest distress: he put himself in arms in her behalf, and was personally engaged in the battle of Lang-side,<sup>a</sup> where he, together with the Lord Seton, and many Barons of account, were taken prisoners, after which he thought fit to tender his submission to King James VI. and lived peaceably till his death, which happened in the month of June 1585;<sup>b</sup> his estate devolving on

HUGH, his son, fourth Earl, who was barbarously murdered on the score of a private quarrel, by John Cuningham, of Colnebeith, and his adherents, the 12th day of April, 1589,<sup>c</sup> whereby his country was deprived of an honour and ornament, his Prince of a faithful and able subject, and his family of a singular advantage. Mr. John Johnston wrote the following epitaph in praise of him:

He married Elisabeth, daughter of Robert Montgomery, of Giffen, but dying without issue in 1612,<sup>e</sup> his estate, by virtue of an entail made by him, came to

Sir ALEXANDER SETON, his cousin german, sixth Earl, who changed his name to Montgomery, but he could not enjoy the title of Earl, without the King's special allowance; which, soon after, his Majesty was pleased to bestow upon him, for the great merit of his ancestors, with the dignity and precedency formerly enjoyed by Hugh, Earl of Eglintoun, last deceased.

This Earl was among the number of those Peers who engaged themselves against the King, anno 1638, upon the first commencing of our bloody civil war: he had the command of a regiment in the army that was sent to Ireland, anno 1642, toward the suppressing the rebellion of the native Irish:<sup>f</sup> he was likewise personally engaged in the battle of Longmarstonmuir, anno 1643, in the service of the Parliament of England against the King, where he behaved with abundance of courage, yet his Lordship still retained a respect and affection to his Majesty's person, and no man more abominated the murder of the Lord's anointed than he.

He heartily concurred with, and was extremely satisfied with the restoration of King Charles II. by whom he was constituted Captain of his guard of horse,<sup>g</sup> anno 1650; and the next year, while he was raising forces in the Western parts for the King's service, he was surprised at Dunbarton by a party of English horse, and sent prisoner to the town of Hull, and afterward removed to Berwick upon Tweed, suffering likewise the sequestration of his estate till the restoration made restitution to him, anno 1660.

His first wife was Anne, daughter of Alexander, first Earl of Linlithgow, by whom he had Fifth, Robert, who in his youth making choice of a military life, went over to the wars in Ireland. Anno 1642, he was first made a Captain in his father's regiment, after which he listed himself in the service of the Parliament of England, where in time he arrived to the degree of a Major-general, and acquired the reputation of a man of courage, and a good officer: he firmly adhered to King Charles II. and in his Majesty's service he gave many signal proofs of his loyalty and valour on several occasions, especially at that memorable encounter at Dunbar, 3d of September, 1650, in which action he performed the part of a brave and valiant commander; likewise he commanded in the quality of Major-general of the horse in the royal army at Worcester, 3d of September, 1651, where he received diverse wounds, and had the misfortune to be taken prisoner, whence making his escape out of the castle of Edinburgh in disguise, anno 1659,<sup>b</sup> he got beyond sea to the King, and returned with his master, anno 1660, being one of the Gentlemen of his Majesty's Bed Chamber. He married Margaret, daughter of James, Viscount of Kilsyth, by whom he had James Montgomery, Esq. his son and heir.

His Lordship had likewise two daughters; first, Margaret, married to John, first Earl of Tweeddale; after his death, to William, Earl of Glencairn.

The second, Anne, died unmarried.

He married to his second wife Margaret, daughter of Walter, Lord Bucleugh, widow of James, Lord Ross, but by her he had no succession.

And arriving to the seventy-third year of his age, he departed this life the 7th of January, 1661, his estate and honour devolving on

HUGH, his son, seventh Earl, who was a man of perfect loyalty in the time of our civil troubles, as appears in all the accounts of those times, particularly by the Memoirs of the Bishop of Dunkeld, his cotemporary. In 1643, he raised a troop of horse, with which he marched in person, and fought valiantly at Longmarstonmuir, and several other battles and skirmishes, and continuing to adhere faithfully to the royal cause, he was therefore excepted out of Cromwell's indemnity, in 1654.<sup>i</sup>

By Anne, his first wife, daughter of James, Marquis of Hamilton, he had one daughter, Lady Anne, married to James Earl of Findlater.

Also by Mary, his second wife, daughter of John, Earl of Rothes, he had

First, Alexander, his successor.

Second, Francis Montgomery, of Giffen, who was one of the Lords of the Privy-council, and one of the Commissioners of the Treasury in the reign of King William and Queen Anne. He was appointed one of the Commissioners upon the part of Scotland to treat upon a nearer union with England in 1706, which was at that time completed. He had no issue by Margaret, his first wife, daughter and sole heir of Alexander, Earl of Leven; but by Elisabeth, daughter of Sir Robert Sinclair, of Lochermackhouse, in Viccomitatu de Haddingtoun, he had, first, John Montgomery, Esq. member of parliament for the county of Air. Second, Alexander one of the colonels in her Majesty's foot guards, who died a very hopeful youth of his death wounds at the battle of Almanza, in 1711; also Elisabeth, a daughter, married to Patrick Ogilvy, of Lonmay.

This Earl had moreover five daughters;

Third, Christian, to John, fourth Lord Balmerinoch.

Fifth, Anne, to Sir Andrew Ramsay, of Abbotshall, Bart.

He departing this life, anno 1669, was succeeded by ALEXANDER, his son and heir, eighth Earl, who was named one of the Lords of the Privy-council, 1st of May, 1689, and dying in the end of the year 1701, left issue by Elisabeth his wife, daughter of William, Earl of Dumfries.

First, Alexander, the next Earl.

Second, Major Hugh. And,

Third, Major John Montgomery. And,

Mary, married to Sir James Agnew, of Lochnaw, and had issue.

Which ALEXANDER, ninth Earl, was one of the Lords of the Privy-council to King William, and one of the Commissioners of the Treasury. In 1700, he had a patent to sit and vote in the parliament of Scotland, as Lord High Treasurer, all officers of state, though neither peers, nor elected as commissioners, having by the constitution a place in parliament, and the crown a right, when any one of the offices was vacant, to appoint one to represent in parliament the said office.

Upon the dissolution of the parliament in 1710, he was, on the 10th of November the same year, elected one of the Sixteen Peers of Scotland to the parliament of Great Britain; also to the parliament in 1713, also in 1711, his Lordship was appointed one of the Commissioners of the Chamberlain-court, which was then erected.

He died 1729, having married, first, Margaret, daughter of William, Lord Cochran, son and heir of William, Earl of Dundonald, by whom he had two sons;

First, Hugh. And, Second, Alexander; who both died in the year 1696.

Also four daughters, first, Catherine, married to James, Earl of Galloway, and had issue.

Second, Eupheme, to George Lockhart, of Carnwath, and had issue.

Third, Grace, to Robert, Earl of Carnwath, and had issue.

Fourth, Jean, to Sir Alexander Maxwel, of Monrieth, Bart. and had issue.

His second wife was Anne, daughter of George, Earl of Aberdeen, by whom he had a daughter, Lady Mary, married to Sir David Cunninghame, of Milncraig, and had issue.

His third marriage was with Susanna, daughter of Sir Archibald Kennedy, of Colzean, Bart. by whom he had seven daughters.

Lady Elisabeth, married to Sir John Cunninghame, of Caprington, Bart.

Lady Helen, married to the Hon. Francis Stewart, son of the Earl of Murray, and had issue.

Lady Susanna, married to John Renton, of Lamerton, Esq. and had issue

Lady Frances.

Lady Christian, married to James Murray, of Abercairny, Esq. and had issue.

Lady Grace, married to — Bayne, Esq.

The Earl was succeeded by his eldest son,

ALEXANDER, the tenth Earl, who was unfortunately shot on October 24th, 1769, by Mungo Campbell, from whom he was endeavouring to take a gun, with which the murderer was sporting in his Lordship's grounds.<sup>k</sup>

Dying unmarried, he was succeeded by his only brother,

ARCHIBALD, the eleventh Earl, who married, first, October 16th, 1770, Jane Ogilvie, daughter of George, eighteenth Earl of Crawford, who died in January 1778.

And, secondly, Frances, sister of Sir William Twysden, Bart. of Roydon Hall, in Kent, and had issue;

First, Mary, born March 5th, 1787, married, March 29th, 1803, Archibald, Lord Montgomery, son of the present Earl of Eglington.

Second, Jane, born May 20th, 1788, and died November 16th, 1805.

The Earl was a General in the army, and Colonel of the 51st regiment of foot, and was frequently returned one of the Sixteen Peers.

His Lordship deceasing in 1796, without issue male, the honours and the ancient estate of Eglington devolved upon the descendants of the abovenamed

Colonel JAMES Montgomery, of Coilsfield, who married, first, Jane, daughter of William Primrose, of Carrington, Esq. and by her had two daughters; and, secondly, Catharine Arbuckle, widow of John Baillie, Esq. of the Abbey, and had issue, a son, ALEXANDER, of Coilsfield, who married Lillas, daughter and heir of Sir Robert Montgomery, of Skelmorlie, and had issue by this marriage, his eldest son, HUGH Montgomery, the present and twelfth Earl, and FIRST LORD ARDROSSAN; by which last title his Lordship was advanced to the British Peerage, February 1st, 1806.

His Lordship married his cousin, Eleanora Hamilton, daughter of John Hamilton, Esq. of Bowertree-hill, in the county of Ayr, and has issue two sons and two daughters, viz.

First, Archibald, Lord Montgomery, a Major-general in the army, married, March 29th, 1803, Lady Mary Montgomery, eldest daughter of Archibald, the eleventh Earl of Eglington.

MAITLAND, LORD LAUDERDALE.

[Earl of Lauderdale, in Scotland.]

It appears from sundry ancient deeds and evidences, that the MAITLANDS were very early possessors of the barony of Thirlestane, in Hadingtounshire; for I find that Dominus RICARDUS DE MAUTLANT gave to the Monks of Dryburgh terras suas de Haubentside in territorio suo de Thirlestane pro salute animæ suæ & sponsæ suæ antecessorum & successorum suorum in perpetuum.<sup>a</sup> Likewise he gave in pure alms to the said convent, Omnes terras quas Walterus de Giling tenuit in feodo suo de Thirlestane & pastura in communi de Thirlestane ad quadraginta oves sexaginta vaccas & ad viginti equos.

To Sir Richard succeeded

WILLIAM de Mautlant, his son, in the barony of Thirlestane, who ratified and confirmed to the monastery of Dryburgh, omnes terras quas Dominus Ricardus de Mautlant pater suus fecit dictis Monachis in territorio de Thirlestane.<sup>b</sup>

The next of this noble family I have found, is THOMAS de Thirlestane, who gave in free alms to the religious of Dryburgh, Decimas Molendini sui de Thirlestane,<sup>c</sup> pro salute animæ suæ; and to the Abbot of Kelso he grants a wadset of diverse lands within the territory of Thirlestane,<sup>d</sup> for a certain feu duty to be paid to him by the convent for ever.

Sir ROBERT Maitland, successor to the former, obtained a grant of the lands of Lethingtoun, from Sir John Giffard, Knt.

He married Agnes Dunbar, daughter to Patrick, Earl of March,<sup>f</sup> by whom he had

ROBERT Maitland, of Thirlestane, his son and heir, who had the charge of the castle of Dunbar, from his uncle, George, Earl of March, when he went to England in discontent, conceiving himself affronted by King Robert III. when he espoused David his son, the Prince, to the Earl of Douglas's daughter, after he had been affianced to Elizabeth Dunbar, March's daughter; and when the Earl of March was forfeited, Thirlestane, his nephew, run the same fate,<sup>g</sup> but was again restored by the King's bounty. He took to wife Marion, daughter of James Scrimgeor, of Dudop, Constable of Dundee,<sup>h</sup> and left a son,

WILLIAM, to succeed him in his fortune, who obtained from Archibald, Duke of Tourain and Earl of Douglas, a grant to himself, and Margaret Wardlaw his wife, of the lands of Blyth, Hedderwick, Tullus, and Burneleugh, on the 23d January, 1432.<sup>i</sup> He was succeeded by his son, tember, 1513, leaving issue by his wife aforesaid, Sir Richard, who succeeded his grandfather, and a daughter, Janet, married to Hugh, Lord Somervell.

Which Sir RICHARD was served heir to his father, William, on the 15th October, 1513. This noble person, who first raised the grandeur of his family, being a man of parts and literature, was made one of the Senators of the College of Justice, the 12th November, 1561<sup>1</sup> (though he had the misfortune to be blind), in place of Sir William Hamilton, of Sanquhar; and on the 20th of December, 1562, was constituted Lord Privy Seal,<sup>m</sup> then void by the demise of Donald, Abbot of Cowper, which office he held till, 1567, he resigned and gave up the signet, whereupon Mr. John Maitland, his second son, was invested in that office. Sir Richard continued a Lord of the Session during all the turbulent times of the regents in the minority of King James VI. till the year 1584.

“ He is celebrated as a man of learning, talents, and virtue. His compositions breathe the genuine spirit of piety and benevolence. The cheerfulness of his natural disposition, and his affiance in divine faith, seem to have supported him with singular equanimity under the pressure of blindness and old age. Knox has charged him with consenting, for the sake of a bribe, to the escape of Cardinal Beaton, who for some time had been confined at Seaton. But the accusation appears to be without foundation; for we learn from Sir Ralph Sadler's Letters, that the Cardinal was released by order of Arran, the Regent; who afterwards charged Lord Seaton with having liberated him from motives of venality. Contemporary poets have extolled Maitland as a man adorned by every virtue. His poem on The Creation, and Paradyce Lost, was printed in Allan Ramsay's Ever-Green. A considerable number of his productions are to be found in the valuable collection of Pinkerton.<sup>n</sup> He seems to have commenced his poetical career at a period of life, when that of other writers has more generally closed. It is supposed, that before he began to cultivate poetry, he had nearly attained the sixtieth year of his age. In his works it would, therefore, be improper to expect the effervescence of a youthful imagination, or the perpetual scintillations of a lively fancy. They are not, however, incapable of exciting interest; they present us with the thoughts, serious and gay, of an amiable

He resigned his place to Sir Lewis Ballenden, and his last breath on the 1st of April, 1586,<sup>u</sup> aged ninety, leaving issue by Mary his wife, daughter of Thomas Cranston, of Corsby,<sup>q</sup> three sons;

First, Sir William.

But to return to Sir WILLIAM Maitland, of Lethingtoun, Sir Richard's eldest son; the first preferment I find he had was in 1558, when he was constituted Secretary of State to Queen Mary,<sup>a</sup> and one of her Majesty's Privy-council, 1561. When the civil war broke out, anno 1567, Lethingtoun's wisdom and reputation was such, that both parties courted him to be of their side; but he did not determine himself to any party at first, but did fall in with either of them as he thought they intended the honour and safety of the Queen, and the good of the country; and as he could not justify the Queen's actings, so he was a strenuous opposer of those methods that were taken against her by her own subjects at the court of England, as importing high contempt against their native princes, and highly derogatory to the honour of Scotland, in subjecting it and their Sovereign to the cognizance of a foreign court; but his warmest side was ever toward the Queen, in whose interest he appeared, by joining with Sir William Kirkaldy in keeping out the castle of Edinburgh against the young King, and the authority of the Regent, for which he was deprived of the Secretary's place, anno 1570.* This celebrated man makes a conspicuous figure during the turbulent reign of Queen Mary, in the pages of Robertson. In 1558, he was appointed Principal Secretary of State to the Queen. The elegant historian gives the following character of him: "Maitland had early applied to public business admirable natural talents, improved by an acquaintance with the liberal arts; and, at a time of life when his countrymen of the same quality were following the pleasures of the chase, or serving as adventurers in foreign armies, he was admitted into all the secrets of the cabinet, and put upon a level with persons of the most consummate experience in the management of affairs. He possessed, in an eminent degree, that intrepid spirit, which delights in pursuing bold designs, and was no less master of that political art and dexterity, which is necessary for carrying them on with success. But these qualities were deeply tinctured with the neighbouring vices; his address sometimes degenerated into cunning; his acuteness bordered upon excess of subtlety and refinement; his invention, ever fertile, suggested to him, on some occasions, chimerical systems of policy, little suitable to the genius of the age; and his enterprising spirit engaged him in projects vast and splendid, but beyond his utmost power to execute. All the contemporary writers, to whatever faction they belong, mention him with an admiration, which nothing could have excited but the greatest superiority of penetration and abilities." In 1573, he joined with Kirkaldy in keeping the castle of Edinburgh against the young King; but the garrison at last mutinied, and the castle was surrendered to Drury, to whom Kirkaldy and Maitland became prisoners. Morton insisted they should suffer the punishment due to their rebellion. He first confined them to separate prisons; and soon after, with Elizabeth's consent, condemned Kirkaldy and his brother to be hanged at the cross of Edinburgh. Maitland, who did not expect to be treated more favourably, prevented the ignominy of a public execution by a voluntary death, and "ended his days," says Melville, "after the old Roman fashion," 1573. Leaving issue, by Mary his wife, daughter of Malcolm, Lord Fleming, a son, James, who died without male issue, and a daughter, Mary, married to Robert, first Earl of Roxburgh.<sup>y</sup>

finally his heir male. Though originally in the interest of Queen Mary, who made him Lord Privy Seal, 1567, he was made a Senator of the College of Justice, after Morton's fall, and advanced to the office of Secretary of State, 1584.

In 1586, in defiance of the intrigues of his enemy, Captain James Stewart, he was appointed Lord High Chancellor; and, together with that dignity, enjoyed all the power and influence of a prime minister.

He was created a Peer by the title of Lord Maitland of Thirlestane, May 18th, 1590.

He was author of a poem preserved by Pinkerton, containing a Satire Aganis Sklanderous Toungis; and of several epigrams in the Delicice Poetarum Scotorum: he died in 1595. "This year," says Robertson, "the King lost Chancellor Maitland, an able minister, on whom he had long devolved the whole weight of public affairs. As James loved him while alive, he wrote, in honour of his memory, a copy of verses, which, when compared with the compositions of that age, are far from being inelegant."

He married Jean, only daughter of James, Lord Fleming, by Barbara his wife, daughter of James, Duke of Chatlerault. By her he had

And one daughter, Anne, married to Robert, Lord Seaton, son and heir apparent to George, first Earl of Winton.

This worthy Lord, who made his exit out of this world on the 3d of October, 1595, as has been said, was interred at the church of Hadingtoun, King James honouring him with this epitaph of his own composing:

Thou passenger that spies with gazing eyes,
 This trophie sad of Death's triumphant dart,
 Consider when this outward tomb thou sees,
 How rare a man leaves here his earthly part:
 His wisdom and his uprightness of heart,
 His piety, his practice of our state;
 His quick engine so verst in every art,
 As equally not all were in debate.
 Thus justly hath his death brought forth of late
 An heave grief in Prince and subjects all,
 That vertue, love, and vice do bear at hate,
 Though vitious men rejoices at his fall.

As for himself, most happy doth he die,
Though for his Prince it most unhappy be.

JOHN, second Lord Thirlestane, the Chancellor's son, was a nobleman of great honour and probity, and managed his affairs with that conduct and discretion, that he made considerable additions to his fortune.

He was much favoured by King James VI. who created him first Viscount of Lauderdale, and thereafter honoured him with the title of Earl of Lauderdale, by letters patent bearing date 24th of March, 1624.<sup>2</sup>

It seems that he had no state employment, save that he was some short time President of the Council, and one of the ordinary Lords of the Session, from which he was removed anno 1626.<sup>3</sup> I think it not foreign here to remark of this noble Lord, that he was so very well acquainted with his own affairs, that he made exact inventories of all his charters and writs, which was very happy for the family afterwards, for the charter chest being concealed under ground for preservation in the time of the civil war, the writs were so entirely defaced at the Restoration, that they were become illegible, but by reason of the character this Earl had of integrity, these very inventories were by order of parliament appointed to supply the place of the ancient records and evidences of the family, the clerk register signing every page of the book in which they were written.

This worthy Lord<sup>b</sup> departing this life in February 1645,<sup>c</sup> was interred at the church of Haddingtoun with his ancestors; and the learned Mr. Drummond, of Hawthornden, made this epitaph upon him:

Of those rare worthies who adorn'd our North,
And shin'd like constellations, thou alone
Remainedst last, great Maitland, charg'd with worth
Second in vertue's theatre to none,
But finding all eccentric in our times,
Religion into superstition turn'd,
Justice silenc'd, exiled, or inurn'd,
Truth, faith and charity reputed crimes,

By Isabel his wife, only daughter of Alexander, Earl of Dumfermling, Lord High Chancellor of Scotland, by Lillias his wife, daughter of Patrick, Lord Drummond, he had

First, John, Duke of Lauderdale.

Second, Robert, who married Margaret, daughter and sole heir of John Lundin of that Ilk, by whom he had one daughter, Sophia Lundin of that Ilk, married to John, Earl of Melfort.

Third, Charles, thereafter Earl of Lauderdale.

JOHN, second Earl, afterward Duke of Lauderdale, and Earl of Guilford, in the beginning of the civil war was among the most forward for the covenant, and prosecuted it for some time with the most eminent animosity.<sup>d</sup> He was much trusted by that party in the management of affairs both in church and state. When he was a very young man, his Lordship was sent one of the Commissioners from the church of Scotland to the Assembly of Divines at Westminster, anno 1643, for the framing a new model of government in the church. The next year he was appointed one of the Commissioners from the States of Scotland to treat with the King at Uxbridge;<sup>e</sup> but that treaty ending without the effect desired, he was again commissioned from the parliament to treat with his Majesty at Hampton Court in the year 1647,<sup>f</sup> the conclusion of which was the raising an army from Scotland toward the rescue of his Majesty.

As soon as the army was ready to march into England, his Lordship was sent over to Holland to require that the Prince of Wales might repair to the Scots army, which was agreed to in the treaty; but the misfortune that befel the army at Preston put a stop thereto, so that the Earl, after a few weeks stay at the Hague, bent his course homeward to employ his interest for serving the King; but before he came thither, he came to understand that the state of affairs was so much altered, that the engagement was declared unlawful, and to what penalties he himself and all others who were the promoters thereof were liable to; whereupon, without suffering his ship to go into any port, he returned again into Holland<sup>s</sup> to offer his service to the Prince, who by that time was become King by the murder of his father.

Here my Lord Lauderdale staid till after his Majesty's coming over to Scotland in 1650: his Lordship soon followed, though he was not admitted to come near the court, or so much as wait upon the King till the meeting of the parliament 1651, wherein all the different parties seemed to be united for his Majesty's service.<sup>b</sup>

His Lordship marched with the King into England. Upon the loss of the army at Worcester he was taken prisoner, and committed to the Tower, where he underwent a long and severe imprisonment for the space of nine years.

At length by the restoration of his Majesty, in 1660, he obtained his liberty, when his Lordship became the Prime Minister of State; and for the space of twenty years he disposed of all the offices and honours of the kingdom entirely without a rival.

He was first constituted sole Secretary of State anno 1661, President of the Council, one of the extraordinary Lords of the Session, first Commissioner of the Treasury, when the treasury was turned into commission, and one of the Gentlemen of his Majesty's Bed-chamber: also, in 1669, he was appointed High Commissioner to the parliament, and bore the same character in four succeeding sessions, and had the honour likewise to represent his Majesty's person in the Convention of Estates 1678: in all which important trusts deporting himself with great ability, his Majesty in testimony thereof, upon the 2d of May, 1672, raised him to the dignity of Duke of Lauderdale, and to the heirs male of his body;<sup>i</sup> also upon the 25th June, 26th of Charles II. his Grace was made a Peer of England, by the title of EARL OF GUILFORD,<sup>k</sup> and one of the Privy council in that kingdom; and last of all, as a further testimony of his Majesty's favour, he was elected one of the Knights Companions of the most noble Order of the Garter.

But notwithstanding all those high advancements in honour and preferments, together with the loud and uninterrupted favour of his Prince; upon a new turn of affairs at court toward the end King Charles's reign, his Grace was obliged to resign all his offices, except those that were to continue during his life, and he died under a cloud soon thereafter, on the 24th of August, 1682, and was interred in the vault of his family at Hadingtoun church, where you may read this inscription on a tablet of brass fixed on his coffin :

Natus 21 Maii M. DC. XVI. Leidintonæ. Obiit 24 Die Augusti, prope Fontes de Tunbridge, Anno humanæ Salutis M. DC. LXXXII. Ætatis 68.

“ The Earl of Lauderdale,” says Burnet, “ afterwards made Duke, had been for many years a zealous covenanter; but in the year 47 he turned to the King’s interests; and had continued a prisoner all the while after Worcester fight, where he was taken. He was kept for some years in the Tower of London, in Portland castle, and in other prisons, till he was set at liberty by those who called home the King. So he went over to Holland, and since he continued so long, and contrary to all men’s opinions, in so high a degree of favour and confidence, it may be expected that I should be a little copious in setting out his character, for I knew him very particularly. He made a very ill appearance; he was very big: his hair red, hanging oddly about him; his tongue was too big for his mouth, which made him bedew all that he talked to: and his whole manner was rough and boisterous, and very unfit for a court. He was very learned, not only in Latin, in which he was a master, but in Greek and Hebrew. He had read a great deal of divinity, and almost all the historians, ancient and modern: so that he had great materials. He had with these an extraordinary memory, and a copious but unpolished expression. He was a man, as the Duke of Buckingham called him to me, of a blundering understanding. He was haughty beyond expression, object to those he saw he must stoop to, but imperious to all others. He had a violence of passion that carried him often to fits like madness, in which he had no temper. If he took a thing wrong, it was a vain thing to study to convince him: that would rather provoke him to swear, he would never be of another mind: he was to be let alone: and perhaps he would have forgot what he had said, and come about of his own accord. He was the coldest friend and the violentest enemy I ever knew: I felt it too much not to know it. He at first seemed to despise wealth: but he delivered himself up afterwards to luxury and sensuality: and by that means he ran into a vast expense, and stuck at nothing that was necessary to support it. In his long imprisonment he had great impressions of religion on his mind: but he wore these out so entirely, that scarce any trace of them was left. His great experience in affairs, his ready compliance with every thing that he thought would please the King, and his bold offering at the most desperate counsels, gained him such an interest in the King, that no attempt against him, nor complaint of him, could ever shake it, till a decay of strength and understanding forced him to let go his hold. He was in his principles much against Popery and arbitrary government; and yet, by a fatal train of passions and interests, he made way for the former, and had almost established the latter. And, whereas some by a smooth deportment made the first beginnings of tyranny less discernible and unacceptable, he by the fury of his behaviour heightened the severity of his ministry, which was liker the cruelty of an inquisition than the legality of justice. With all this he was a Presbyterian, and retained his aversion to King Charles I. and his party to his death."

This great Duke married, first, Anne, daughter and coheir of Alexander, Earl of Hume, by whom he had only one daughter, Anne, married to John, second Marquis of Tweeddale.

And after her death, Elizabeth, eldest daughter and heir of William Murray, Earl of Dysart, widow of Sir Lionel Tolmache, of Helmingham, but by her had no succession.

The Duke of Lauderdale dying thus without male children, the dignity of Duke extinguished with himself, the honour of Earl devolving upon

CHARLES Maitland, of Hattoun, his brother; which Charles, third Earl of Lauderdale, was constituted Treasurer Deputy, anno 1670, as his Lordship was also one of the Senators of the College of Justice, and General of the Mint during the ministry of the Duke his brother. He married Elizabeth, daughter and heir of Richard Lawder, of Hattoun, by whom he had a numerous issue.

Second, John, fifth Earl of Lauderdale.

Third, Charles Maitland, Esq. who married Lilius, daughter to Sir John Colquhoun, of Luss, widow of Sir John Stirling, of Kier.

Fifth, Alexander Maitland, Esq.

Sixth, Isabel, the eldest daughter, married to John, Lord Elphinston.

Seventh, Mary, the youngest, to Charles, Earl of Southesk.

This Earl died upon the 9th of June, 1691,<sup>1</sup> the honour devolving upon

RICHARD, his son and heir, fourth Earl of Lauderdale, who in his younger years was bred up to every thing that was proper to qualify him for those great employments his ancestors had enjoyed in the state, and his improvement so far exceeded his years, that he was very early admitted into the Privy-council, and made Lord Justice Clerk, anno 1681; but his father-in-law, the Earl of Argyle, having made his escape out of the castle of Edinburgh, and some letters of his being intercepted and deciphered, whereby it appeared some had been written to him; and though the matter of them was very innocent, yet it being correspondence with a person condemned, it brought him under a cloud,<sup>m</sup> and he was deprived of his place; but notwithstanding, he continued inviolably devoted to the interest of King James, and upon the Revolution he followed the fortune of the said King into France, where he died "some years thereafter, leaving no surviving issue by Anne his wife, daughter of Archibald, Earl of Argyle, so that the title of Earl of Lauderdale came to

Sir JOHN, his brother, fifth Earl, who being bred a lawyer, was promoted to be one of the Senators of the College of Justice, anno 1689, and thereafter to be General of the Mint, which office he enjoyed till his death, which happened the 13th of August, 1710.<sup>n</sup> By Margaret his wife, only daughter of Alexander, Earl of Glencairn, he had three sons; viz.

FORBES, LORD GRANARD.

[Earl of Granard, in Ireland.]

THIS family, says the ancient Scotch historian Boece, as quoted by Sir David Dalrymple, were at their beginning called Bois,<sup>a</sup> but by killing a mighty bear that infested the country, they assumed the name of FORBES, and the coat armour which they now use. They had sundry grants of land in the Mearnes, from King Robert Bruce, and the lands of FORBES in the shire of Aberdeen, from King Alexander II.; from whose reign, in the thirteenth century, that castle hath been the seat of the chief branch of the family.

ALEXANDER FORBES, the son of ALEXANDER Bois, loyally adhering to King David Bruce (son of the said Robert), against Edward Baliol, who by the assistance of King Edward III. had usurped the crown of Scotland in 1321, was killed in the battle of Dupplin the year after.

To him succeeded Sir JOHN Forbes his son, who was knighted by King Robert II. successor to his uncle David (in whose service his father was killed), and being seated at Castle Forbes, was styled Sir John Forbes of that Ilk (a term used in Scotland, when the name of a family and seat are the same), and acquiring from Thomas, Earl of Mar, several lands in the county of Aberdeen, <sup>a</sup> In 1304, King Edward I. took the castle of Urquhart, and slew every person in it, except the wife of Alexander Bois, lord of the castle, who was then pregnant; the child proved a boy, and he having slain a mighty bear, that infested the country, he received the appellation of FOR-BEAST, and this was afterwards corruptly pronounced FORBES. (Annals of Scotland, by Sir David Dalrymple, Vol. I. p. 311.) was confirmed therein by the charter of the said King, in 1393; and in 1395, appointed Justiciary within the bounds of Aberdeen, and Coroner of that shire. He married Elizabeth, daughter of — Kennedy, of Dunure, by whom he had three sons,

First, Sir Alexander, his heir.

Second, Sir William (who married Margaret, daughter and heir to Sir William Frazer, of Philorth, with whom having the barony of Pitsligo, and a son, Alexander, he was ancestor to Alexander Forbes, created 24th July, 1633, Baron of Pitsligo, whose descendants long enjoyed that title.)

Third, Sir John, the third son, who obtained the Thanedom of Formartin, by the marriage of Margery, daughter and heir to Sir Henry Preston, of Formartin, and was founder of the family of Tolquhon, from whom branched those of Foveran, Watertown, Colloden, and others.

Sir ALEXANDER, the eldest son, obtained a grant to him and his heirs, 10th December, 1423, from John, Earl of Buchan, of the lands of Mickle-Fintry, Blacktown, and Ballcross; and marrying Elizabeth, daughter of — Douglas, left issue James, his heir, and a daughter, Annabella, married to Sir Patrick Gray, of Kynneff, Gentleman of the Bedchamber to King James II. of Scotland, and <sup>b</sup>ancestor to the Lords Gray.

Sir JAMES, who succeeded about the year 1444, was knighted, and created Lord Forbes by King James II. and taking to wife Egidia, daughter of William Keith, Earl Marishall, had issue two sons,

First, Sir WILLIAM, his successor in title and estate, ancestor to Lord Forbes, of Scotland.

Second, Patrick Forbes, of Corse.

And a daughter, married to Malcolm Forbes, of Tolquhon.

From PATRICK Forbes, of Corsse, the younger son, descended

Sir ARTHUR Forbes, of Castle-Forbes, in the parish of Clongish, and county of Longford, who, by patent dated at Dublin 1st April, 1622 (with James and Robert Forbes, Gentlemen, all natives of Scotland), were made free denizens of Ireland; and in pursuance of his Majesty's commission, dated 29th January, 1620, for the plantation of the county of Leitrim, the territories of O'Ferrall, Delvin, M'Coghlan, and Kilcoursie, in the King's County; of Iregan, in the Queen's County; and part of Clancol-man, in Westmeath; the King granted and confirmed to him for ever, 500 acres of arable and pasture land, and 670 of wood and bog, in the barony of Mohill, and county of Leitrim. And further (by virtue of the commission dated 30th September, 1619, for the plantation of the county of Longford, and the country of Elye O'Carroll, in the King's County), his Majesty granted to him and his heirs the lands of Clongisse, Ballymacbrian, and others, in the barony and county of Longford, containing 600 acres arable and pasture, and 608 acres of wood and bog; which were erected, with the lands granted to the said James and Robert Forbes, into the manor of Castle-Forbes, with usual privileges, a Thursday market, and a fair on St. Bartholomew's day at Clongisse, and were confirmed 9th August, 1637, to his son, Sir Arthur, by virtue of the commission for remedy of defective titles, dated 7th September, 1636, in reversion after his mother's death, at the yearly rent of 14l. 12s. 2d. h. English, whereof 3l. 5s. was added by way of increase, by virtue of the order and agreement of the late composition; and were further confirmed to him in fee, with other lands, 20th September, 1639.

September 26th, 1628, he was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia; and having, by petition to the King, made discovery, that certain royal fishings did belong to his Majesty in the province of Ulster, having therein received the advice of the commissioners for Irish causes, who seriously examined his propositions, and certified their opinion; his Majesty, by letter from Westminster, 21st October, 1628, required the L. D. Falkland to inform himself of their quality and value, and after due examination of all particulars, to cause his counsel to prosecute the eviction thereof into his Majesty's possession, by a due and legal course of proceeding,<sup>c</sup> wherein Sir Arthur was to give his best help and furtherance; after which the Deputy was authorised to grant unto him such a proportion as his Lordship should think fit; and in further recompense for that particular service, the King was pleased to bestow upon him, by Concordatum, out of the overplus of the value and first profits of the rest of the said royal fishery, not leased to him, the sum of 300l. English.

He married Jeane, daughter of — Lowther, Esq. and dying as by inquisition 14th April, 1632, had issue by her, who survived him,<sup>d</sup> her deposition, sworn 3d September, 1642 (before John Watson, William Aldrich, and Henry Brereton, Esqrs. commissioners for taking the examination of Protestants, concerning their losses and sufferings), wherein she declares, that about 25th October, she was robbed by the Irish rebels in the counties of Longford, Cavan, and Leitrim, of her means and goods to the value of 620l. 8s. in cattle; 182l. in horses and mares; 331l. 8s. in sheep and hogs; 156l. 3s. 4d. in household-stuff, &c. the charge of building the house of Castle-Forbes, with the bawne, out-houses, gardens, orchards, and improvements, 1000l.; stock in the farm-house, 40l.; corn in ground, 107l.; corn in haggard, 140l.; due debts, 289l. 8s.; her sons cloaths, worth 25l.; a cloak-bag of small clothes of her own, worth 40s.; and she was also deprived of, and by the rebellion had lost the possession of the lands there (containing 600 acres), 129l.; and of 200 acres with the plantation house, and with the proportion of Drumeal, worth 47l. a year, besides the charge of building that house and mill there, coming to 40l.; and also of the possession, rents, and profits of 200 acres, in the proportion of Horne and Dirvellane, worth 20l. 10s. per annum, and of the lands called the two Burgess-plots, in the corporation of St. Jehntown, of the yearly rent of 14l.; besides the charge of the buildings thereon, worth 120l.; and of the proportion of land, containing 500 acres, in the county of Leitrim, of the yearly rent of 80l. besides the charges of the building of the castle, bawn, and mill, upon the said lands of Balligecre, amounting to 160l.; and also of her lands, containing 1000 acres in the county of Cavan, being her jointure by her first husband, worth 260l. a year, &c. The feeding and relieving poor despoiled Protestants, to the number of 220, from about the 1st November, 1641, to 2d August, 1642, who otherwise must have perished, when she and they stooping to a most miserable and woful want, were enforced to desert the castle on quarter, go to Dublin, and at their coming away, leave to the rebels, arms and ammunition, worth 50l. so that her losses amounted to 3774l. 8s. 4d. besides the future loss of her lands and means, worth 561l. 16s. a year. Her Ladyship's behaviour during the assaults made on her house by the rebels, deserves particular notice; and it appears by the depositions of Arthur Auchmuty, of Castle-Forbes, and Martin Johnston, taken before the said commissioners, 13th September, 1642, that her Ladyship in the very beginning of the rebellion, fearing the dangers which ensued, she endeavoured to furnish her castle with arms, ammunition, provisions, and men, to resist the rebels; and gathering all her British tenants in the county of Longford, kept as strong watch and ward as possible. And the rebels soon after robbing all her tenants, with those of the Lady Longford and Sir John Seaton, who thereupon fled to Castle-Forbes for relief, and taking the castle of Longford, murdering the garrison after quarter given, prepared to besiege Castle-Forbes, and being 500 strong, built cabbins within musket-shot, and took their cattle, but were repulsed four several times; when beleaguering the castle anew within pistol-shot, and making many trenches, they shot in at the windows, and killed some in the house and some on the walls, but with the loss of about eighty by the fire from the castle. After this they took the well by surprise, and in order to deprive the besieged of water, seized a Scottish man that endeavoured to go to the castle, and Ulster, and in the distracted time of the rebellion, an officer of horse: and being zealously affected to the royal interest, "was a commander in the northern parts of Scotland for King Char. II. which," as Sir Philip Warwick writes, "some time after Worcester fight cost the English some pains and marches, because the commanders were choice men, such as the Lord Glencairn; Sir Arthur Forbes, and Middleton; yet Monk at length defeated them; and the very isles of Orkney, the Hebrides and Shetland, were reduced." After this he returned to Ireland, and being comprehended within the articles made by General Monk with the Lord of Lorne, and by the fourth head thereof, to enjoy his estate in Ireland, if the same was not disposed of; the government, in consideration that it did not appear that he ever acted, assisted, or countenanced the rebellion in Ireland, and that the levying of war by him was only in Scotland or England, ordered 17th August, 1655, that he should enjoy his estates in the counties of Leitrim and Longford. When the Restoration was concerted, between the Lord Broghill and Sir Charles Coote, he was sent to Brussels by Sir Charles, to assure the King, if he would please to come into Ireland, the whole kingdom would declare for him; hanging him, ripped up his belly, and threw him into the well. The castle being near starved for want of water, dug a hole forty feet deep in the barane, and recovered water; and when any went out privately to seek relief, the rebels, from time to time, murdered and left them to be devoured by dogs and fowls, calling the Protestants of the castle, puritan dogs and heretics; traitors to God and the King; and threatening that man, woman, and child should be cut off. When no relief was expected from the army, the Lady Forbes gave all her great horses to eat; and after they were all spent, the besieged eat the stinking cow-hides, which had lain on dunghills in the barane from Christmas, or All-hallow tide, before; and were enforced to dry and grind upon quernes all the old sour grains of malt they could get, and bake them for bread, and the poorer sort eat the weeds from off the dunghills, so that they were put to strange misery and want. And when her Ladyship and Lady Seaton, by letters, earnestly desired leave for the poor to go into the garden, or before the castle-gate, to eat the grass, they refused, with saying, they would keep them till the ravens did eat their guts. And two children going forth to eat weeds, the one was shot dead, and the other wounded. After which a poor woman, whose husband they had apprehended, going to beg his life, with two children at her feet and one at her breast, she and her sucking child were slain, one of the others had his neck broken, and the third hardly escaped. When the besieged were driven to that exigence, that they had nothing to eat, but were all very near to famish, then with much difficulty, Lady Forbes obtained quarter, to march away with their wearing clothes and arms to Trim, where 220 persons, through many dangers and miseries, were conducted, and thence escaped to Dublin. (Lodge.)

but the King, well knowing that Ireland must wait upon the fate of England, resolved to attend the vicissitude there, and dismissed Sir Arthur with such letters and commissions as he desired.

Upon the Restoration he was considered, for his great abilities, as a fit person to compose the unsettled state of this kingdom, and was accordingly, 19th March, appointed one of the Commissioners of the Court of Claims, for putting in execution his Majesty's declaration of 30th November, for the settlement of Ireland,<sup>e</sup> as he was again, 22d May, 1662; having, 9th February, 1660, been made Captain of a troop of horse; and in 1661, was member of parliament for Mullengar.<sup>f</sup> In 1663, the execution of a plot being intended on the 25th of May, by sur-

And by the same grant, divers lands were annexed to the manors of Castle-Forbes and Agherehunson, with power to empark 800 acres for deer in each; and there being a Thursday market, and two fairs, 24th June and 1st November, at Mullengar, the King granted him two additional fairs, to be holden there 18th August and 26th March. He had also two grants upon the Acts of Settlement, of the lands of Esker, Orem, and others, in the county of Longford; and 18th January, 1678, an abatement of the new quit-rents imposed by the said Acts. And John Hollywood, of Artaine, in the county of Dublin, Esq. being seised of several lands in that county and elsewhere, by decree of the Court of Claims; remainder to the crown, on failure of his issue male, his Majesty, 26th February, 1680, granted the same to the Lord Granard, consisting of the manors of Artaine, otherwise Tartaine, and great Hollywood's lands in Santry, with divers others in the counties of Dublin, Meath, and Wexford, to hold to him and his heirs for the term of 1000 years, at the yearly rent of 3 d. per acre, to commence from the expiration of Hollywood's interest. prising the castles of Dublin, Drogheda, Derry, and other places of strength, and to seize the person of the Duke of Ormond, L.L. Sir Arthur Forbes being then in the North, found reason to suspect that an insurrection was speedily intended, and discovered the designs formed for the surprise of Derry, Culmore, Lema-vaddy, and Raphoe; but as there was not a party of horse in the counties of Tyrone and Donegall on which he could depend, he resolved to run all hazards to prevent the intended mischief; and 24th May, secured Staples, member of parliament for Strabane, the chief conspirator, whom he imprisoned at Culmore; which when the soldiers in Derry understood, they thought fit to continue in their duty; and the conspirators in the North finding their schemes hereby defeated, fled into Scotland to avoid their deserved punishment.

After this he was sworn of the Privy-council, and 9th August, 1670, on the death of Marcus, Viscount Dungannon, in consideration of his eminent loyalty and good services, and as a mark of the King's favour, was made marshal of the army, to have for his ordinary retinue one trumpeter and thirty horsemen lightly armed, with the pay of 687l. 8s. 4d. a year; and moreover, had a pension of 600l. a year for secret services, without accompt, which on the establishment, commencing 1st January, 1687, was augmented to 634l. 12s. a year.

On the 12th June, 1671, he was appointed one of the L.J. of the kingdom, as he was again 5th July, 1675; and 26th October that year, for the (1649) officers, pursuant to the King's declaration for the settlement of the kingdom,<sup>g</sup> and by privy seal, dated at Whitehall 23d September, and <sup>h</sup>patent at Dublin 22d November that year, was created Baron Clanehugh, and Viscount of Granard, with the creation fee of 13l. 6s. 8d. payable out of exchequer.

However, he soon found the King's proceedings in Ireland very contradictory to this assurance, and his Lordship asserting the cause of the Protestants, was, 24th March, 1689, dismissed from being Chairman of the council.

CREWE, LORD CREWE.

“ THE township of CREWE, in the parish of Barthomley, in Cheshire, which lies about four miles S.W. by S. from Sandbach, was,” says Lysons, “ from a very early period, the seat and inheritance of the family of CRUE, or CREWE. About the year 1288, THOMAS DE CREWE became possessed of a knight’s fee, parcel of the barony of Wich-Malbank, which, in 1253, had belonged to Philippa, Countess of Warwick; this comprised the lordship of Crewe, to which some other manors were attached as parcel of that lordship. About the year 1300, JOAN, eldest daughter and coheirress of THOMAS de Crewe, the last male heir of the elder branch of the family, married Richard Praers, whose granddaughter brought Crewe, in marriage, to Sir Robert Fulleshurst, or Foulshurst, one of Lord Audley’s Esquires at the battle of Poitiers. Sir Christopher Hatton purchased it of the Foulshursts in 1578.

“ About the year 1610, Sir RANDAL CREWE, Serjeant at Law, descended from PATRICK, a younger brother of Thomas de Crewe (whose daughter, Joan, three centuries before, brought this estate to the Praers family), purchased the manor of Crewe of Sir Christopher Hatton’s heirs, and built Crewe-Hall, which, with the manor, continued in his descendants of the male line till the death of John Crewe, Esq. in 1684; ANNE, his elder daughter, and eventually sole heir, married JOHN OFFLEY, Esq. whose ancestors had been settled at Madeley Manor, in Staffordshire, as early as the year 1237; JOHN, his eldest son, took the name of CREWE, by act of parliament, in 1708; and was grandfather of of the present proprietor, who, in 1806, was created BARON CREWE.”<sup>a</sup>

PATRICK CREWE, a fourth son (and younger brother of Thomas de Crewe, whose heiress married Foulshurst), had two sons; of whom, David, the younger, was ancestor to the present Peer. But the elder was ancestor to the Crewes of Pulcroft; the co-heiresses of which family married into the families of Boydell, Chetwode, Leycester, and Wetenhall.

Of DAVID Crewe, the younger son, the posterity settled at Soonde.

THOMAS Crewe, great grandson of David, married a daughter of Henry Norbury, Under-Treasurer of England in the reign of Henry VI. And to his second wife, Margaret, daughter of John Patrick, of Nantwich; in consequence of which he settled in that town.

His descendant, JOHN Crewe, of Nantwich, Gent. (whose monument remained in the church of that place, till taken down when the south gallery was erected; of which, however, the inscription is preserved in Dugdale's Visitation), had issue by Alice Mainwaring his wife, two sons.<sup>b</sup>

First, Sir Randal, ancestor of the present Peer, of whom hereafter.

Second, Sir THOMAS CREWE, of Stene, co. Northampton, Serjeant at Law; married Temperance, daughter and coheir of Reginald Bray, of Stene, in Northamptonshire, by whom he had four sons, and five daughters; viz. First, John. Second, Thomas. Third, Nathaniel. Fourth, Salathiel. Fifth, Anne. Sixth, Patience. Seventh, Silence. Eighth, Prudence. Ninth, Temperance, wife of John Browne, Esq. she died September 22d, 1634, aged twenty-five. Their mother, Temperance, died October 25th, 1619, æt. 38.

Sir Thomas died February 1633, æt. 68.

JOHN Crew, of Stene, in the county of Northampton, Esq. son and heir to Sir Thomas Crew, Serjeant at Law, was twice chosen M. P. for Northamptonshire, in 15 Charles I. and 12 Charles II. During the usurpation he continued faithful to his Prince; and by his great prudence (with no small hazard), loyally contributing his best endeavours for the happy restoration of King Charles II. in testimony of his Majesty's gracious acceptance of this his laudable service, he was by letters patent, bearing date at Westminster the twentieth day of April, in the thirteenth year of his reign, advanced to the degree and dignity of a Baron of this realm, by the title of LORD CREW OF STENE, and to the heirs male of his body.

He married Jemima, daughter and coheir of Edward Walgrave, of Lawford, in com. Essex, Esq. By whom he had issue four sons (the rest dying young); viz. First, Sir Thomas Crew, Knt. Secondly, John. Thirdly, Nathaniel, Bishop of Durham. And, Fourthly, Walgrave; as also two daughters; Jemima, married to Edward, Earl of Sandwich; and Anne, to Sir Henry Wright, of Dagenham, in com. Essex, Bart.

His Lordship died December 12th, 1679, æt. 72.

THOMAS, SECOND LORD CREWE OF STENE, by Mary, his first wife, who died July 4th, 1658, daughter of Sir George Townshend, late of East-Raynham, in com. Norf. Baronet, had issue, John, who died in his youth; and two daughters; Anne, married to ——— Jollyf, of co. Staff. Esq.; and Temperance, the wife of Sir Rowland Alston, son and heir to Sir Thomas Alston, of Odell, in com. Bedf. Baronet, and remarried to Sir John Wolstenholme. And by Anne, his second wife, daughter and coheir to Sir William Airmin, of Osgodby, in com. Lincoln, Bart. (widow of Sir Thomas Woodhouse, of Wilberhall, in com. Norf. Bart.

and afterwards remarried to Lord Torrington), he had four daughters, his coheirs; viz. First, Jemima, wife of Henry, Duke of Kent. Second, Armyne, wife of Thomas Cartwright, of Aynho, Esq. Third, Elizabeth, wife of Charles, Earl of Arran. Fourth, Catharine, wife of Sir John Harpur,<sup>c</sup> of Calke, co. Derby, Bart. His Lordship died November 30th, 1697, æt. 74, and was succeeded by his brother, NATHANIEL, BISHOP OF DURHAM, THIRD LORD CREWE OF STENE.

“ Bishop Crewe,” says Hutchinson,<sup>d</sup> in his History of Durham, “ was the fifth son of John, second Lord Crewe, of Stene, in the county of Northampton, by Jemima, daughter and coheiress of Edward Walgrave, of Lawford, in Essex, Esq. He was born at Stene on the 31st of January, 1633, and, in 1652, was admitted Commoner of Lincoln College in Oxford, where he took the degree of Bachelor of Arts, the 1st January, 1655, and soon after was chosen Fellow of that college. The 29th of June, 1658, he took the degree of Master of Arts. At the restoration, he declared heartily in favour of the crown and hierarchy, and in 1663, he took the degree of Doctor of Law, and soon after went into holy orders. On the 12th of August, 1668, he was elected Rector of Lincoln College, upon the decease of Dr. Paul Hood. On the 29th of April, 1669, was installed Dean of Chichester, and held with that dignity the Precentorship, in which he had been installed the day before; he was also appointed Clerk of the Closet to King Charles II. In 1671, upon the translation of Dr. Blandford to the See of Worcester, he was elected BISHOP OF OXFORD in his room, and consecrated the 2d of July, being allowed to hold therewith, in commendam, the Living of Whitney, and the Rectorship of Lincoln College; but the latter he resigned the 10th of October, 1672. In 1673, he performed the marriage-ceremony of James, Duke of York, and Maria of Este. Through that Princess's interest (with whose measures he seems to have been very compliant), he was translated to the opulent SEE OF DURHAM. In the beginning of the year 1675, he baptized Katharina-Laura, the new-born daughter of James, Duke of York. The 26th of April, 1676, he was sworn of the Privy-council to Charles II. Upon the accession of James II. to the crown, he was in great favour at court, being thought most obsequious to the will of the Sovereign: accordingly, on the 29th of December, 1685, he was made Dean of his Majesty's Chapel Royal, in the room of Henry, Bishop of London, who had been removed; and within a few days after admitted of the Privy-council. In 1686, he was appointed one of the Commissioners in the new ecclesiastical commission erected by King James, and was proud of that honour. Bishop Burnet<sup>e</sup> says, "He was lifted up with it, and said, now his name would be recorded in history; and when some of his friends represented to him the danger of acting in a court so illegally constituted, he said, he could not live if he should lose the King's gracious smiles; so low and so fawning was he." By virtue of that commission, he appeared on the 9th of August at the proceedings against Henry, Bishop of London; and was for suspending him during the King's pleasure, though the Earl and Bishop of Rochester, and Chief Justice Herbert, were against it. Immediately after that Bishop's suspension, commissioners were appointed to exercise all manner of ecclesiastical jurisdiction within the diocese of London, of which Bishop Crewe was one. The 20th of November following, he was present at, and consenting to the degradation of Mr. Samuel Johnson, previous to the severe punishment that was inflicted on that eminent divine. In the quality of an ecclesiastical commissioner, he countenanced with his presence a prosecution carried on in May 1687, against Dr. Peachy, Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge, for refusing to admit one Alban Francis, a Benedictine Monk, to the degree of Master of Arts in that University, without taking the oaths.<sup>f</sup> And in July the same year, he offered to attend the Pope's Nuncio at his public entry into London; but his coachman refused to drive him.<sup>g</sup> His name was again inserted in a new ecclesiastical commission, issued out this year, wherein he acted during the severe proceedings against Magdalen College in Oxford, for refusing to elect one Anthony Farmer their President, pursuant to the King's mandate. The Bishop continued acting as an ecclesiastical commissioner (being styled the Grand Inquisitor thereof), till October 1688, when that commission was abolished. Towards the end of the year 1687, he was employed, with the Bishops of Rochester and Peterborough, to draw up a form of thanksgiving for the Queen's being with child. Thus he constantly complied with the King's designs, and constantly coincided with his humours, till he discovered that the Prince of Orange's party was likely to prevail: this induced him to absent himself from the council-board; and as he was servile, so he was abject: he threw himself in the way of the Archbishop of Canterbury, to tell him he was sorry for having so long concurred with the court; and begged to be reconciled to his Grace and the other Bishops.<sup>h</sup> He found it was now time to retract, change his countenance, and counterwork his former principles; and in the convocation that met in January 1688-9, to consider of filling the throne, he was one of those who voted on the 6th of February, that James II. had abdicated the kingdom.<sup>i</sup> Notwithstanding all this, his thorough compliance with the late court's arbitrary designs, had rendered him so obnoxious to the nation, that he was excepted by name out of the pardon granted by William and Mary the 23d of May, 1690.<sup>k</sup> The Bishop was so terrified with this public mark of ignominy, that he absconded for a time, and actually fled beyond sea. Kennet<sup>l</sup> says, "that he despaired of any favour at the Revolution, and was once got beyond sea in a fright; but being brought back by the importunities of a domestic servant, he made fresh interest in the new court and parliament, and bought off the complaints of Mr. Samuel Johnson, and others, who had suffered by him." Bishop Burnet likewise tells us,<sup>m</sup> "The poor Bishop of Durham, who had absconded for some time, and was waiting for a ship to get beyond sea, fearing public affronts, and had offered to compound by resigning his bishopric,<sup>n</sup> was now prevailed on to come, and by voting the new settlement, to merit at least a pardon for all that he had done; which, all things considered, was thought very indecent in him, yet not unbecoming the rest of his life and character." By what means he effected his purpose is not easy to determine; but it is certain, he made his peace with the court, and preserved his bishopric: in order to secure himself the possession of that dignity, he was forced to permit the crown to dispose of, or at least to nominate, to his Prebends of Durham as they should become vacant.<sup>o</sup>

By the death of his two elder brothers in 1691, he became BARON CREWE OF STENE; and about the 21st of December in the same year, he married, but left no issue. During the rest of King William's reign, he remained quiet and unmolested, though not much considered. In 1710, he was one of the Lords that opposed the prosecution then carried on against Dr. Sacheverell, declared him not guilty, and protested against several steps taken in that affair.

In the latter part of his life he applied himself chiefly to works of munificence and charity: he was a great benefactor to Lincoln College, whereof he had been Fellow and Rector; and laid out large sums in beautifying the palace at Durham.

Many men have been canonized for much inferior works of beneficence than those of this Prelate; his mistaken principles in the affairs of government, though they stain his memory, under the pens of political writers, are all obliterated from the benevolent mind by his charity and extensive acts of munificence.<sup>p</sup> A short time before his death, June 24th, 1720, his Lordship devised to trustees, his estates at Bamborough, and elsewhere, in Northumberland, then lately purchased, and of the annual value of 1312l. 13s. or thereabouts, for various munificent and charitable purposes, which are detailed at length in Hutchinson's History of Durham, I. 558, &c.

He held the See of Durham forty-seven years; as he had done that of Oxford three; continuing a Bishop fifty years, three months, and two days; which was longer than any Englishman ever enjoyed that honour, except Thomas Bouchier, Archbishop of Canterbury, who held the Sees of Worcester, Ely, and Canterbury, fifty-one years, and twenty-one days. His Lordship dying without issue, the title of Lord Crewe of Stene became EXTINCT with him.

The character given of his Lordship by Dr. Kippis, in the Biographia Britannia, is much less flattering than that of Mr. Hutchinson. He observes, that "there was little in the character and conduct of this Prelate, which could entitle him to a place in the Biographia. He was distinguished indeed, by passing through a variety of ecclesiastical preferments; by being the Rector of a college; and by sustaining for an uncommon length of time a very high rank in the church; but he was not celebrated either for his learning, or for other eminent qualities. We do not read of any thing that was published by him; and his benefactions to Lincoln College did not take place till he was between eighty and ninety years of age. As a Peer of the realm, he makes no figure in the annals of his country, unless his having joined in some Tory protests is to be considered in that light. The chief historical event of his life reflects nothing but dishonour on him; we mean his being one of King James II's ecclesiastical commissioners, together with his behaviour in that character, which was marked with servility. Indeed this servile spirit had been displayed by him many years before, on his promotion to the Bishopric of Durham," &c. "Vanity was among the other qualities which detracted from the Bishop of Durham." But, "with all the faults of the Bishop, he was possessed of some amiable qualities. He was hospitable, generous, and charitable; though it is said, that his charity was sometimes observed to be exerted with too much ostentation. He made large bequests by his last will to the purposes of religion, education, and charity;"<sup>1</sup> as has been already mentioned.

His Lordship married, first, Penelope, daughter of Sir Philip Frowde, who died æt. 44, March 9th, 1699; and, secondly, Dorothy, daughter of Sir William Forster, of Bamborough, in Northumberland, who died October 15th, 1715, aged 42.

His Lordship died without issue, September 18th, 1721, aged eighty-eight, and was buried at Stene.

We now return to Sir RANDOLPH CREWE, elder brother to Sir Thomas Crewe, of Stene, Serjeant at Law.

Fuller, with his usual quaint vivacity, says in his Worthies of Cheshire, "Sir Randal Crew was born in this county, bred in the study of our municipal Law, wherein such his proficiency, that (after some steps in his way thereunto), in the 22d of King James, he was made LORD CHIEF JUSTICE of the Upper Bench, and therein served two Kings, though scarce two years in his office, with great integrity. King Charles's occasions calling for speedy supplies of money, some great ones adjudged it was useless to venture on a parliament (for fear in these distempered times, the physic would side with the disease), and put the King to furnish his necessities by way of loan. Sir Randal being demanded his judgment of that design, and the consequence thereof (the imprisoning of recusants to pay it), openly manifested his dislike of such preter-legal courses; and thereupon, November 9th, 1626, was commanded to forbear his sitting in the court; and the next day was by writ discharged from his office; whereof he discovered no more discontent, than the weary traveller is offended, when told that he is arrived at his journey's end.

“ The country hath constantly a smile for him, for whom the court hath a frown. This Knight was out of office, not out of honour, living long after at his house in Westminster, much praised for his hospitality.

“ Indeed he may the better put off his gown (though before he goeth to bed), who hath a warm suit under it; and this learned Judge, by God's blessing on his endeavours, had purchased a fair estate, and particularly Crewe-Hall, in Cheshire (for some ages formerly the possession of the Fulhursts), but which probably was the inheritance of his ancestors. Nor must it be forgotten, that Sir Randal first brought the model of excellent building into these remote parts; yea, brought London into Cheshire, in the loftiness, sightliness, and pleasantness of their structures. One word of his Lady; a virtuous wife being very essential to the integrity of a married judge, lest what Westminster-Hall doth conclude, Westminster bed-chamber doth revoke. He married Julia, daughter and coheir of John Clipsby, of Clipsby, in Norfolk, Esq. with whom he had a fair inheritance. She died at Kew, in Surrey, in 1623; and lieth buried in the chancel of Richmond, with this epitaph:

Virgo pudica thorum, sponsa pudica polum.”

“ I saw this worthy Judge in health 1642, but he survived not long after.”<sup>r</sup>

Sir CLIPSBY CREWE, son and heir of Sir Randolph, had two sons;

First, John.

Second, Randal Crewe, Esq. whom Fuller thus records. “ He drew a map of Cheshire so exactly with his pen, that a judicious eye would mistake it for printing; and the graver's skill and in-

This hopeful Gentleman went beyond the seas, out of design to render himself by his travels more useful for his country, where he was barbarously assassinated by some Frenchmen; and honourably buried with general lamentation of the English at Paris, 1656."

JOHN Crewe, Esq. of Crewe-Hall, son and heir, married Mary, daughter and coheir of Sir John Done, of Utkinton-Hall (who died 1629), and by her had issue, Sir JOHN Crewe, of Crewe-Hall, and Utkinton, whose wife was Mary, daughter of Thomas Wagstaff, Esq. of Tachbrook, in Warwickshire, who died in 1686.

His successor (perhaps first cousin), was JOHN Crewe, Esq. (great grandson of Sir Randolph), the last male heir, who died 1684, leaving two daughters, his coheirs; of whom, Elizabeth, the youngest, married Charles Turner, Esq. but died without issue.

ANNE, eldest daughter, and eventually sole heir, married John Offley, Esq. of Madeley, in Staffordshire; and by her had issue,

JOHN, of Crewe-Hall, his son and heir, who took the name of CREWE by act of parliament in 1708; and was elected representative for Cheshire in 1707, 1708, and 1722; and died 1749. He married —, daughter of — Price, Esq. and was father of

First, John.

Second, Charles, elected M. P. for Cheshire, at his brother's death.

JOHN Crewe, of Crewe-Hall, Esq. who was elected representative for the same county in 1734, 1741, and 1747, and dying 1752, left issue by his wife, the daughter of Richard Shuttleworth, Esq.

First, John, present Peer.

Second, Richard, late in the army, and married.

Third, A daughter, married the late Dr. Hinchcliffe, Bishop of Peterborough, who died 1796, by whom she had a daughter, married to Lieut.-General John Tadwell Watson.

JOHN Crewe, eldest son, FIRST LORD CREWE of CREWE, was born 1742; and was elected representative in parliament for Cheshire, from 1768 to 1806; when he was elevated to the Peerage, by the title of LORD CREWE, of CREWE, in Cheshire, by patent dated February 25th, 1806.

His Lordship married, in 1766, Frances-Anne, only daughter of Fulke Greville, Esq. Envoy Extraordinary, in 1766, to the Elector of Bavaria, and Minister to the Diet of Ratisbon (only son of the Hon. Algernon Greville, second son of Fulk Greville, fifth Lord Brooke, by Mary, daughter and coheir of Lord Arthur Somerset, fifth son of Henry, Duke of Beaufort, K.G.) and has issue,

First, John, a Major-General in the army, married, May 5th, 1807, Miss Hungerford, of Calne, in the county of Wilts, and has issue a daughter, born March 29th, 1808.

Second, Emma, married, April 21st, 1809, Foster Cunliffe, Esq. son of Sir Foster Cunliffe, Bart.

nah, daughter of William Hanmer, Esq. of Battisfield, in Flintshire.

He died December 25th, 1788. " His life, which was long, happy, and honourable, was spent in constant, unwearied, and unremitted exertions in the service of his country, his friends, and his neighbours. As a magistrate, he was a conscientious supporter of the laws, to which he gave vigour and efficacy by precept, by example, and by authority. His private life was eminently distinguished by the most engaging affability, honourable hospitality, and general philanthropy; and, by a peculiar felicity of manners, he won the hearts and secured the respect of all who had the happiness of knowing him. He had one merit, unknown to those who were not intimate with him, and in which he excelled even Socrates, or any of the ancient philosophers; he was naturally of a very hasty, peevish, and passionate temper, which, by his strict attention to the principles and practice of the Christian religion, particularly as to the government of his mind, he entirely conquered, and scarcely ever lost himself; and, in the general course of his life, was as remarkable for meekness and moderation, as for any other virtue whatsoever."<sup>c</sup>

KENNEDY, LORD AILSA.

[Earl of Cassilis, in Scotland.]

THE progenitors of this noble and illustrious family were considerable proprietors, and had large possessions in the west of Scotland (particularly Carrick) before surnames were much used in this country.

That a family of rank and figure in Carrick, were the undoubted ancestors of the KENNEDIES of Cassilis, and that they assumed their surname from their being head or chief of that family, is sufficiently instructed by the following connexion of authentic documents and charters from father to son; so that those historians, who allege that the first of this family came from Ireland, must have been in a mistake.

I. DUNCANUS DE CARRICK flourished in the reign of Malcolm IV. who succeeded to the crown of Scotland, anno 1153. Being possessed of a considerable estate in Carrick, he and his posterity were for some time designed by that name. He left issue a son and successor.

II. NICHOLAUS de Carrick, who made a donation to the nuns of North-Berwick, of the patronage of the church of St. Cuthbert at Maybole, in the reign of King William the Lion, who succeeded to the crown in 1165, and died anno 1214.

In this donation he is designed Nicholaus de Carrick filius Duncani, &c.<sup>a</sup>

He was succeeded by his son,

III. ROLANDUS de Carrick, who in the reign of Alexander II. obtained a charter from Nigellus, Earl of Carrick, of the bailiary of Carrick, to be caput totius prosapiæ suæ (or chief of his kindred), and to have the command of all the men in Carrick under the said Earl, and his successors, &c. to him and his heirs for ever; which is afterwards confirmed by King Alexander III. the 27th year of his reign, anno 1276, in which he is designed Rolandus de Carrich, filius de Nicolai, filii Duncani, &c.<sup>b</sup> All which is fully narrated and confirmed by King Robert II. anno regni secundo.

This family being evidently possessed of a large estate, and head of a considerable tribe or clan, began to be called Kennadies, from the Galic or Celtic word, Kean-na-ty, which signifies head of the house, or chief of the clan; and in that country the word Kennady is called Kennaty to this day.

There are several charters in the records, wherein the same persons were designed Carrick in the body, and Kennady on the margin,<sup>c</sup> in the reign of King Robert II. by which it is certain that Carrick and Kennady were promiscuously used by the heads of this family for a considerable time, though their cadets generally took the name of Kennady.

Roland was succeeded by his son,

IV. Sir GILBERT de Carrick, who in several authentic writings is designed son of Roland, particularly in the submission of a difference betwixt him and the nuns of North-Berwick; in which Robert Bruce, Earl of Carrick, father of King Robert Bruce, and Robert, Bishop of Glasgow, were arbiters. He is therein designed Gilbertus de Carrick, miles, filius Rolandi, &c. and his seal, which is thereto appended, hath the very same shield of arms which the family of Cassilis carries at this day; which shows, that they had the double tressure floree, and contrafloree, with flower-de-lisses to their arms, long before they matched with the royal-family.<sup>d</sup>

This Sir Gilbert was often designed Kennady, and had lands in his possession of the same designation, which appears by the following charter of confirmation from the Earl of Lennox to his son,

V. Sir GILBERT de Carrick, or Kennady, who succeeded him. There is a charter of Malcolm, Earl of Lennox, &c. Facta Gilberto de Carrick, filio et hæredi domini Gilberti de Carrick, militis, de terris de Buchmonyn, Kennady, Cromicarne, Blairfode,

This Sir Gilbert died about 1290, and was succeeded by his son.

VI. DUNCAN de Carrick, or Kennedy, who made a donation of his patronage of the church of Kilbryde, in Carrick, to the nuns of North-Berwick, wherein he is designed, Duncani filius domini Gilberti de Carrick, militis, &c.<sup>f</sup>

As he had begun to drop the name of Carrick, and was more frequently designed by the name of Kennedy, as caput totius prosapiæ, so the cadets of the family, who were now become numerous, followed his example, laid aside the name of Carrick altogether, and embraced that of KENNEDY, of which there are many examples in our records; but whether any of them were brothers or sons of this Duncan, I cannot determine, viz.

Alexander Kennedy was chancellor to John Baliol, anno 1295.<sup>g</sup>

Hugh Kennedy did the same.<sup>i</sup>

Fergusius Kennedy, &c. is to be found in the chartulary of Levenax,<sup>k</sup> in the beginning of King Robert Bruce's reign, &c. and probably a son of Duncan.

Duncan was succeeded by his eldest son,

VII. Sir GILBERT de Carrick, or Kennedy, who obtained a charter from King Robert Bruce, which contained a full remission for his surrendering the castle of Lochdown to the <sup>l</sup>English; in which charter he is designed, Gilbertus de Carrick, miles, filius Duncani, &c. ante 1319.

By the same charter, King Robert again receives him into favour, restores him to the government of the castle of Lochdown, and all the lands thereto belonging, which have been part of the property of Cassilis ever since. The witnesses are, Edwardus de Brus, Jacobus senescallus Scotiæ, Thomas Ranulf, Johannes de Menteith, Nigellus Campbell, Jacobus dominus de Douglas, Alexander Fraser, &c. which is afterwards confirmed by King Robert II. anno regni secundo, 1372.<sup>m</sup>

He got also possession of the lands of Dunnure, which afterwards became their chief title; and he was the last of this family who was designed by the name of Carrick.

He left issue a son and successor,

VIII. Sir JOHN Kennedy, of Dunnure, who, in many authentic writs, is designed, filius Gilberti de Carrick.<sup>m</sup>

He was a man of good parts, was often employed in negotiations of the greatest importance, and always acquitted himself with fidelity and honour.

He was one of the commissioners appointed to treat with the English at Newcastle, about King David's redemption, anno 1354, though it was not completed till 1357.<sup>n</sup>

He got a charter from King David II. of several lands in comitatu de Carrick infra vicecomitatum de Air, anno 1360.

He likewise acquired from Marjory, daughter of Sir John Montgomery, Knight, the lands and barony of Cassilis, which hath been in the family's possession ever since. The same was ratified by a charter from King David II. anno 1362.<sup>o</sup>

In the reign of said King David, he founded a church at Maybole, in Carrick, with a chaplainry, which he largely endowed. The foundation charter, in which he is designed, Johannes Kennedy, dominus de Donnonure, bears, pro salubri statu mei, Mariæ uxoris meæ, et liberorum suorum quamdiu egerimus in humanis, et pro animabus nostris, &c. to which his seal is appended; also sigillum domini Gilberti Kennedy, militis, filii sui et hæredis: all which is narrated at large in a charter of confirmation of King Robert II. testibus Johanne, primogenito suo, comite de Carrick, Roberto comite de Menteith, Willielmo comite de Douglas, Johanne de Carrick, cancellario Scotiæ, Willielmo de Keith marescallo, Jacobo de Lindsay, Roberto de Erskine militibus, &c. dated at Dundonald, anno regni primo.†

He obtained from said King Robert a charter, medietat. baroniæ de Dalrymple, & infra vicecomitatum de Air, que fuit Malcomi filii Adæ de Dalrymple, &c. anno 1371.

Also a charter medietat. baroniæ de Dalrymple, &c. cum pertinen. quæ fuit Hugonis filii Rolandi de Dalrymple, &c. anno 1377.<sup>p</sup>

First, Sir Gilbert.

Second, Sir Hugh Kennedy, of Ardstincher, who acquired great reputation and honour, for his gallant behaviour in the French wars against the English, under the command of John Stewart, Earl of Buchan;<sup>q</sup> for which he was honoured by the King of France with arms; viz. Azure, three flower-de-lisses Or, which he and his successors marshalled in the first and fourth quarters, with those of Kennedy in the second and third.<sup>r</sup> Mr. Nisbet farther says, that the Kennedys of Margenie, Thirskhill, and Binning, in the shire of Air, are descended of this Sir Hugh, because they carry the flower-de-lisses in their arms, which no other family of the name of Kennedy does;<sup>s</sup> and that the Kennedies of Bargeny, were long proprietors of the barony of Ardstincher, which was the designation and inheritance of this Sir Hugh, &c.

Third, John, who appears to have been ancestor of the Kennedies of Culzean. John Kennedy, of Culzean, who got a charter from King James II. of several lands in Airshire, anno 1449, was his son, or grandson;<sup>t</sup> which estate afterwards returned to the family.

Sir John was succeeded by his eldest son,

IX. Sir GILBERT Kennedy, of Dunnonure, who, when very young, was one of the noble Scotch heirs that were sent hostages to England for King David's ransom, anno 1357.<sup>u</sup>

He got a charter from King Robert II. villæ de Kirkintulloch, dated anno 1373.<sup>x</sup>

He was a man of singular merit, and in great favour with King Robert III. who first conferred upon him the honour of knighthood, and afterwards gave him a great many lands in the Earldom of Carrick, then in the crown.<sup>y</sup>

There is a confirmation of Duncan, Earl of Lennox, of a charter granted by dominus Gilbertus Kennedy, dominus de Dunnonure, miles, terrarum de Buchmonyn, Kennedy, &c. in favour of John Kennedy, son of Fergus, &c. anno 1393;<sup>z</sup> to which dominus Johannes de Maxwell miles, dominus de Pollock, Alexander de Levenax, Gilbert de Cochrane, &c. are witnesses.

He married, first, Mary,<sup>a</sup> daughter of Sir James Sandilands, of Calder, by whom he had two sons.

First, Gilbert, who died in the French service without issue.

Second, Thomas, who, according to Mr. Crawford,<sup>b</sup> was ancestor of the Kennedies of Bargeny; but as I have not seen the old writs of that family, I shall not pretend to determine whether they are descended of this Thomas, or of Sir Hugh of Ardstincher, as before noticed, though the former appears to me most probable.

Sir Gilbert married, secondly, Marian, daughter of Sir Robert Maxwell, of Calderwood, by whom he had a son,

X. Sir JAMES Kennedy, who carried on the line of this family, and obtained from King Robert III. a charter of confirmation of the bailiary of Carrick, to be caput totius prosapiæ, and to have the command of the militia, &c. The King's charter bears, dilecto consanguinco suo Jacobo Kennedy, militi, &c.<sup>c</sup>

He married Lady Mary Stewart, daughter of King Robert III. Countess Dowager of Angus; and got a confirmation from the same King, now his father-in-law, of the lands and barony of Dalrymple, to him and Mary Stewart, the King's daughter, his spouse, dated at Dundonald, anno 1405.<sup>d</sup>

This Sir James was unhappily engaged in a quarrel with his brother, Sir Gilbert; in which Sir James lost his life (his father being then alive), leaving issue by the said Lady Mary Stewart, two sons;

First, Gilbert, afterwards Lord Kennedy.

Second, James, who devoted himself to the church, entered into holy orders, and became a true ornament to his profession. For true piety, and universal benevolence, he was exceeded by none. He was promoted to the See of Dunkeld, anno 1438, and translated to the Bishopric of St. Andrews,<sup>e</sup> anno 1440. He was one of the privy council to King James II. and chancellor of Scotland in anno 1444.

He was one of the regents of the kingdom in King James III's minority, and had the chief direction of all state affairs; which he managed with such prudence and discretion, that his whole conduct was universally approved.

He founded St. Salvator's college in St. Andrews, and nobly endowed it. His other acts of piety and munificence are too numerous to be here narrated.

He died on 11th of May, 1466, and was interred in the noble chapel of St. Salvator's college, in a beautiful and stately monument, which he erected himself.

We shall sum up this great man's character from Buchanan, who says, "that he surpassed all men in point of authority; that his prudence was held in the highest estimation; that he was lamented at his death as a public parent,<sup>f</sup> &c."

XI. GILBERT, first son of Sir James Kennedy, and Lady Mary Stewart, succeeded his grandfather in all his lands, and obtained from his uncle, King James I. a grant of the hereditary constablewick of the castle of Lochdown, dated 14th May, 1430.<sup>g</sup>

He obtained from King James II. a charter, constituting him heritable bailie of the earldom of Carrick; caput totius prosapiæ suæ, &c. to him and his heirs for ever.<sup>h</sup>

He got also from the same Prince, charters of the lands and barony of Cassilis, and a great many other lands, too numerous to be narrated here; which shews what a vast estate the family was then possessed of. He was afterwards dignified with the title of Lord Kennedy, anno 1450.<sup>i</sup>

He was nominated one of the six regents in the minority of King James III. though his brother, the Bishop, had the chief management of all public affairs.

He married Agnes, daughter of Herbert Lord Maxwell, by whom he had a son,

John, Lord Kennedy; and two daughters.

First, Catherine, married to Alexander, Lord Montgomery, ancestor of the Earl of Eglintoun.<sup>k</sup>

Second, Marian, married to Sir John Wallace, of Craigie.<sup>l</sup>

He was succeeded by his only son,

XII. JOHN, second Lord Kennedy, who obtained a charter from King James II. Johanni Kennedy filio et hæredi dilecti consanguinei nostri Gilberti domini Kennedy, terrarum de Garbrach, Bordelands, &c. anno 1459.<sup>m</sup>

He was a man of good parts, was of the privy council to King James III. and was one of the commissioners appointed to treat of a peace with the English, anno 1484.<sup>n</sup>

He married, first, Jean, daughter of Alexander, Lord Montgomery, by whom he had a son,

He married, secondly, Lady Elizabeth Gordon, daughter of

He died in 1508, and was succeeded by his eldest son.

XIII. DAVID, third Lord Kennedy, who being a man of great honour, courage, and intrepidity, was in high favour with King James IV. from whom he obtained a charter officium halivatus de Carrick, dilecto consanguineo suo Davidi Kennedy militi et hæredi apparenti dilecti consanguinei sui Johannis domini Kennedy, &c anno 1489.<sup>a</sup>

And a charter of the lands of Bagry and Borlands, to him and Agnes Borthwick, his spouse, and the longest liver, &c.<sup>r</sup>

Also a charter of the lands and barony of Cassilis.<sup>s</sup>

He was likewise one of the privy council to King James IV. who was pleased further to dignify him with the title of Earl of Cassilis, anno 1509, or inter November 1509, and March 1510.<sup>t</sup>

He married, first, Agnes, daughter of William, Lord Borthwick, by whom he had a son,

He married, secondly, Lady Margaret Boyd, daughter of Thomas, Earl of Arran, by Lady Mary Stewart, daughter of King James II. but by her he had no issue.

He was killed in the service of his country at the battle of Flowdon, on 9th September, 1513, and succeeded by his son,

XIV. GILBERT, second Earl of Cassilis, who being a man of great accomplishments, was often employed in foreign negotiations. He was appointed one of the privy council to King James V. and was sent ambassador to England with the Earls of Lennox and Glencairn, to treat of a peace, anno 1516, and again in 1524.<sup>u</sup>

He joined in the association with several other noble Lords, to rescue the King out of the hands of the Earl of Angus, for which he suffered greatly, and was put to several hardships by the prevailing party of that time.

The Earl was murdered at Prestick, 22d December, 1527, and succeeded by his eldest son,

XV. GILBERT, third Earl of Cassilis, who was highly esteemed by King James V. and was one of the Scotch nobles that accompanied that Prince to the battle of Solway, anno 1642, where he was taken prisoner, and carried to London, with many more of his countrymen. He was soon afterwards released for a ransom of one thousand pounds sterling.<sup>z</sup>

When a prisoner, he had the opportunity of conversing frequently with King Henry VIII. who had a particular friendship for him, and shewed him several marks of his favour, by which he gained him over to his party; and he used all his interest to promote a match betwixt Queen Mary of Scotland, and Prince Edward of England; which King Henry had very much at heart, but could not yet effectuate.

In 1554, the Earl was made Lord High Treasurer of Scotland, in which office he acquitted himself with honour and fidelity.<sup>a</sup>

He was afterwards one of the Scotch peers that were sent to France, to assist at the marriage of Queen Mary with the Dauphin; which accordingly they saw accomplished, on the 24th April, 1558.<sup>b</sup>

He married ———, daughter of ———, by whom<sup>c</sup> he had issue, two sons and two daughters.

The Earl died at Dieppe, in his return from France, 28th November, 1558, not without suspicion of poison.<sup>e</sup>

He obtained a charter from King James VI. terrarum de Inch cum piscariis in lacu; with many other lands, anno 1622.<sup>k</sup>

He was a man of great honour and integrity, and endowed with many excellent qualities.

He adhered firmly to the interest of King Charles I. during all the time of the civil war; and after the murder of the King, he was, with the Earl of Lothian, Lord Burleigh, and others, sent commissioners to King Charles II. then at Breda, upon which his Majesty came to Scotland, and was crowned at Scoon, anno 1651.

He was succeeded by his son, Sir JOHN Campbell, of Glenorchy, first Earl of Breadalbane, a man of sound judgment, great capacity, and accounted one of the ablest statesmen of his time. He gave many instances of his loyalty and attachment to King Charles II. during the usurpation; and gave great assistance to General Middleton and his forces, in the Highlands. He used his utmost endeavours with General Monk, to declare for a free parliament, which he thought was the most effectual way to restore the King. For all which his good services, King Charles was pleased to create him a Peer, by the title of Earl of Caithness, 28th June, 1677, which title he afterwards exchanged for that of Breadalbane, &c. with his Majesty's approbation; upon which he got a new patent, with the former precedency, "To him and any of his sons, by his first wife, whom he should think fit to name, by a writ under his hand any time of his life, &c. &c." The words of the patent are, "Creamus, &c. præfatum Johannem Campbell, et quemcunque ex filiis suis, inter eum et demortuam dominam Mariam Rich, ejus primam sponsam, procreatum, quem dictus Johannes Campbell, per scriptum et denominationem sub manu sua, quocunque tempore ejus vitæ, nominare et designare idoneum judicabit; hæredesque masculos ex corpore dicti sui filii (ita designand.) procreandos; quibus deficientibus, hæredes, masculos procreatos seu procreandos, ex corpore dicti Johannis Campbell; quibus deficientibus, propinquiore et legitimos ejus hæredes quosunque, comites de Breadalbane et Holland, vice-comites de Tay et Paintland, dominos Glenorchy, Benederaloch, Ormelie, et Weik, &c. data 13tio Augusti, 1681."

He was likewise in great favour with King James VII. was one of his privy council, and served him faithfully while he continued on the throne; but after he went away, and there appeared no further hopes of his returning, the great love and affection he had to his native country, made him bend all his thoughts to get peace and tranquillity settled in the nation: and therefore he used his utmost endeavours to get the Clans to lay down their arms, judging it impossible for them to accomplish their designs.

His behaviour at this period of life has been censured by some, though his conduct in general is vindicated by others. Thus Lord Breadalbane, according to Bishop Burnet, makes a disadvantageous figure in the affair of Glencoe, of which the Bishop gives the following account: "There was, at this time, a very barbarous massacre committed in Scotland, which shewed both the cruelty and the treachery of some of those who had unhappily insinuated themselves into the King's confidence. The Earl of Braidalbin formed a scheme of quieting all the Highlanders, if the King would give twelve or fifteen thousand pounds for doing it, which was remitted down from England; and this was to be divided among the heads of the tribes, or clans of the Highlanders. He employed his emissaries among them, and told them, the best service they could do King James, was to lie quiet, and receive themselves to a better time; and if they would take the oaths, the King would be contented with that, and they were to have a share of the sum that was sent down to buy their quiet; but this came to nothing; their demands rose high; they knew this Lord had money to distribute among them; they believed he intended to keep the best part of it to himself; so they asked more than he could give: among the most clamorous and obstinate of these, were the Macdonalds of Glencoe, who were believed guilty of much robbery, and many murders; and so had gained too much by their pillering war, to be easily brought to give it over. The head of that valley had so particularly provoked Lord Braidalbin, that as his scheme was quite defeated by the opposition that he raised, so he designed a severe revenge. The King had, by a proclamation, offered an indemnity to all the Highlanders that had been in arms against him, upon their coming in by a prefixed day to take the oaths; the day had been twice or thrice prolonged; and it was at last carried to the end of the year 1691; with a positive threatening, of proceeding to military execution against such as should not come into his obedience by the last day of December.

"All were so terrified that they came in; and even that Macdonald went to the governor of Fort William, on the last of December, and offered to take the oaths; but he, being only a military man, could not, or would not tender them; and Macdonald was forced to seek for some of the legal magistrates, to tender them to him. The snows were then fallen, so four or five days passed before he could come to a magistrate; he took the oaths in his presence on the fourth or fifth of January, when by the strictness of law he could claim no benefit by it; the matter was signified to the Council; and the person had a reprimand for giving him the oaths when the day was past.

“ This was kept up from the King; and the Earl of Braidalbin came to court, to give an account of his diligence, and to bring back the money, since he could not do the service for which he had it. He informed against this Macdonald as the chief person who had defeated that good design; and that he might both gratify his own revenge, and render the King odious to all the Highlanders, he proposed, that orders should be sent for a military execution on those of Glencoe. An instruction was drawn by the Secretary of State, to be both signed and countersigned by the King (that so he might bear no part of the blame, but that it might lie wholly on the King), that such as had not taken the oaths by the time limited, should be shut out of the benefit of the indemnity, and be received only upon mercy. But when it was found, that this would not authorise what was intended, a second order was got to be signed and countersigned, that if the Glencoe men could be separated from the rest of the Highlanders, some examples might be made of them, in order to strike terror into the rest. The King signed this without any enquiry about it; for he was too apt to sign papers in a hurry, without examining the importance of them. This was one effect of his slowness in dispatching business: for as he was apt to suffer things to run on, till there was a great heap of papers laid before him; so then he signed them a little too precipitately. But all this while, the King knew nothing of Macdonald's offering to take the oaths within the time, nor of his having taken them soon after it was past, when he came to a proper magistrate. As these orders were sent down, the Secretary of State writ many private letters to Levingstoun, who commanded in Scotland, giving him a strict charge, and particular directions for the execution of them: and he ordered the passes in the valley to be kept, describing them so minutely, that the orders were certainly drawn by one who knew the country well. He gave also a positive direction, that no prisoners should be taken, that so the execution might be as terrible as was possible. He pressed this upon Levingstoun, with strains of vehemence, that looked as if there was something more than ordinary in it; he indeed grounded it on his zeal for the King's service, adding, that such rebels and murderers should be made examples of.

“ In February a company was sent to Glencoe, who were kindly received and quartered over the valley; the inhabitants thinking themselves safe, and looking for no hostilities; after they had staid a week among them, they took their time in the night, and killed about six and thirty of them, the rest taking the alarm, and escaping: this raised a mighty outcry, and was published by the French in their gazettes, and by the Jacobites in their libels, to cast a reproach on the King's government, as cruel and barbarous; though in all other instances it had appeared, that his own inclinations were gentle and mild, rather to an excess. The King sent orders to inquire into the matter; but when the letters, writ upon this business, were all examined, which I myself read, it appeared, that so many were involved in the matter, that the King's gentleness prevailed on him to a fault; and he contented himself with dismissing only the Master of Stair from his service. The Highlanders were so inflamed with this, that they were put in as forward a disposition as the Jacobites wished for, to have rebelled upon the first favourable opportunity: and indeed the not punishing this with a due rigour, was the greatest blot in his whole reign, and had a very ill effect in alienating that nation from the King and his government.”

His Lordship was a great enemy to the Union in 1706, thinking it inconsistent with the honour and independency of his country. It is alleged he was engaged with my Lord Mar in the rebellion anno 1715; but his advanced age, and the great loyalty of his son, the Lord Glenorchy, made his conduct in that affair to be overlooked.

He married, first, Lady Mary Rich, daughter of Henry, Earl of Holland, in England, by whom he had issue two sons;

First, Duncan, who died unmarried.

Second, John, Lord Glenorchy, who became his heir.

He married, secondly, Lady Mary Campbell, Countess Dowager of Caithness, and daughter of Archibald, Marquis of Argyle, by whom he had a son,

Mr. Colin Campbell, who died in the flower of his age.

He had likewise a daughter, Lady Mary, married to Archibald Cockburn, of Langton, Esq.

The Earl died in 1716, in the eighty-first year of his age, and was succeeded by his son, JOHN, second Earl of Breadalbane, who was one of the sixteen peers for Scotland to two British parliaments, called to meet in 1734 and 1741; was Lord Lieutenant of the county of Perth; and was a firm friend of the present establishment, both in church and state.

He married, first, Lady Frances Cavendish, daughter and co-heiress of Henry, Duke of Newcastle; but she died without surviving issue.

He married, secondly, Henrietta, sister to Edward, first Earl of Jersey, and daughter of Sir Edward Villiers, Knight, son of Edward, Viscount Grandison, by whom he had a son,

Second, Lady Harriot, who, in 1736, was appointed one of the Ladies of the Bedchamber to their Royal Highnesses Amelia and Caroline.

This Earl died in 1752, and was succeeded by his son, JOHN, third Earl of Breadalbane, who, in 1718, was made Master of the Horse to the Princess Royal. In 1720, he was Envoy Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary to the court of Denmark.

In 1725, he was created one of the Knights of the Bath.

In 1727, he was member of parliament for the borough of Saltash, in the county of Cornwall; and after his father's death, was elected one of the Sixteen Scotch Peers to the British parliament, anno 1754.

He married, first, Lady Amabell Grey, eldest daughter and co-heiress of Henry, Duke of Kent, and by her he had a son,

Henry, who died young; and a daughter,

Lady Jemima, who, in May 1740, was married to Philip, then Viscount Royston, eldest son, and apparent heir of Philip, Earl of Hardwicke, Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain, and succeeded to her grandfather, Henry, Duke of Kent, as MARCHIONESS GREY, in June following. (See title Baroness Lucas, in Vol. VII.)

Her mother, Lady Amabell, dying at London, in March 1726, the Earl, in 1730, married, secondly, Mrs. Arabella Pershall, granddaughter and heiress of Sir Thomas Pershall, of Great Sugnal, in the county of Stafford, Baronet, by whom he got a very considerable estate in that county; and by her, who died September 2d, 1762, had issue,

First, George, who died in his infancy.

Second, JOHN, Lord Glenorchy, married to Willielmina, second daughter of William Maxwell, of Preston, Esq. a cadet of the noble family of Nithsdale, and sister of Mary, countess of Sutherland. He died before his father, without male issue, November 14th, 1771.

His Lordship dying without surviving male issue in July 1782, the earldom then descended to the next collateral heir male; derived from

HOPE, LORD HOPETOUN.

[Earl of Hopetoun, in Scotland.]

THE name of HOPE occurs in the annals of Scotland as early as 1296, as appears by Prynne's Collections, III. 659.

But the present Peer is descended from EDWARD HOPE (son of John, who is reported to have emigrated to Scotland from France in the retinue of Magdalene, wife to king James V.) This Edward Hope was one of the most considerable inhabitants of the city of Edinburgh in the reign of Queen Mary, and being a great promoter of the reformation, was chosen one of the Commissioners for that metropolis to the General Assembly, in 1560. He was father of HENRY Hope, an eminent and wealthy merchant of the city of Edinburgh, who acquired a considerable estate.

He went often to Holland, where he carried on a very advantageous trade, and then married Jaque de Tott, a French lady, whom he brought with him to Scotland, and by her had a son,

Sir THOMAS Hope, designed of Craighall, a man of great parts and learning, who after he had gone through his studies of humanity and philosophy, applied himself to the law, and made such progress in that study, that he was admitted to the bar at an age very little advanced.

He was not taken notice of for practice, till the year 1606, he was chosen to plead the cause of the Presbyterian ministers, who were indicted of high treason for declining the King's authority in matters ecclesiastical,<sup>a</sup> which gave him much reputation with that people afterward, and grafted in him the entire confidence of them, that he was looked on as the oracle of the party, and advised them in all their councils and designs.<sup>b</sup>

Upon the fame of his abilities and learning in the profession of the law, his Majesty, King James VI. in the end of his reign, was pleased to make him joint advocate with Sir William Oliphant; who giving way to fate on the 13th of April, 1628,

Sir Thomas Hope was not long after constituted sole LORD ADVOCATE, and enjoyed the place till after the civil war broke out, with great reputation for learning, and all other advantages which attend the most eminent men of that profession, as the several works he left behind him do undeniably evince, of which this is a catalogue,

Upon the breaking out of the civil wars, he attached himself entirely to the Parliament's side, and was by them appointed a privy-counsellor and advocate for life, anno 1641, also planter of kirks, &c. But it seems the King did not suspect him of disloyalty, for he appointed him High Commissioner to the general assembly, anno 1643, then an office of high trust and estimation; and to which dignity no commoner hath attained since.

He died in the end of the year 1646, and left considerable estates to all his sons, three of whom being Lords of the Session, while their father, Sir Thomas, was King's Advocate, it was thought indecent that he should plead uncovered before them; which was the origin of the privilege the King's Advocates have ever since enjoyed, of pleading with their hats on, if they please.

His wife was Elizabeth, daughter of John Bennet, of Wallingford,<sup>d</sup> by whom he had,

First, Sir John Hope, of Craighall, ancestor to the Hopes of Kinross, and to the Hopes of Rankillor.

Third, Sir Alexander Hope, of Grantham, who was cup-bearer to King Charles I.

Fourth, Sir James Hope, who was the origin of the house of Hopetoun, to which branch I shall at present confine my memoirs of the Hopes. There were also two daughters; Mary, married to Sir Charles Erskine, of Alva; and Anne, married to David, Lord Cardross, ancestor of the Earl of Buchan.

This Sir JAMES pursuing his father's steps in the study and practice of the law, in short time became so much taken notice of for his abilities, that he was chosen one of the Senators of the College of Justice, anno 1649,<sup>e</sup> in which station he continued till that judicature was dissolved by Oliver Cromwell, anno 1651.

He was likewise a good alchymist; and the first who brought the art of mining to any degree of perfection in Scotland. He was made governor of the mint, anno 1641, by King Charles I. He was also by Oliver Cromwell appointed one of the commissioners for the sale of forfeited estates in Scotland, anno 1654.

He married Anne, daughter of John Fowlis, of Lead-hills, in Vic. de Lanerk, by whom he had

John, his successor, and a daughter

Rachel, married to David Beaton, of Balfour, in Vic. de Fife.

He married, secondly, Margaret, daughter of William, Earl Marshal, by whom he had only one son, Sir William Hope, of Balcomy, Bart. Deputy-governor of the castle of Edinburgh.

Sir James died 1661.

JOHN Hope, of Hopetoun, his son, among other persons of quality accompanying his Royal Highness James, Duke of York, from London by sea into Scotland, was cast away the 7th of May, 1682,<sup>f</sup> leaving issue by Margaret, his wife, daughter of John, Earl of Haddingtoun, a lady eminent in all the virtues of her sex.

“He was,” says Lord Orford, “one of those divine men, who, like a chapel in a palace, remain unprofaned, while all the rest is tyranny, oppression, and folly. All the traditional accounts of him, the historians of the last age, and its best authors represent him as the most incorrupt lawyer, and the honestest statesman; as a master orator, a genius of the finest taste, and as a patriot of the noblest and most extensive views; as a man who dispensed blessings by his life, and planned them for posterity. He was at once the model of Addison, and the touchstone of Swift: the one wrote from him; the other for him. If he is to be compared with Bacon, the superior penetration of genius cannot be denied to Bacon; the virtue will all be Somers's. If he must be compared with another chancellor, it must not be with Clarendon, who was more morose and severe, had less capacity, and a thousand more prejudices: the great Chancellor De l'Hospital, seems to resemble Somers most in the dignity of his soul, and the elegance of his understanding. The momentous times in which he lived, gave Lord Somers opportunities of displaying the extent of his capacity, and the patriotism of his heart; opportunities as little sought for the former, as they were honestly courted and pursued for the latter. The excellent balance of our constitution never appeared in a clearer light than with relation to this Lord; who, though impeached by a misguided House of Commons, with all the intemperate folly that at times disgraced the free states of Greece, yet had full liberty to vindicate his innocence, and manifest an integrity, which would never have shone so bright, unless it had been judicially aspersed. In our constitution, Aristides may be traduced, clamoured against, and when matter is wanting, summary addresses may be proposed, or voted for removing him for ever from the service of the government; but happily the factious and the envious have not a power of condemning by a shell, which many of them cannot sign. It was no inglorious part of this great Chancellor's life, that when removed from the administration, his labours were still dedicated to the service of the government and his country. In this situation, above all the little prejudices of a profession, for he had no profession but that of Solon and Lycurgus, he set himself to correct the grievances of the law, and to amend the vocation he had adorned. The Union of the kingdoms was projected, too, by him; and it was not to his disgrace, that the Princess, whose prejudices he had conquered, and whose esteem he had gained, offered him up as one of the first sacrifices on the altar of Utrecht. He married Elizabeth, daughter and coheir of Edward Grey, Viscount Lisle, by whom he left a son and heir, John, who was created Viscount Lisle, 3d Henry VIII. and so insinuated himself into the favour of the monarch, that he was made one of his sixteen executors. He married Alice, sister and heir to John Earl of Warren and Surrey, by whom he had Richard, fifth Earl of Arundel, who died 1375, (49 Edward III.) His younger son, Thomas, was Archbishop of Canterbury. Another younger son, John, was ancestor of those who finally succeeded to the Earldom. But Richard, eldest son, became sixth Earl of Arundel, and suffered death on some capricious sentence of treason, 20 Richard II. His son Thomas succeeded as seventh Earl of Arundel, but died without issue, October 13th, 1415. His son Thomas succeeded as twelfth Earl, and died 25th October, 1524, and was succeeded by his son William, thirteenth Earl, who died 23d January, 1543, leaving his son Henry, 14th and last Earl (of that name) who flattered himself with the hope of obtaining the hand of Queen Elizabeth, soon after her accession to the crown, in which his subsequent disappointment brought on him a melancholy, that he endeavoured to wear off by travel. Being a favourer of the Duke of Norfolk's marriage with Queen Mary of Scotland, he suffered imprisonment, 14 Elizabeth. He died 25th February, 22 Elizabeth, without issue male, leaving two daughters and coheirs, Joane, married to John Lord Lumley; and Mary, to Thomas, Duke of Norfolk.

(who thereupon assumed the title of Lord Bourchier) she afterwards became the wife of Sir Lewis Rossbeart, but died without issue, 11 Henry VI. on which her first cousin, Sir William Bourchier, son of her uncle William, succeeded to the estate, and distinguishing himself in the French wars, had a grant of the whole county of Ewe, in Normandy, 7 Henry V. Humphry, who bore the title of Lord Cromwell, jure uxoris. 4. Sir John. 5. Sir Thomas. 6. Sir Edward. 7. Fulke. Henry succeeded his grandfather as second Earl of Essex, and having passed his life in the active splendor of those days, died by a fall from his horse, 31 Henry VIII. leaving a sole daughter and heir, Anne, wife of Sir William Parr, afterwards Earl of Essex, and Marquis of Northampton, who however died without issue. Cicely Bouchier, her eldest aunt, married John Devereux, Lord Ferrers, of Chartley. See title Viscount Hereford, in Vol. VI.

17. Wodvile, Earl Rivers, created 1466, extinct 1492. William de Widvill held half a Knight's Fee in Northamptonshire, (temp. Henry II.) "Hinc liquet," says Hearne, in Lit. Nig. Scacc. I. 213. "Widvillorum familiam admodum esse antiquam, immo longe vetustiore, quam voluerunt nonnulli. Nec quidem quid de antiquitate ejusdem statuendum sit, satis compertum habuit Dugdalius, qui nempe de eadem mentionem nullam invenerat ante annum 37 Edward III. Ob oculos scilicet, quam ea de re scripserit, hunc locum non habuit." Richard de Widvill was made seneschall of Normandy, 8 Henry V. Knighted 4 Henry VI. Lieutenant of Calais, 5 Henry VI. He was created Lord Rivers 26 Henry VI. and K. G. 28 Henry VI. King Edward IV. having married his daughter, created him Earl Rivers, in the sixth year of his reign. He married Jaquet de Luxemburgh, daughter to Peter Earl of St. Paul, widow of John Duke of Bedford, by whom he had seven sons, and many daughters. Anthony, his son and heir, second Earl Rivers, is celebrated as one of the early revivers of polite literature. He fell, like his nephew, King Edward V. a victim to the ambition of King Richard III. being brought to the scaffold, at that time, for pretended treasons. Leaving no legitimate issue, his brother

Richard succeeded him, as third Earl Rivers; but dying without issue, 6th March, 1496, (6 Henry VII.) his sisters became his coheirs.

22. Clifford, Earl of Cumberland, created 1525, extinct 1643. See title De Clifford, of Appleby, in Vol. VI.

by whom he had John Ratcliff, his son and heir, who was summoned to parliament by the title of Lord Fitzwalter, 1 Henry VII. but afterwards lost his head as an adherent of Perkin Warbeck. Robert, his son and heir, was restored to his honour, and was, by letters patent, 17 Henry VIII. created Viscount Fitzwalter, and December 28th following, Earl of Sussex. He died November 27th, 1542. His third son, Sir Humphrey Ratcliff, of Elneſtow, in Bedfordshire, was father of the last Earl. But Henry, eldest son, became second Earl of Sussex, and dying 1556, left three sons by his first wife; and, by his second wife, a son, Egremont Ratcliff, and a daughter, Anne, married to Sir Thomas Milemay, of Moulsham, in Essex. Thomas, eldest son, succeeded as third Earl of Sussex, and was of great eminence in the reign of Queen Elizabeth. Sir Robert Naunton says, that he was a goodly gentleman, of a brave and noble nature, and constant to his friends and servants. Also that there was such an antipathy in his nature, to that of the Earl of Leicester's, that being together in court, and both in high employments, they grew to a direct frowardness, and were in continual opposition, the one setting the watch, and the other the centinel, each on the others actions and motions: for this Earl of Sussex was of a great spirit, which backed with the Queen's special favour, and supported by a great and ancient inheritance, could not brook the other's empire; insomuch as the Queen, upon several occasions, had somewhat to do to appease and retain them, until death parted the competitors, and left the place to Leicester. Of this Earl it is also confidently affirmed, that lying in his last sickness, he gave this caveat to his friends: "I am now passing
" into another world, and must leave you to your fortunes, and
" the Queen's grace and goodness; but beware of the Gipsy," (meaning Leicester,) "for he will be too hard for you all; you " know not the beast so well as I do." He died June 9th, 1583, without issue, leaving a widow, Frances, sister to Sir Henry Sydney, the founder of Sydney-Sussex College, Cambridge. He was succeeded by his brother Henry, fourth Earl of Sussex, who was K. G. and died December 9th, 1593. He was succeeded by his only son Robert, fifth Earl of Sussex, who died without surviving issue, September 22d, 1629. The Earldom then devolved on Sir Edward Ratcliff, son of Sir Humphrey Ratcliff, of Elnestow, in Bedfordshire, already mentioned, who became sixth Earl of Sussex. But this honour expired with him in 1641. The Barony of Fitzwalter was claimed 1640, by Sir Henry Mildmay, of Moulsham, in Essex, whose mother, Lady Frances Ratcliff, was daughter of Henry, second Earl; and to his grandson and heir, Benjamin Mildmay, it was finally allowed after the Restoration. See title Earl Fitzwalter in the preceding list.

Edward III. inclusive, and died 35 Edward III. His son and heir, Walter, was accounted one of the most expert soldiers in the realm, who had summons to parliament from 43 Edward III. to 9 Richard II. but died the following year. Walter, Lord Fitzwalter, his eldest son, succeeded, and having had summons to parliament from 14 Richard II. to 5 Henry IV. died 9 Henry IV. 1408, leaving Humphrey, Lord Fitzwalter, his eldest son, who dying in his minority was succeeded by his brother Walter, Lord Fitzwalter, who died 1432, (11 Henry VI.) leaving Anne, his daughter and heir, married to Thomas Ratcliffe, Esq.

He had summons to parliament till 12 Henry IV. and was succeeded by his son Fulke, Lord Fitzwarine, who died 12th September, 19 Edward IV. leaving a son and heir, John Lord Fitzwarine, who was created Earl of Bath, 9th July, 28 Henry VIII. and dying 30th April, 31 Henry VIII. was succeeded by his son John, second Earl of Bath, who died 1560, and was succeeded by his grandson William, third Earl of Bath, who died at his manor-house of Tawstock, in Devonshire, 12th July, 1623, and was succeeded by his son Edward, fourth Earl of Bath, who dying 1636, left <sup>a</sup> Guarine de Meez, a branch of the House of Lorraine, was made Sheriff of Shropshire 1083, and was succeeded by his son Fulke, who was buried at Abberbury, in Shropshire, leaving another Fulke, who had his castle at Abberbury, and was a potent baron in the reign of King John. He lost his life at the battle of Lewes, 48 Henry III. leaving Fulke, who had summons to parliament, as Lord Fitzwarine, from 23 Edward I. to 8 Edward II. when he died. His son Fulke, Lord Fitzwarine, had summons from 8 Edward II. to 9 Edward III. and died 23 Edward III. leaving his son Fulke, Lord Fitzwarine, who died 47 Edward III. leaving a son and heir Fulke, who died 1 Richard II. leaving Fulke, his son and heir, who died 15 Richard II. leaving Fulke, Lord Fitzwarine, his son and heir, who died 1407, 9 Henry IV. leaving a son Fulke, who died in his minority, and a daughter Elizabeth, heir to her brother, wife of Sir Richard Hankford.

Anne, the third coheir, married first James Cranfield Earl of Middlesex, and secondly, Sir Chichester Wrey, Bart. great grandfather of Sir Bouchier Wrey, Bart. But the Earldom went to the next heir male, who was Sir Henry Bouchier, son to Sir George Bouchier, third son to John, second Earl of Bath. This Sir Henry Bouchier thus became fifth Earl of Bath, and at his death, without issue, August 15th, 1654, the earldom expired.

His nephew, Elias, was summoned to parliament from 23 to 33 Edward I. and left a son and heir Ralph, whose name, in most records, is written Daubeney. His son, Sir Giles Daubeney, left issue another Giles, who made his will 1444, and to whom succeeded his son William, father of Giles, a person of no small note in those times, who being active at the battle of Bosworth, was rewarded by King Henry VII. and elevated to the dignity of a Baron on his accession to the throne. He died, 28th May, 23 Henry VII. His only son Henry, second peer, was created Earl of Bridgewater, 19th July, 30 Henry VIII. G. and Earl of Southampton at the coronation of King Edward VI. He died 30th July, 1550, leaving his son Henry, second Earl of Southampton, who died at Ichel, in Hampshire, 1581, leaving his son Henry, third Earl, memorable as the friend of Lord Essex, and patron of Shakespeare. His marriage with Lady Frances Howard, who for this purpose procured a divorce from her former husband, Robert Earl of Essex, and the conduct both of himself and this infamous woman, in the affair of Sir Thomas Overbury's death, soon after, caused his disgrace and fall. They were brought to their trial, and long imprisoned, from which they were at length released; but lingered out their lives in obscurity. She died 1632, and he in 1645, leaving an only daughter, Lady Anne, wife of William Earl of Bedford.

But William, the eldest son, Marshal of Berwick, died in his father's lifetime, 22 Elizabeth, leaving a son Francis, who succeeded his grandfather as second Lord Norreys, and in 18 James I. was created Viscount Thame and Earl of Berkshire; but a month or two afterwards, having a quarrel with Lord Scrope, in the passage of the House of Lords, for which he was committed to the Fleet, bore the indignity so ill, that not long after, 20 James I. he mortally wounded himself with a cross-bow, at his house at Rycot, and died in a few days, leaving a daughter and heir Elizabeth, who married Edward Wray, and had issue by him a daughter Bridget, who became second wife of Montague Bertie, Earl of Lindsey, and left issue by him a son James, who inherited the Barony of Norreys. The same year he was made Lord High Treasurer, and by letters patent, dated September 16th, 1622, created Earl of Middlesex; but soon after deprived of his office of Lord Treasurer, fined 50,000*l.* and committed prisoner to the Tower. He died 1645, aged 70. He was succeeded by his son James, second Earl, who dying 1651, was succeeded by his brother, Lionel, third and last Earl, at whose death, 1674, the Earldom expired. His sister, Frances, married Richard Sackville, Earl of Dorset.

King James made him Governor of Guernsey, and, in the third of his reign, advanced him to the Peerage, by the of Lord Carew, of Clopton. In the first of Charles I. he was created Earl of Totness. The honours expired at his death, without surviving male issue, March 22d, 1629.

43. Carey, Earl of Monmouth, created 1626, extinct 1661. Sir Robert Carey, third son of Henry, first Lord Hunsdon, was Warden of the Marches towards Scotland, 40 Elizabeth, and recommended himself to King James by carrying to him the news of Queen Elizabeth's death. In the same year he was raised to the Peerage, by the title of Lord Ley, of Ley, in Devonshire, and on 5th February, 1 Charles I. was created Earl of Marlborough. This last honour seems attributable to the influence of the alliances of his third wife, who was Jane, daughter of John, Lord Butler, of Bramfield, by Elizabeth, sister to the favourite George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham; for the Earldom was first entailed on the issue of this third wife, which however were never born. <sup>e</sup> She is stated on her monument to have been the last of the Farley branch.

<sup>g</sup> This Sir Edward was son of Robert Poynings, who died 49 Henry VI. and was a younger son of Robert Lord Poynings.

They were descended from Adam de Poynings, of Poynings, in Sussex, in the reign of King Henry II. from whom sprung Michael de Poynings, who was one of the rebellious Barons, 17 John. His son, Thomas de Poynings, was father of Michael and Lucas. Michael was father of Thomas, who died 13 Edward III. leaving Michael, his son and heir, and Lucas, hereafter mentioned. <sup>b</sup> Mr. Noble, in his memoirs of the Cromwells, has clearly proved the descent of this Sir Richard, and the cause of his assumption of the name of Cromwell, which many had doubted; a doubt which is repeated in a note to the Tracts lately reprinted, in two vols. 8vo. at Edinburgh, containing the Secret History of the Court of King James I. &c.

Sir Richard Williams was son and heir of Morgan Williams, of Llanishen, in the county of Glamorgan, by a sister of Thomas Cromwell, afterwards Earl of Essex; and Mr. Noble has printed a letter from Sir Richard to that Earl, in which he subscribes himself his nephew. By this channel Sir Richard was

Williams was clerk of the King's jewel office, 27 Henry VIII. and afterwards master or treasurer of the same, by which, and other means, getting wealth, he purchased the Manor of Great Ricott, &c. in Oxfordshire. He was afterwards knighted, and introduced into the Court of King Henry VIII. and it was this powerful alliance which of course induced him to call himself Williams, alias Cromwell. Sir Richard was appointed one of the Visitors of the Religious Houses, and shared in the harvest of the Abbey Lands, obtaining a grant of the nunnery of Hinchinbroke, co. Hunt. in 1538, and many other large grants afterwards, among which was the rich Abbey of Ramsay, co. Hunt. He died 1546, possessed of an immense estate. Sir Oliver Cromwell, of Hinchinbroke, eldest son, represented his county in parliament, and was knighted by Queen Elizabeth, 1598. He wasted his estate by his prodigality. He died August 28, 1633, æt. 93, having lived to see his nephew rise into unexampled greatness, without losing his own loyalty. He had six children by his first wife, and four by his last. Henry, eldest son, born 1586, was a colonel in the army of King Charles I. He died September 18th, 1657. Henry, his only surviving son, retook the ancient name of Williams. Robert Cromwell, (second son of Sir Henry, who died 1604,) chiefly resided at Huntingdon, where he carried on the business of a brewer. He died in June, 1617, leaving by Elizabeth, daughter of William Steward, of Ely, Esq. (who survived till November 18th, 1654,) one surviving son, and six daughters.

Richard succeeded his father as PROTECTOR. He was born at Huntingdon, October 4th, 1626, and died at Cheshunt, in Hertfordshire, July 12th, 1712, æt. 86. His son Oliver was born at Hursley, in Hampshire, July 11th, 1656, and dying May 11th, 1705, was buried at the same place. He had several sisters, of whom the two survivors sold Hursley to Sir William Heathcote, Bart. for 34 or 35,000*l*.

Henry Cromwell, fourth son, Lord Deputy of Ireland, was born at Huntingdon, January 20th, 1628. After the Restoration he spent the remainder of his days at Spinney Abbey, near Soham, in Cambridgeshire, "descending from the toilsome grandeur of governing men, to the humble and happy occupation of husbandry." Here he died, March 23d, 1674, æt. 47. Henry Cromwell, his son and heir, born at Dublin Castle, 1658, succeeded him in the estate at Spin-in the first of Queen Mary, raised to the peerage, by the title of Lord Williams of Thame, and was made Lord Chamberlain of the Household to King Philip. Queen Elizabeth, on her accession, made him Lord President of Wales; and he died at Ludlow Castle, 14th October, of the same year, 1559, and was buried at Thame, in Oxfordshire, where is his monument. He was succeeded by his son Thomas, second Lord Wotton, who dying at Boughton-Malherb, April 2d, 1630, æt. 43, left four daughters, his co-heirs, Catherine, married to Henry Lord Stanhope, son and heir to Philip Earl of Chesterfield; Hester, to Baptist, Viscount Campden; Margaret, to Sir John Tufton, Kt. and Anne, to Sir Edward Hales, of Tunstal, in Kent, Bart.

101. Craven, Lord Craven. See title Craven, Vol. V.

102. Hervey, Lord Hervey, of Kidbroke, created 3 Charles I. extinct 1642. Sir William Hervey, of Kidbroke, in Kent, was created a baronet, 1619, and shortly afterwards an Irish Peer, by the title of Lord Hervey, of Rosse; and lastly an English Peer by the title of Lord Hervey of Kidbroke, 7th February, 3 Charles I. He died in June, 1642, leaving only daughters; of whom Elizabeth married her cousin John Hervey, of Ickworth, in Suffolk, ancestor to the Earls of Bristol.

103. Boteler, Lord Boteler, of Bramfield, created 1628, extinct 1647. Sir John Boteler, of Hatfield Woodhall, in Hertfordshire, of an ancient family, was created a baronet April 12th, 1619, and a peer, by the title of Lord Boteler, of Bramfield, September 4th, 1628. He married Elizabeth Villiers, sister to George Duke of Buckingham, and dying in London, May 27th, 1637, was succeeded by his only surviving son William, second Lord Boteler of Bramfield, on whose death, without issue, not many years afterwards, the honour expired.

104 Cottington, Lord Cottington, created 1631, extinct 1653. Francis Cottington, fourth son of Philip Cottington, of Godmonston, in Somersetshire, was educated under Sir Charles Cornwallis, while resident in Spain. In 1616, when Sir John Digby was recalled, he was sent in his place. In 20 James I. he was created a baronet. In 5 Charles I. he was made Chancellor and Under Treasurer of the Exchequer, and then, being sent ambassador to Spain, was advanced to the peerage, 10th July, 7 Charles I. by the title of Lord Cottington, of Hanworth, in Middlesex. Having afterwards been Lord Treasurer, in which he served the monarch in his troubles, he was again sent ambassador to Spain, 1649, whence he never returned, but dying at Valladolid, was there buried. He left no surviving issue. See his character in Lord Clarendon, i. 151. His nephew, Francis Cottington, became heir to his estate.

105. Finch, Lord Finch, of Fordwich, created 1640, extinct 1660. John Finch, son of Sir Henry Finch, of the Mote, near Canterbury, second brother to Sir Moyle Finch, of Eastwell, in Kent, (father of the first Earl of Winchelsea,) having studied the law in Gray's Inn, was chosen Speaker of the House of Commons, 1627; a Justice of the Common Pleas, 10 Charles I. and Chief Justice of the same the following year. On the death of Thomas Lord Coventry, he was appointed Lord Keeper, 23d January, 15 Charles I. and advanced to the dignity of a Baron, by the title of Lord Finch, of Fordwich, 7th April, 16 Charles I. But such was the fury of the predominant party in parliament, that to preserve himself he soon fled to the Netherlands, and there continued till the Restoration. He died without issue, 20th November, 1660, and was buried in the Church of St. Martin's, Canterbury, in which parish his seat of the Mote stands. See his character in Lord Clarendon, i. 73.

106. St. John, Lord Tregoz, created 2 Charles I. extinct 1630. Sir Oliver St. John, of Lydeard Tregoz, in Wilt, was created Viscount Grandison, of Limerick, in Ireland, 3d January, 18 James I. and was made Lord Deputy of that realm; and on the 21st May, 2 Charles I. was made an English Peer, by the title of Lord Tregoz, of Highworth in Wiltshire. He died without issue, December 3d, 1630, aged 70. See title Bolingbroke, in Vol. VI.

107. Littleton, Lord Littleton, created 1641, extinct 1645. Edward, son and heir to Sir Edward Littleton, of Henley in Shropshire, having studied the law in the Inner Temple, was made Solicitor General, 10 Charles I. Knighted; Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas 15 Charles I. and Lord Keeper 16 Charles I. and the month after advanced to the dignity of the peerage, by the title of Lord Littleton of Mounslow in Shropshire; but died at Oxford, August 27th, 1645, leaving no issue.

108. Minshull, Lord Minshull, created 1642. This peerage is not recorded by Dugdale, but is to be found in Beatson and Banks, where it is said that John Minshull, of a Cheshire family, was so created, 1642, though the patent of creation is not registered or enrolled.

109. Craven, Lord Craven, of Ryton, created 1643, extinct 1650. John Craven, younger brother of the first Earl of Craven, was so created, but died without issue.

110. Percy, Lord Percy, of Alnwick, created 1644, extinct 1652. Henry Percy, younger brother of Algernon, Earl of Northumberland, was so created, 1644, and died at Paris, unmarried, 1652. See title Northumberland, in vol. II.

111. Hopton, Lord Hopton, created 1644, extinct 1654. Sir Ralph Hopton, of Wytham, in Somersetshire, K. B. taking up arms for King Charles I, was, after gaining the memorable victory at Stratton, in Cornwall, created Lord Hopton, of Stratton, 4th September, 19 Charles I. with a collateral remainder to his uncle, Sir Arthur Hopton. He died without issue, at Bruges, in Flanders, 1652, (see his character at length in Lord Clarendon's History.) His uncle, Sir Arthur, having also died without issue 1650, his four sisters became his coheirs; of whom Rachel was married to — Morgan; Mary, first to — Hartop, and afterwards to — Mackworth, Kt.; the third to — Wyndham, ancestor to the Earl of Egremont; and Margaret, to — Throgmorton.

112. Cholmely, Lord Cholmely, of Wiche-Malbanc, created 1645, extinct 1659. Robert Cholmely was created Viscount Cholmely, of Kells, in Ireland, by King Charles I. and an English Peer by the title of Lord Cholmely, of Wiche-Malbanc, 1st September, 21 Charles I. and afterwards Earl of Leinster, in Ireland. He died 1659, without issue. See title Cholmondeley in Vol. IV.

113. Crofts, Lord Crofts, created 1658, extinct 1677. William Crofts, lineal heir of an ancient family, at Saxham, in Suffolk, having been in many confidential employments, to King Charles II. was advanced to the peerage by letters patent, bearing date at Brussels, 18th May, 10 Charles II. by the title of Lord Crofts, of Saxham. He died without issue in 1677.

Barony of Beaumont.

THOMAS Stapleton, Esq. of Carlton, in Yorkshire, claimed in 1790, 1794, 1795, the Barony of Beaumont, in right of the following descent :

Joane, sister and heir of William, seventh Lord Beaumont, and second Viscount Beaumont, who died 24 Henry VII. married John, Lord Lovel, and left Francis, Lord Lovel, who died S. P. and two sisters, his coheirs, Joane and Frideswide.

Frideswide married Sir Edward Norreys, and had issue Sir John, who died S. P. and Henry, who was attainted and executed 28 Henry VIII. leaving Henry, whose attainder was reversed, and who was created Lord Norreys, of Rycote, and whose heir is the present Earl of Abingdon.

Joane, the other and elder coheir, married Sir Brian Stapleton, father of Sir Richard, father of Gilbert, father of Sir Miles Stapleton, Bart. who died in 1707, S. P. leaving a sister and heir, Anne, married to Mark Errington, Esq. whose son, Nicholas, took the name of Stapleton, and died in 1715, leaving his son, Nicholas Stapleton, Esq. who died July 20, 1750, leaving his eldest surviving son Thomas Stapleton, the claimant.

Mr. Stapleton's council contended that the coheirship was determined by the attainder of Henry Norreys. But the Lords, after having heard the opinion of the Judges, on this point, resolved, 25th June, 1795, that "it did not appear that the petitioner was then entitled to the honour, title, and dignity, of Baron Beaumont."

In 1796, Mr. Stapleton presented a second petition, claiming as one of the coheirs ; and it was resolved, that the petitioner was one of these coheirs. See the case more fully in Cruise on Dignities, pp. 180, 190.

Barony of Powis.

In 1731, John Kynaston, Esq. claimed the Barony of Powis, in right of the following descent :

Richard Grey, Lord Powis, son of Henry Grey, Earl of Tankerville, in Normandy, (see title Earl Grey, in Vol. V.) had a sister Elizabeth, married to Sir Roger Kinaston, Kt. ancestor to the claimant.

This Richard, Lord Powis, died 1466 leaving John, his son and heir, and also (as was contended by the family of Vernon, but denied by Mr. Kynaston,) a daughter Elizabeth, married to John Ludlow, by whom she left two coheirs, married to Thomas Vernon and John Vernon. Eleanor daughter of Thomas Vernon, married James Curzon, whence is descended the present Lord Scarsdale, (which title see in Vol. VII.)

John, Lord Powis, who died 1494, was father of John, Lord Powis, who died 1504, father of Edward, last Lord Powis, who died without legitimate issue.

The son and heir of Sir Roger Kynaston, by Elizabeth Grey, was Humphrey Kynaston, who by Isabella Howell, was father of Edward Kynaston, who by Margaret Lloyd, was father of Roger, who by Margaret Vaughan, was father of Edward, who by Mary Owen, was father of Roger, who by Rebecca Wild, was father of Edward, who by Anne Barker, was father of John Kynaston, the petitioner, in 1731; which claim was opposed by Sir Nathaniel Curzon, Bart. and no resolution was come to, by reason of the petitioner's death, 1733. By his first wife he left a son, Corbett Kynaston, who died S.P. 1740, and by his second wife, Anne Harwood, who died in 1773, he had Roger Kynaston, who died in 1778, leaving, by Mary Powell, John Kynaston, who added the name of Powell to his own, and renewed the claim in 1800. But it has never been determined, perhaps under an idea that an early abeyance had not been determined in favour of the Grey family, (who were only coheirs,) till the time of Richard Grey, Lord Powis, who died in 1466, which would not extend the exclusive inheritance to his sister Elizabeth, wife of Sir Roger Kynaston; her grandfather, Sir John Grey, having married Joan, who was only a coheir of Edward Charleton, Lord Powis, with Joyce, who married John Lord Tiptoft, whose son John, Lord Tiptoft, was created Earl of Worcester, and whose three sisters were his coheirs, Philippa, married to Thomas Lord Roos, Joane to Sir Edmund Inglethorpe, Kt. and Joyce to Edmund, son and heir of John Lord Dudley.

Barony of Sydney of Penshurst.

ROBERT Sydney, Viscount Lisle, afterwards Earl of Leicester, was summoned to parliament in his father's lifetime, as Lord Sydney of Penshurst, and took, as usual, the precedence belonging to this, his father's, Barony. In 1782, Mrs. Perry, his granddaughter and heir, claimed this Barony, in right of this summons, as a Barony in fee, though it had been originally created by letters patent, in the reign of James I. and as such, only descendible in the male line. It was resolved against the Claimant. See Cruise, 205, 211.

Earldom of Anglesea.

Arthur Annesley, Viscount Valentia, (at present Earl of Mountnorris,) in Ireland, claimed in 1770 the English Earldom of Anglesea, &c. as legitimate son of the last Earl who died in 1761, on the ground that his father was privately married to his mother Juliana, Countess of Anglesea, in 1741, prior to his birth; but this marriage was not allowed by the English House of Lords, in direct contradiction to a determination of the Irish House of Lords by which he was admitted to the Irish honours.

Barony of Chandos.

See an account of this case in Vol. VI.

Earldom of Banbury.

William Knollis was created Lord Knollis, and Viscount Wallingford, by King James I. and Earl of Banbury by King Charles I. He died 1632, aged 88, leaving a widow, Elizabeth daughter to Thomas Earl of Suffolk, who had two sons, Edward and Nicholas, who, it was contended, were the issue, not of Lord Banbury, but of Lord Vaux. On the decease of Edward, S. P. Nicholas assumed the title of Earl of Banbury, and sat in the convention parliament, 1660, which was dissolved on the 29th of December, that year. In the following parliament the summons to him was omitted; on which he presented a petition to the King, for such summons. The King referred the petition to the House of Peers; who referred it to a committee, and this committee reported in his favour, 1st July, 1661. The house ordered counsel to be heard at the bar on this report; and then on the 19th of July, reported the same way, but the confirmation of this report appears to have been got rid of by various delays; and the petitioner died on March 14th, 1673-4, without having ever obtained his writ of summons. In 1685, his son Charles, calling himself Earl of Banbury, petitioned the House of Peers, to examine the proceedings in his case, on which various orders were made; but these were defeated by adjournments and prorogations of the House, and no decision was come to. In 1692, he had the misfortune to kill his brother-in-law, Philip Lawson, Esq. in a duel, and was indicted at Hicks's Hall, by the name of Charles Knollys, Esq. when he petitioned the House to be tried by his peers, and the House having entered on this petition, and heard counsel, came to a resolution, that the petitioner had no right to the title of Earl of Banbury. Meantime the indictment was removed into the King's Bench, and the defendant pleaded in abatement, that he was Earl of Banbury, for that "William Knollys, Viscount Wallingford, by letters patent under the Great Seal of England, which he produced in Court, bearing date August 18th, 2 Charles I. was created Earl of Banbury, to him and the heirs male of his body; that William had issue Nicholas, who succeeded him in the said title, and that the said honour descended to him, the defendant, from the said Nicholas, as son and heir, et hoc paratus est verificare." It was replied that, 14th December, 4 William and Mary, the said defendant petitioned the Lords then assembled in parliament, to be tried by his peers, and the Lords disallowed his peerage, and dismissed the petition; and that this was secundum legem et consuetudinem parliamenti.

The defendant demurred, and the Attorney General joined in demurrer.

After one of the most important arguments in favour of the rights and liberties of the subject, that ever was uttered, even by Chief Justice Holt himself the most upright and magnanimous of all our Judges, it was adjudged that the defendant was not concluded of his peerage by order of the House of Lords.

On this Mr. Justice Eyre first said, "the defendant had a title to his honour by legal conveyance, and that it was under the protection of the common law, and could not be taken from him but by legal means. That the House of Lords could no more deprive one of a peerage, than they could confer a peerage; that the defendant's right stood upon the letters patent, and his legitimacy; that the letters patent could not be cancelled without a scire facias; and that the defendant could not now be proved a bastard or illegitimate."<sup>a</sup>

1st. That this was no judgment of parliament.

2dly. That this was an original cause, and the House of Lords had no original jurisdiction.

3dly. That here was no judgment.

5thly. That there is no law of parliament, with regard to inheritances, but the law of the land.

As to the first, he said, "the Parliament consists of the King, the Lords spiritual and temporal, and the Commons: the judicial power is in the Lords only, yet legally and virtually it is the judgment of the King, if not of the Commons; and writs of error in parliament are coram nobis in præsentī parlamento, vide Fleta, c. 17. All power of jurisdiction is derived from the King, if that be an author to be credited."

As to the second, there were two reasons why they had not an original jurisdiction: first, because original causes were mixed with matters of fact, and it was beneath the dignity of the House to be troubled with matters of fact; but what was more essential, the Lords in parliament are a dernier resort, and are to redress the errors of all other Courts, and therefore a cause shall not come there in the first instance, for this would deprive the party of his remedy, by way of appeal or writ of error. And it is the wisdom of this nation, and, as he believed, of all nations, to give

As to the third, the Lords had not given any judgment in this case; for it was only that he had not a right to the Earldom<sup>b</sup> of Banbury, which was but an opinion, and no judgment.

As to the fourth, the Lords had not any cause before them. The defendant did not petition to enjoy, but supposed himself in possession, and petitioned only to be tried by his peers, the which was a matter of privilege, of which they had cognisance. The right of Earldom<sup>b</sup> was never submitted to their judgment. Therefore their sentence was more than they had before them to determine.

Lastly, as to the law and custom of parliament, he said, that “the Earldom of Banbury was an inheritance, and the inheritance of the Peers in their honours was determinable by the same laws, and in the same manner, as those in their lands; and the Lords had not, nor ever had, any right to determine of them; and the counsel for the King had not produced, and he supposed could not produce, any instance where the Peers had determined of such a matter. He admitted that they had determined matters of privilege and precedency between their members, but the right of inheritance of a Peer never was determined by the Lords, but was determinable according to the course of the common law, as all other inheritances were. And the case of the Lord Willoughby, in Jones 96, was upon a reference by the King. For the way was for a peer to sue to the King by a petition, the which was a petition of right, and upon this the King, if the party submitted to his determination, referred it to the Lords, who examine it, and make their report to the King, and upon their report the King makes a determination. But if the party does not submit the matter to the King, or does not abide by his determination, then the King ought to indorse his petition, with a soit droit fait, and send it into Chancery; and it being there, a commission ought to issue to examine the matter of the petition; and this being found, then the Attorney General ought either to traverse the matter or demur, and if he traverse, it ought to be sent into K. B. and tried there; (Stanford's

<sup>b</sup> Even if that question had been before them, they were without a reference of it from the Crown, which seems necessary to give them authority to inquire into and report their opinion on it.

Prerogative, 72,) and he said, in all cases where the party has an injury by the King, he has his petition of right, so that the subject has his remedy in these cases by the common law of England, in an ordinary course, in the courts of the King. And they are not determinable before the Lords in parliament, except when the party becomes remediless by default of justice in the inferior courts. And the Lords have not one law to determine the right of their inheritance in their dignities, and another to determine their inheritance in their estates; but if the creation of their honour be in question, they ought to be tried by matter of record. If the derivation be denied, scil, as if such was the ancestor of such, the which is a matter of fact, this shall be tried by a jury, as other matters of fact shall, and the King's counsel have not produced any precedent of a determination of a right of peerage by the Lords, the which they would have done, he supposed, if there were any such precedents; and that, which never has been done, he supposed, could not be done.

And having spoken upon the four points which he considered upon the replication, he proceeded to consider the allegation, that this judgment was secundum legem et consuetudinem; and as to this he said, that he did not know any reason for this allegation, which the King's counsel had insisted, if it was not to frighten the judges. But he said that he did not regard it, for though he had all respect and deference for that honourable body, yet he was there to administer justice according to the law of the land, and according to his oath, and that he ought not to regard any thing but the discharge of his duty; and as to the law and custom of parliament, for the determination of inheritances, he knew not any but the common law of England, the which is the birthright of every Englishman; and he would be glad to be satisfied by any man, if there be any such custom and law of parliament, where it is; for a custom ought to consist in usage, and he desired to see the precedents of such judgments; and as to the law of parliament he did not know of any such law, and every law which binds the subjects of this realm, ought to be either the common law and usage of the realm, or act of parliament. Nec super eum ibimus, nec super eum mittimus nisi per legale iudicium parium suorum, aut per legem terræ. And therefore the Earl of Banbury cannot be ousted of his peerage but by attainder, or act of parliament, or judgment in a scire facias upon his patent; but if there was any such law and custom of parliament, the which Mr. Attorney said was inter arcana imperii, which is a strange notion of a law, though it may be good in politics, and for which the Lords would not thank him, when they considered the law which governs the inheritance of their dignities, is inter arcana; for miseræ est servitus, ubi jus est vagum et incertum; yet when this comes incidentally before them, they ought to adjudge and intermeddle with it, and they adjudge things of as high a nature every day, for they construe and expound acts of parliament, and adjudge them to be void; they discharge men committed by parliament upon a prorogation; they adjudge of privilege of parliament."<sup>c</sup>

And he concluded that judgment should be given for the defendant, and accordingly the indictment was abated. So the defendant was not tried for the murder at all.<sup>d</sup>

At the end of Lord Chief Justice Raymond's report of this case, is the following passage: "Note, that this judgment was "very distasteful to some lords; and therefore, Hilary Term, "1697, 9 William III. the Lord Chief Justice Holt was summoned to give his reasons of this judgment to the House of "Peers, and a committee was appointed to hear and report them "to the House, of which the Earl of Rochester was chairman. "But the Chief Justice Holt refused to give them in so extra-judicial a manner; but he said, that if the record was removed "before the Peers by error, so that it came judicially before "them, he would give his reasons very willingly, but if he gave "them in this case, it would be of very ill consequence to all "judges hereafter, in all cases."<sup>e</sup>

It was intended to have given a long narrative of all the other extraordinary circumstances of this very interesting case, and this sheet has been kept open for many months, in the hope that there would be an opportunity to record the final decision. But at length, on July 7th, 1812, the case was, on the motion of Lord Erskine, adjourned to the next session of parliament; and motives of delicacy, as well as want of time and room, induce me to withhold the long detail I had prepared.

The question is, whether the Claimant's ancestor was the legitimate son of the first Earl, on the ground that the Earl, at the time of his birth, was greatly advanced in years; and that the Countess, who was comparatively young, was under suspicion of an illicit intercourse with Lord Vaux of Harrowden, to whom she was married after the death of the Earl, her first husband.

All I shall extract at present are the opinions of the judges on certain questions put to them, in the course of this investigation.

February 23d, 1809, Sir Samuel Romilly, as counsel for the Petitioner, stated that he would offer in evidence certain depositions taken upon a bill filed in the Court of Chancery, on Feb. 9th, 1640, by Edward, the eldest son of the first Earl of Banbury, an infant, by William, Earl of Salisbury, describing himself as the next friend and guardian of the said Edward. And being heard to state the nature of the suit, in which the depositions were taken, which he said was not, as it was stated in the printed case of the Claimant's proofs, a bill to perpetuate the testimony of witnesses, but a bill seeking relief; and being further heard to state the grounds upon which he offered the above matter in evidence, the Attorney General objected, &c.

On February 28th, it was proposed that the following questions be put to the judges:

“Upon the trial of an ejectment brought by E. F. against G. H. to recover the possession of an estate called Black-acre; E. F. to prove that C. D. from whom E. F. was descended, was the legitimate son of A. B. (and which fact it was necessary to prove), offered to read in evidence a bill in Chancery, purporting to have been filed by C. D. in the year 1640, by his next friend; such next friend therein stiling himself the uncle of the infant, for the purpose of perpetuating testimony of the fact, that C. D. was the legitimate son of A. B. and which bill states him to be such legitimate son, (but no persons claiming to be heirs at law of A. B. if C. D. was illegitimate, were parties to the suit, the only defendant being a person alleged to have held lands under a lease from A. B. reserving rent to A. B. and his heirs), and also offered to read in evidence depositions taken in the above cause, some of them purporting to be made by persons stiling themselves relations of A. B. others stiling themselves servants in his family, others stiling themselves to be medical persons attendant upon the family, and in their respective depositions stating facts, and declaring, among other things, that C. D. was the legitimate son of A. B. and that he was in the family of which they were respectively relations, servants, and medical attendants, reputed, esteemed, and taken so to be.

“Are these proceedings: viz. the bill in equity, and the depositions respectively, or any, and which of them to be received in the courts below, upon the trial of such ejectment, (G. H. not claiming, or deriving in any manner, under the plaintiff or defendant in the said Chancery suit), either as evidence of facts therein deposed to, or as declarations respecting pedigree; and are they, or any, and which of them, evidence to be received in the said cause, that the parties filing the bill, and making the depositions respectively, or any, and which of them, sustained the characters of uncle, relations, servants, and medical persons respectively, which they describe themselves therein sustaining?

2. "Whether any bill in Chancery can ever be received as evidence in a court of law, to prove any facts either alleged or denied, in such bill so filed in Chancery?

3. "Whether any depositions, taken in the court of Chancery, in consequence of a bill to perpetuate the testimony of witnesses, or otherwise, would be received in evidence in a court of law, in any cause, in which the parties were not the same parties, as in the cause in Chancery, or did not claim under some, or one of them?"

May 30th, 1809. The judges being agreed in their opinion, in answer to the several questions propounded to them on Tuesday, February 28th last, the Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas delivered their unanimous opinion upon the said several questions, as follows:

"To the first question the judges answer, that neither the bill in equity, nor the depositions stated in this question, are to be received in evidence in the courts below, on the trial of such ejectment as is mentioned in the question, either as evidence of facts therein deposed to, or as declarations respecting pedigree; neither are any of them evidence to be received in the said cause, that the parties filing the said bill, or making the said depositions, respectively sustained the character of uncle, relations, servants, and medical persons, which they describe themselves therein sustaining.

"To the second question, the judges answer, that, generally speaking, a bill in Chancery cannot be received as evidence in a court of law to prove any fact either alleged or denied in such bill as filed. But whether any possible case can be put which would form an exception to such general rule, they cannot undertake to say.

"To the third question, the judges understood the question to be this, whether depositions taken in the court of Chancery in consequence of a bill to perpetuate the testimony of witnesses, or otherwise, would be received in evidence to prove the facts sworn to, in the same way, and to the same extent as if the same were sworn to at the trial of an ejectment by witnesses then produced? To which question the judges answer, that no such depositions would be received in evidence in a court of law, in any cause in which the parties were not the same parties in the cause in Chancery; or did not claim under some or one of them."

Then the following question was proposed to the judges,

"Whether it would make any difference in the opinion of the judges, as to what ought to have been their answer to the first question, if the bill in equity, stated to have been filed by C. D. by his next friend, had been a bill seeking relief?"

The Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas delivered the unanimous opinion of the judges, in answer to the said question, as follows,

"The judges are unanimously of opinion, that it would not make any difference in the opinion of the judges, as to what ought to have been their answer to the first question, if the bill in equity stated to have been filed by C. D. by his next friend, had been a bill seeking relief." <sup>f</sup>

Barony of Stafford.

In May, 1808, the petition was proceeded upon before his Majesty's Attorney General, Sir Vicary Gibbs, who having been attended by counsel on the part of the Petitioner, and by his solicitors, made his Report to the King, bearing date May 22d, 1808. In the first part of this Report, Mr. Attorney opens the general nature of the case in these words:

"The case represented in the Petition is of great compass, including a narrative of heirship, without any chasm in the links, for more than seven centuries; namely, from Robert de Stafford, one of the great tenants in capite named in Domesday Book, to his alleged lineal heir, Edmund de Stafford, summoned as a peer to parliament, in the 27th of King Edward I. and through the same Edmund de Stafford to his alleged lineal heir, the Petitioner. Under the circumstances of so long a deduction of heirship, I shall endeavour, for the most part, to distribute the statements of the Petition into general branches, and to introduce each of those branches with a short intimation of its nature and extent."

<sup>f</sup> Other opinions of the judges in this case were intended for insertion, but must be reserved till the final decision.

With this introduction Mr. Attorney General breaks the Petition into periods, and states the contents under the several periods selected for that purpose; and having so digested and stated the case alleged by the Petition, Mr. Attorney General's Report proceeds to represent a full and particular account of all the proofs he received in support of its allegations; and all this being detailed, Mr. Attorney General concludes his Report in the following words:

"It appears to me, that the Petitioner has proved by satisfactory evidence, that the ancient barony of Stafford had descended upon Edward Stafford, Duke of Buckingham, who was attainted of high treason in the 13th of Henry VIII. and was held and enjoyed by him at the time of his attainder, as is stated by the petitioner in his petition.

"It was also proved to me, that in the first year of King Edward VI. an act of parliament intituled An Act for the Restitution in Blood of Henry, Lord Stafford, was passed in the terms also set forth in the said petition.

"The Petitioner also proved to me the different branches of his pedigree, as they are stated in his petition, shewing, by satisfactory evidence, that the heirs male of the body of the said Henry had failed; and that he was the lineal heir of the said Henry, and also the heir of Edward, Duke of Buckingham, the said Henry's father.

"The Petitioner's claim to the ancient Barony of Stafford rests altogether, as I conceive, upon the legal construction of the said Act of Restitution, passed in the first year of the reign of Edward VI. He insists that, according to the time and construction of that act, the restored barony was limited, in the first instance, to Henry, and the heirs male of his body; but with remainder to his heirs, (which the Petitioner understands to let in only the lineal heirs of Henry), being heirs of his attainted father; and that under this remainder the Petitioner answering the description of lineal heir of Henry, and also heir of Henry's attainted father, is now entitled to this ancient barony, the heirs male of the body of Henry having failed; and he further contends, that his title would be equally clear, if the word heirs should receive the larger interpretation of heirs general, he being heir general both to Henry and his attainted father.

"If the construction which the Petitioner puts upon the Act of Restitution be correct, the consequence which he draws in his favour certainly follows. But I think that there is, at least so much doubt in that question, as calls upon me to advise your Majesty to reserve this part of the Petitioner's claim for farther and more deliberate consideration.

"It was proved to me likewise, that by letters patent, on the 12th of September, in the 16th year of King Charles I. the title and dignity of Baron and Baroness of Stafford, were granted to Sir William Howard and Mary his wife, the only sister and heir of Henry, then late Baron of Stafford, deceased, as the Petitioner has by his said petition alleged, and in the terms therein set forth.

"And the Petitioner also proved, that the heirs male of the bodies of the said William and Mary have failed; and that he is the heir of their bodies; and (if it should be thought necessary so to put the case) that he is the heir of the body of the said Mary, begotten by the said Sir William.

"The title of the Petitioner to this new Barony of Stafford, so granted by the letters patent of the 16th of Charles I. depends upon the question, whether, notwithstanding the attainder of Sir William Howard, then Viscount Stafford, one of the said grantees, this barony did, after his death, so vest in Mary his wife, who survived him, as to be descendable from her to the Petitioner. This point also appears to me to deserve further consideration.

"Following, therefore, the usual practice of my predecessors in office, where the case before them has been attended with doubt or difficulty, I humbly advise your Majesty to refer the annexed petition of Sir William Jerningham,<sup>2</sup> baronet, to the House of Lords."

May 23, 1808, upon this report of Mr. Attorney General, his Majesty being moved upon the petition, was graciously pleased to refer such report to the Right Hon. the House of Peers, to examine the allegations of the petition, as to what relates to the Petitioner's title therein-mentioned, and to inform his Majesty how the same shall appear to their Lordships.

May 25th, 1808, This reference to the House of Lords being communicated to them by Lord Hawksbury, by command of his Majesty, their Lordships have been pleased to make an order, referring the same to their Committee of Privileges.

THOMAS PLUMER,

FRANCIS HARGRAVE.

In the 13th of King Henry VIII. Edward Stafford, Duke of Buckingham, was indicted for high treason, and on May 13th, in that year, was tried in the court of the High Steward, and was found guilty and had judgment of treason; and on the 17th of the same month was beheaded, and left HENRY Stafford, his only son, and subject to the said attainder, his heir.

In the 14th of Hen. VIII. this attainder was confirmed by act of parliament.

By letters patent dated December 20th, in the 14th of Hen. VIII. the said King granted various manors and lands situate in Staffordshire and other counties, and being parts of the forfeited estates of the said Edward, Duke of Buckingham, to the said Henry Stafford and Ursula his wife, and the heirs of their bodies; and in the same year an act of parliament confirming such grant was passed.

King Henry VIII. by letters patent dated July 15th, 23d of his reign, granted the castle and manor of Stafford, and diverse other parts of the said forfeited estates of the said attainted Duke of Buckingham, to the said Henry Stafford and Ursula his wife, and the heirs of their bodies.

In the first year of King Edward VI. an act of parliament, intituled, "An act for the restitution in blood of Henry Lord Stafford," was passed; and thereby, on his petition it was enacted, that the said Henry and the heirs male of his body, should be accepted, called, and written by the name of Lord Stafford; and that the said Henry and the heirs male of his body, should have and enjoy in all parliaments and other places, the room, name, place, and voice of a Baron; and that the said Henry and his HEIRS, should be, by the authority of the said act, restored and enabled in blood as SON and HEIR, and heirs to the said Edward, late Duke of Buckingham, and made heir and heirs to the said late Duke, BY THE NAME OF LORD STAFFORD, in blood; and that the said Henry and his heirs from thenceforth might and should be enabled to demand, have, hold, and enjoy all such honours, castles, manors, lordships, hundreds, franchises, liberties, privileges, advowsons, nominations, presentations, knights fees, lands, tenements, rents, reversions, services, remainders, rights, and all manner of hereditaments, which at any time thereafter should come, remain, descend, or revert from any collateral ancestor of the said Henry Stafford, other than such honours, castles, manors, lands, tenements, and other hereditaments, as the said King Edward VI. was entitled to have had, or might or ought to have had, upon any office found at any time before the then parliament, in such and the same manner, form, and condition, to all intents and purposes, as if the said late Duke, father to the said Henry Stafford, had never been attainted; and that the said Henry and his heirs might use and have any action or suit, and make his pedigree and conveyance in blood as heir, as well to and from his said father, as also to any other person or persons, in like manner and form, as if the said Duke had never been attainted, and as if no such attainder were or had been had, the corruption of blood between the said late Duke, and the said Henry and his heirs, or any act of parliament or judgment concerning the attainder of the said late Duke, or any other thing; whereby the blood of the said late Duke was or should be corrupted, to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding; so always it were not to convey the said Henry, or his heirs, to any estate, DIGNITY, name, pre-eminence, possessions, or hereditaments, that were of the said late Duke, father to the said Henry, other than such as were in the said act limited to him; and after the enactment before-mentioned, and a provision as to the bearing of arms by the said Henry Stafford and the heirs male of his body, the said act having recited the before-mentioned grants by King Henry VIII. to the said Henry Stafford and Ursula his wife, and the heirs of their bodies, by the aforesaid respective letters patent of the 20th September in the 14th year, and 15th July in the 23d year of the said King Henry VIII. and the said act of parliament gave to the said Henry Stafford and Ursula, and the heirs of their bodies, certain powers of charging said granted estates with jointures for wife and limited provisions for younger children, and of making leases of the same premises for twenty-one years; and then the said act of parliament concluded with a saving and proviso, relating to the estates, &c. of the said late Duke.

Soon after the passing of this said act of restitution in the first of King Edward VI. namely, in the second of King Edward VI. the said Henry Lord Stafford was summoned as a peer for the Stafford Barony; and he was also summoned in the several subsequent parliaments of King Edward VI. and in all the parliaments of the reign of Queen Mary; and in the first parliament of the reign of Queen Elizabeth; and on February 12th, 4 and 5 Philip and Mary, his rank appears to have been stated by the House of Lords according to what was conceived to be the precedence of the Barons of Stafford, his ancestors.

This Henry Lord Stafford had four sons, Henry, Edward,

Walter, and Richard. Henry succeeded as Lord Stafford, and dying before 8 Eliz. without issue, was succeeded by his next brother, Edward Lord Stafford, who died 1 Jam. I. and was succeeded by his son Edward Lord Stafford, who had a son Edward, who died before him; and dying himself about 1025, was succeeded by his grandson, Henry Lord Stafford (son of his deceased son Edward). This Henry, last Lord Stafford, died unmarried, 1037, leaving his sister Mary Stafford his sole heir.

This MARY Stafford married her relation Sir William Howard, K. B. a younger son of Thomas, Earl of Arundel and Surry: at which time it was supposed that there was a failure of heirs male of the body of the restored Henry Lord Stafford. But one Roger Stafford claiming to be son of Richard Stafford, his fourth son, made pretensions to the Barony. This person however, in consideration of 800*l.* paid him by the King, levied a fine of the Stafford Barony, Hil. 15 Char. I. This Roger some time afterwards died unmarried. But it is submitted, on the part of the petitioner, that the said fine and surrender of the said Barony of Stafford, (even admitting Roger's claim to be well founded) were clearly void in point of law.

By letters patent September 12th, 16 Char. I. a NEW BARONY OF STAFFORD was created in favour of Sir William Howard and the said Mary his wife respectively, as Baron and Baroness of Stafford, to hold respectively to them and the heirs male of their bodies, with remainder to the heirs of their bodies.

On November 11th, 16 Char. I. the said William Lord Stafford was created VISCOUNT OF STAFFORD, to hold to him, and the heirs male of his body.

On December 5th, 30 Charles II. the said Viscount was impeached of high treason; and on December, 1680, was tried, found guilty, and receiving judgment of death, was on December 29th beheaded.

The legality of the said attainder of the said William Viscount Stafford, is, as the petitioner is advised, questionable on serious and important grounds.

The said Mary, Baroness of Stafford, and her three sons by the said Viscount, Henry, John, and Francis, and three of their daughters, survived him.

If the said attainder of the said William Viscount Stafford, be according to law, his said title of Viscount became forfeited. But the petitioner humbly submits, that though the said attainder should be deemed legal, the Barony of Stafford granted by the letters patent of Char. I. to the said William Viscount Stafford and the said Mary his wife respectively, and the heirs male of their bodies, with remainder to the heirs of their bodies respectively, was, after the said attainder and death of her husband the said Viscount, vested in her as tenant in tail, according to the limitation, and through her was inheritable accordingly, without any necessity of reference to him as ancestor.

On Oct. 5th, 4 Jam. II. letters patent were granted, creating the late Viscount Stafford's eldest son, Henry Stafford, EARL OF STAFFORD in tail male, with remainder to the Viscount's two younger sons, John and Francis, in tail male successively. But no Barony was granted by these letters patent.

In January, 1693, the said Mary, BARONESS OF STAFFORD, and widow of the said William Viscount Stafford, died leaving the said Henry Earl of Stafford, the eldest of her said three sons by the said Viscount, her heir, who thereupon, as the petitioner humbly submits, became BARON OF STAFFORD; and leaving also John Stafford Howard, and Francis Stafford Howard, her younger sons.

John Stafford died 1714, having had by his first wife, Mary Southcote, two sons, William Stafford Howard, second Earl of Stafford; and Paul Stafford Howard, fourth Earl of Stafford. Also three daughters, Xaveria and Louisa, who both died at Paris unmarried; and Mary, married to Francis Plowden, Esq. of Plowden Hall in Shropshire: which Mary died 1765, leaving an only son Francis Plowden, who died 1788, unmarried; and two daughters, Louisa, who died 1784, unmarried; and Mary, who married Sir George Jerningham, of Cossey in Norfolk, Bart. and died his widow 1785, leaving her eldest son Sir William Jerningham, Bart. the (late) petitioner, who died Aug. 14. 1809, leaving his eldest son, Sir George, the present petitioner.

Henry, so created Earl of Stafford, died in April, 1719, without issue.

His nephew William, second Earl of Stafford, died at Paris in 1734, leaving his only son William Mathias, third Earl, who died without issue in 1750; and was succeeded in the honour by his uncle John Paul, fourth Earl of Stafford, who died without issue at Paris in April, 1762. So there being an entire failure of issue male of the body of the before-mentioned three only sons of William Viscount Stafford, and Mary Baroness of Stafford, the aforesaid Earldom of Stafford became extinct; but, as the petitioner humbly submits, both the Barony of Stafford so restored as aforesaid by the said act of parliament in the first year of King Edward

VI. and also the said Barony of Stafford created by the said letters patent of September 12th, in the 10th of Char. I. fell into abeyance between the daughters of William, the second Earl, who died in 1734; viz. the Lady Mary Apollonia Scholastica, Countess de Rohan Chabot, Lady Anastatia Stafford Howard, and Lady Anne Stafford Howard, as coheirs of the body of the said Mary Baroness of Stafford, by the said William Viscount Stafford.

The said Lady Maria A. S. Countess de Rohan Chabot, died without issue in 1769; and her youngest sister, Lady Anne S. H. died at Paris in May, 1792, unmarried; and thereupon her only surviving sister, Lady Anastatia S. H. became sole heir. She died unmarried at Paris about April 27th, 1807, leaving the late petitioner, Sir William Jerningham, her first cousin, once removed, her sole heir at law.

In July, 1807, the said Sir William Jerningham presented his petition to the King to be summoned as a Peer to parliament in respect to the said Baroness.

P. 243. Immediately on the conclusion of the war, in 1783, he published a most useful work, intitled “Observations on the Trade of the American States and of Great Britain.” Just before the memorable Irish propositions were introduced into parliament, in 1785, he published his “Observations on the Manufactures, Trade, and present State of Ireland.” He has since published “Observations on the Project of Abolishing the Slave Trade.” “On the Corn Laws.”—“A Speech on the Union with Ireland.” “Observations on the Export of Wool to Ireland,” and “Remarks on the Deficiency of Grain, on the Means of present Relief, and of future Plenty.”---“Strictures on the Necessity of inviolably maintaining the Navigation and Colonial System of Great Britain,” and “The Orders in Council and the American Embargo, beneficial to the Political and Commercial Interests of Great Britain." No political writings have been better received; and in the words of his friend Mr. Gibbon, "More curious and more diligent investigation, more strong sense and more liberal spirit, and more cool and impartial temper, are not to be found in the same number of pages, and he leaves on his paper the clear impression of an active and vigorous mind."

Mr. Gibbon, in a letter on Lord Sheffield's election for the city of Bristol, in 1790, observes, "In the whole range of elections, from Caithness to St. Ives, I much doubt whether there be a single choice so truly honourable to the member and the constituents. The second commercial city invites from a distant province an independent gentleman, known only by his active spirit and his writings on the subject of trade, and names him, without intrigue or expense, for her representative."

In 1796, his Lordship published "The Miscellaneous Works of Edward Gibbon, Esq. with Memoirs of his Life and Writings, composed by himself, illustrated from his Letters, with occasional Notes and Narrative." This interesting work is well known to the public. His Lordship was re-elected, in the same honourable manner, representative for the city of Bristol the same year.

P. 244. Maria Josepha married, October 11th, 1796, Sir John Thomas Stanley of Alderley-Park, Bart. and has issue, three sons, Edward John, William Owen, and Alfred, (this last died in April, 1811,) and seven daughters.

Louisa Dorothea married, March, 1797, Major-general William Henry Clinton, eldest son of General Sir Henry Clinton, Knight of the Bath; grandson of Francis, sixth Earl of Lincoln, and has issue two sons, Henry and Frederick, and four daughters.

Abigail, Lady Sheffield, died April 3d, 1793.

His Lordship married, secondly, December 26th, 1794, the Right Hon. Lucy Pelham, third daughter of the Earl of Chichester, by whom he had a son still born. Her Ladyship died January 18th, 1797.

His Lordship married, thirdly, January the 20th, 1798, the Right Hon. Lady Anne North, second daughter of Frederick, Earl of Guilford, and has one son, George Augustus Frederick Charles, born March 16th, 1802, to whom the Prince and Princess of Wales were sponsors; also a daughter, Anne Frederica Katherine, born December 25th, 1804.

LORD BEAUCHAMP.—P. 337.

In drawing up this article, the Editor relied on the authority of "Nash's Worcestershire;" but the following pedigree from the family will prove how very inaccurate it was.

P. 338. WILLIAM LYGON, grandson of GEORGE, who lived temp. Henry I. is said to have sealed with the same arms as the family now bear, 16 Edward III.

Ibid. line 8. For "Bray," read "Bracey." THOMAS LYGON is mentioned 10 Henry IV. as Lord of Warmedon, or Warndon, co. Worcester, and was member of parliament for that county 16 Edward IV. By marriage with Joan, daughter and heir of William Bracey of Madresfield, he appears to have greatly increased his fortune, as the family of Bracey, an ancient and honourable name, had long enjoyed the manor of Madresfield, in which parish that name now expired, and the Lygons, as their heirs general, succeeded to their property and patronage.

He had issue, two sons, first, Sir William Lygon of Madresfield, Knight, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Renfrey Arundell of Cornwall, (by Jane, daughter and heiress of Sir John Coleshill), and sister to John Arundell, Bishop of Exeter, who died A. D. 1503, by whom he had issue an only son, who died an infant. Of this lady there is the following memorial in the parish church of Birtsmorton, in the county of Worcester, on the tomb of Sir John Nanfan, Knight, who had married a Coleshill.

"In the body of the church there is a curious raised monument, the figure in brass having been taken away. On the right side of the tomb is a bishop in his robes, praying, with this inscription, "Lord John Arundell, Bishop of Chester, and son to Renfreye Arundell." In the second compartment, a man armed, except his head and hands, kneeling, with this inscription, 'Oumphrey Arundel;' and behind him a lady praying, and over her written, 'Dame Elizabeth Lygon,' and after her another woman."

Second, Richard, who continued the line of descent and had issue by the daughter and heir of Gifford, (a lady of illustrious birth, and who had previously become a nun, and taken upon herself a vow of perpetual chastity), a son, RICHARD, (called Thomas, in p. 358,) who, by his marriage with Anne, second daughter and coheirress of Richard Beauchamp, Baron Beauchamp of Powyke, greatly augmented the estates of his family.

Richard Lygon had by his wife Anne, to whom he was married on or before the 26th of Henry VI. and who died A.D. 1535, many children.

First, Sir Richard Lygon, of whom hereafter.

Third, John of Bathcote, in the county of Salop, who died 1576, having married Eleanor, daughter of — Hickford, and left issue five daughters, Mary, Sibell, Eleanor, Winifred, and Frances.

Fourth, Edmond, died without issue.

Fifth, George, a priest.

Sixth, William.

Seventh, Michael of Beauchamp's Court, who, by Ursula, daughter of Hornyold, left issue, John, George of Fairford, in Gloucestershire, died 1592, S. P. Robert of Powick died 1609, S. P. Richard Henry of Worcester died 1596, S. P. William: and Anne married Thomas Strange, Esq. by whom she had issue.

Eighth, Roger Lygon of Fairford, in Gloucestershire, who died S. P. 1584, having married Catherine, daughter of Sir William Dennis of Pucklechurch, and widow of Sir Edmund Tame and Sir Walter Buckle, Knights. They lie buried in the church of Fairford, where there is a handsome monument in stone, with two portraitures at length of the said Roger and his wife.

Sir RICHARD Lygon of Madresfield, to whom we now return, was sheriff of Worcestershire, second of Edward VI. 1547, and died 1557, having married Margaret, third daughter and coheir of Sir William Greville, Knight, who was appointed one of the Judges of the court of Common Pleas, 2d Henry VIII. (1510), and had issue by her, who brought him the estate of Arles-court, near Cheltenham,

First, William.

Second, John.

Third, Henry, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir John Berkeley of Stoke Gifford, and left issue, Henry, who died young, Sir Arnold Lygon, sheriff of Worcestershire, 7th James I. (1609), who was twice married, first to Joan, widow of John Baker, Esq. and, secondly, to Margaret, daughter of Sir John Talbot of Grafton, and widow of his cousin, Richard Lygon, Esq. He died S. P. 1612.

Mary married to Samuel Clinton, Esq. and Elizabeth to Edward Bassett of Uley, Esq.

Fourth, Ferdinando, died in Spain.

Sixth, Margery, married to John Mynge, Esq.

Seventh, Elizabeth to Ralph Sheldon of Childs Wickham, Esq. and had issue.

Eighth and ninth, Barbara, Susan, died unmarried.

WILLIAM LYGON of Madresfield, Esq. was sheriff of Worcestershire, 4th Edward VI. (1549), died at that place September 8th, 1567, and lies buried at Malvern. By Eleanor, daughter of Sir William Dennis of Dyrham, in the county of Gloucester, Knight, by Anne, daughter of Maurice, Lord Berkeley, he had many children, both sons and daughters. The former were,

First, Richard, his heir.

Second, Thomas of Elliston, in the county of Gloucester, who, by Frances, daughter of Hugh Dennis of Pucklechurch, in that county, had issue, Thomas married the daughter of Dennis Pratt, Esq. Francis, William, Richard, Katherine, married Gerald of Stamford, Esq. and Joan.

Third, Ralph, ob. S. P.

Fourth, Hugh of Upton-upon-Severn, who, by his first wife, Elizabeth, had issue, Henry, Hugh, Mary who died 1601, and William; and by his second, Katherine, sister of Sir John Foliot of Pirton, Knight, (and also of Thomas Foliot, who married Catherine Lygon, and who died 1604,) Thomas and Anne, both living in 1604.

Fifth, Francis married Grace, daughter of John Babb of Benthams, in the county of Gloucester, Esq. and had issue, Hugh and John.

The daughters were, Cicely, wife to Edward Gorges of Wraxall, Esq. Margaret married, first, Sir Thomas Russell of Strensham, Knight; and, secondly, Sir Henry Berkeley of Bruton. Katherine, wife of Thomas Foliot, and Elizabeth married William, eldest son of Henry Norwood of Leckhampton, co. Gloucestershire, Esq.

RICHARD LYGON of Madresfield served the office of high sheriff of Worcestershire, in the 16th and 26th of Queen Elizabeth. He was twice married, and died 1584, leaving issue by both his wives.

His first wife was Mary, daughter of Sir Thomas Russell of Strensham, Knight, by whom, who died December, 1576, he had,

First, Sir William, of whom hereafter.

Second, Francis, born 1567, died 1600, S. P.

Third, Margaret, born at Madresfield, 1565, married, January, 1581, Ralph Hornyold, Esq.

Fourth, Penelope, married Robert Walwyn of Newland, Esq. and lies buried near the Communion Table in the church at Malvern, with the following inscription:

On the wall at her feet are these lines,

“Hic Pia Penelope Walwini conditur uxor
Jamdudum morbis languida, docta mori
Docta mori, vitæque breves transcendere metas, Nunc Anima cælum possedit, ante fide.”

Fifth, Elizabeth, born 1568, married Miles Smith, bishop of Gloucester, and died without issue.

Sixth, Anne, born 1572, died unmarried, October 1603.

Seventh, Eleanor, born 1575, married August 31st, 1606, John Washborne, Esq.

The arms of Lygon empaling Russell, Cookesey, Cassey, &c are still to be seen in the windows at Madresfield.

His second wife was Margaret, daughter of Sir John Talbot, of Salwerpe and Grafton, by whom (who after the death of her first husband married, secondly, Sir Arnold Lygon,) he had issue :

First. John of Arle, in the county of Gloucester, born 1581, died 21st Septembe , 1644, leaving issue a daughter Katharine, married to Fleetwood Dormer, Esq.

Second, Ralph, a twin with John.

Third, Ferdinand, born 1583.

There were also other children, who died without issue.

This Lady Lygon died February 24th, 1632, and is buried in Bromsgröve church.

On a brass plate is the following inscription :

“ Here lyethe the body of Dame Margarete Lygon, daughter to the aforesaid sir John Talbot, and sister to this dame Bridget Talbot that lieth here and wife to Sir Arnould Lygon of Beauchamp's Court, died February 24-1632.

Sir WILLIAM Lygon, of Madresfield, the eldest son by the first marriage, was born at that place July 28th, 1567, and was baptized there the 11th of August following. He was High Sheriff of Worcestershire, 35th of Elizabeth, 1590, and was knight of the shire for that county, in the 31st year of that Queen.

A curious letter from Mr. John Talbot, of Grafton, to Gilbert Earl of Shrewsbury, dated 1603, is still extant, giving an account of the manner in which this Sir William was returned as knight of the shire for Worcestershire, in the first parliament called at Westminster by James the First, and of the violence and tumult attending his election. He died 1619, leaving issue by Elizabeth, who died 1631, daughter of Edmund Harewell, of Besford, Esq.

First, Sir William.

Second, Richard, born March 1594.

Third, Edmund, born 1595, died 1660.

Fourth, Mary, born 1597, married June 13th 1622, Henry Bromley, of Upton, Esq.

The escutcheon of this Sir William Lygon, with numerous quarterings of the Lygons, derived from their different alliances, empaling Harewell, with nineteen coats of arms, borne by that family, is now in one of the windows of Madresfield :

First, Harewell. Second, Besford. Third, Ruyall. Fourth, Cowlegh. Fifth, Vampage. Sixth, Wollashull. Seventh, Greville. Eighth, Arell. Ninth, Berry, of Hampton. Tenth, Princepole. Eleventh, Diclesdon. Twelfth, Bigmore, or Malyvere. Thirteenth, . . . . . Fourteenth, . . . . . Fifteenth, Giffard, of Brimpsfield. Sixteenth, Eccleshall. Seventeenth, . . . . . Eighteenth, Boteler. Nineteenth, Vale.

Sir WILLIAM the younger, of Madresfield, by his prodigality and extravagant mode of life, very considerably impaired the estates which had devolved to him, and sold many manors, which he inherited from a long line of ancestors; he married Elizabeth, daughter and coheiress of John Pleydell, Esq. by whom, (who surviving her first husband, married, secondly, Edmund Knightley, of Grandborough, in the county of Warwick, Esquire, and died 1661,) he had issue :

Second, John, of Lincoln College, Oxford, born at Madresfield, March 1616, died unmarried.

Third, Margaret, born 1614, married Thomas Moore, of the family of Moore, of Lindly, in the county of Salop.

WILLIAM Lygon, Esq. of Madresfield, the eldest son, was born there, October 1613; and on the death of his father succeeded to the diminished inheritance of his family. In the contest between Charles the First and his Parliament, which produced such deplorable scenes of tumult and bloodshed, it was almost impossible for any one, whatever might be his station, to observe a neutrality: Colonel William Lygon therefore took the side of the Parliament, and was appointed under that body sheriff of Worcestershire, 1647; and his name is also recorded in the list of the justices of peace of that county, taken July 10th, 1660. He was soon dispossessed of his garrison of Madresfield, and a governor being appointed by the King, it held out for him till the end of the war, or till Worcester surrendered, and then had honourable terms allowed it. This place must have been of considerable strength, as its governor, Captain Ashton, asserted at a council of war that he would engage to hold it for three months against all the enemy's force which might be brought against it. It does not appear, however, that this family at all suffered at the restoration, in consequence of its former conduct, which can easily be accounted for, as all parties were desirous of burying their former animosities, and of committing to oblivion the horrors of the unhappy contest which had so recently terminated. He died January 30th, 1680, aged sixty-eight. Having married Mary, daughter of Sir Francis Eggiocke, of Eggiocke, in the county of Worcester, by Eleanor, daughter of Francis Dineley, of Charlton, Esquire, she became co-heir to her brother, and a small portion of their estates still remains among the possessions of the present Lord Beauchamp, her immediate descendant. She died November 10th, 1668, aged fifty-nine. The issue of this marriage were :

First, William, who died an infant.

Second, Richard, of whom hereafter.

Third, Francis, born 1640, died young.

Fourth, William, of whom presently, as he carried on the line of the family, in consequence of the failure of the issue of his elder brother, Richard.

Fifth, John, born 1643, died 1680.

Sixth, Edmund, born 1644, died 1676.

Seventh, George, born March 1649, died 1680.

Eighth, Henry, born 1651, died January 1666; buried in the church at Hanley, where there is this inscription :

“ You whose soft pity can distill a tear
On faded youth and beauty, drop one here;
And let these silent ashes so declare
How frail and weak the rest of mortals are,
That raising up your faith, you may in trust
Of resurrection thus lay down your dust;
And that Christ's love may so your joys dilate
As even in youth to court approaching fate.”

Ninth, Thomas. Tenth, Mary, born 1639, died unmarried, at Hallow, 1697.

Eleventh, Elizabeth, born 1640; married, March 7th, 1671, John Walsham, of Knill, in the county of Hereford, Esq. and died without issue, April 12th, 1674.

Twelfth, Eleanor, died unmarried.

Thirteenth, Anne, born 1652; married, January 1680, Edward Bull, of Hallow Park, Esq.

RICHARD LYGON, Esq. of Madresfield aforesaid, was baptized at that place, May 16th, 1637; was a captain in the militia of Worcestershire, and high sheriff for that county, 1st James II. 1684: he died without leaving issue, April 15th, 1687; and was buried at Malvern, with the following inscription :

“ To the dear memory of Richard Lygon, of Madresfield, in the county of Worcester, who departed this mortal life, April 15th, 1687, in the forty-ninth year of his age: Anne his sorrowful wife, eldest daughter to Sir Francis Russell of the same county, Baronet, dedicates this.”

He married, first, Bridget, youngest daughter and coheir of John Lisle, of Moxhull, in the county of Warwick, Esquire; and by her, who died October 1680, he had an only son, who was born at Madresfield, and died July 1682. His second wife was Anne, daughter and heiress of Sir Francis Russell, of Strensbam, in the county of Worcester, who, after the decease of her first husband, re-married Sir John Guise, and Sir Henry Every, Barts. but had no issue by any of her husbands.

The estates of the family, on the death of Richard, devolved on his brother William, second son of William and Mary Egiocke.

This WILLIAM married first Elizabeth, daughter of Bridges,<sup>a</sup> by whom he had no issue; and secondly, August 7th, 1688, Margaret, daughter and heiress of Thomas Corbyn, of Hall End, in the county of Warwick, Esq. by one of the three daughters of Edmund Goodere, Esq. of Heythorp, in the county of Oxford. By her he acquired a considerable estate, derived from the marriage of Nicholas Corbin, in the reign of Richard the Third, with Joan, daughter and heiress of John Sturnie, of Hall End, Esq.

and it still remains in the family of her descendants. Their issue were :

First, William, born April 11th, 1681; married August 2d, 1716, Margaret, daughter of Charles Cocks, Esq. of Worcester, and died in the lifetime of his father, September 4th, of the same year. His surviving widow re-married Philip, first Earl of Hardwicke, Lord High Chancellor.

Second, Corbyn, born August 8th, 1693; married June 3d, 1717, Jane, daughter of Isaac Tulley, of London, Esq.

Third, Thomas, born August 4th, 1696; died April 7th, 1711.

Fourth, MARGARET, born August 23d, 1694; married June 25th, 1713, REGINALD, only son of Thomas PYNDAR, Esq. of Kempley, in the county of Gloucester, and Duffield, in the county of Derby, by Elizabeth, Daughter of Sir Andrew Hacket, by whom he had issue,

First, Reginald.

Second, Philip, born 1715, died 1793.

Third, William, born 1717; married Catherine, daughter of John Baker, of Hartlebury, Esq. and had issue.

CORBYN Lygon, Esq. of Madresfield, born 1693, died 1728; had issue, by his wife Jane, one son and three daughters. First, William. Second, Margaret, of Hallow Park, born 1717, died unmarried, 1740. Third, Katherine, born March 18th, 1722, died July 1725. Fourth, Jane, born March 8th, 1724, died May 1726.

WILLIAM, only son of the above, was born May 1720, and died October 1730. On his death, the estates of the family devolved on MARGARET HIS AUNT, who had taken to her second husband, Francis Biddulph, of Ledbury, in the county of Hereford, Esq. and had issue a son, Thomas. She died September 14th, 1736.

Her eldest son REGINALD PYNDAR, who assumed, according to the will of his grandfather, by act of parliament, the name and arms of LYGON, was born at Madresfield, May 25th, 1714. From his character, as drawn in the supplement to Nash's History of Worcestershire, it is recorded of him, "that his life, which was long, happy, and honourable, was spent in constant, unwearied, and unremitted exertions, in the service of his country, his friends, and his neighbours. He died suddenly, December 25th, 1789, having married at Cadeby, in Leicestershire, September 1739, Susanna, daughter of William Hanmer, Esq. of Bettisfield, in the county of Flint, by whom, who died in 1785, he had issue :

First, William.

Second, Elizabeth, died 1763, having married the Honourable John Yorke, fourth son of Philip, first Earl of Hardwicke, by Margaret, widow of William Lygon, Esq. and left issue an only child, Jemima, born June 5th, 1763 ; married November 18th, 1784, the right Honourable Reginald Pole Carew, of Anthony, in Cornwall, and died July 16th, 1804, leaving issue.

WILLIAM, the PRESENT PEER, on a vacancy arising in the representation of the county of Worcester, was elected one of the knights of the shire in 1776, and continued in that situation for six successive parliaments. On the 26th of February, 1806, his Majesty was graciously pleased to advance him to the dignity of the Peerage, by the title borne by his ancestors, and he was created BARON BEAUCHAMP OF POWYKE, in the county of Worcester. He was born July 25th, 1747 ; married Miss Denn, only daughter of James Denn, Esq. by whom he has issue :

First, WILLIAM BEAUCHAMP, M. P. for Worcestershire.

Second, John Reginald.

Fourth, Edward Pyndar, captain in the second life guards.

Sixth, Felicia Jemima.

Seventh, Emma Susanna, married January, 1808, George William, Viscount Deerhurst ; and died August, 1810, leaving issue an only son, George William.

Eighth, Sophia Margaret.

Ninth, Jemima Catherine Louisa.

Tenth, Georgiana Emma Charlotte.
